FOREWORD

Realizing that the Lehigh of the present is an outgrowth of countless achievements in the past, we have tried to depict another chapter in the vast life of our Alma Mater. If we have been able by this review to weld another link in the long chain of college life --- honored and cherished the more by memories of our heritage from the past --- we feel that the 1929 Epitome will have achieved its purpose.

who so fully exemplifies the spirit of true devotion which all Lehigh sons hold for their Alma Mater, this volume is sincerely inscribed.

In Memoriam

The Campus

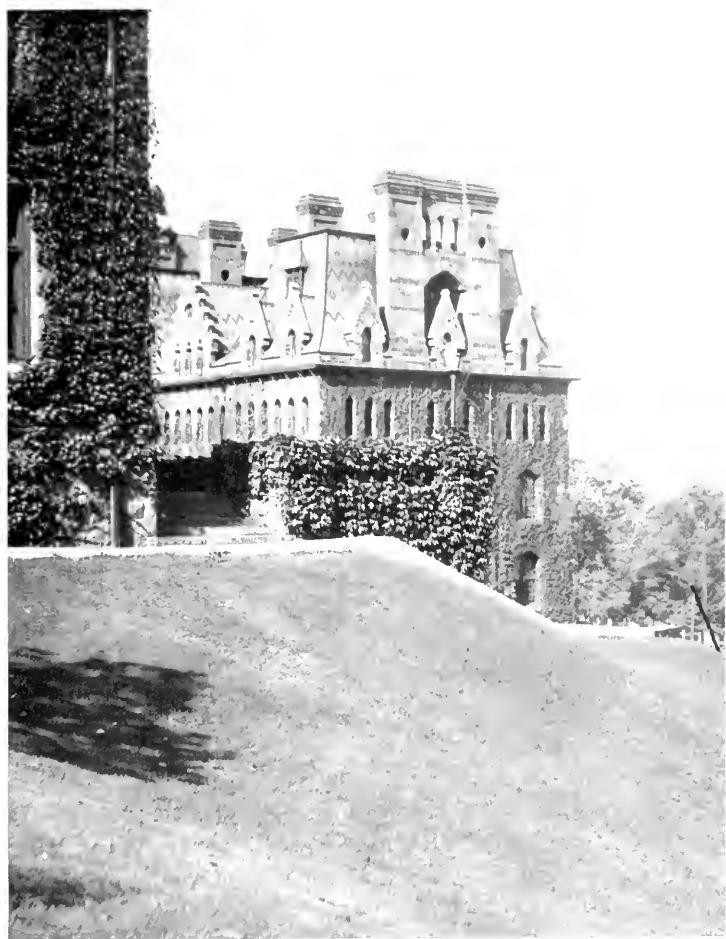

Whether resplendent with its many colors in Spring, or beautiful in its somber mantle in Winter, here is the Campus. Here are the buildings in which we toiled; they are the same buildings in which we dreamed our dreams and lived our lives. Every building, every path, has its own story. Rushes and battles, victories and defeats, are all represented here. The worth of the Campus is not in the barren halls, but in the thoughts which they provoke. The memories of College Days are all centered around the Campus.

A view down the hill, with the ivy-covered Chapel arched over by the trees

A full scene past the flag-pole with the Library towers in the background

A setting of Packer Hall and its towers, past the corner of Coppee Hall

A glimpse through the arch of the Taylor Gymnasium and the Prior Gates showing the skyline and the memorial roadway

*The Stone Face on the cliff, just beyond

ADMINISTRATION

The Faculty

Whatever forces or peculiarities are in their make-up, whatever role they play—teachers, guides, friends—they are the Faculty. The purpose of a University is to give its students preparation for knowledge; not merely a specialization in one field, but an insight into the relation of things. The University trains the students to acquire the power of co-relating many ideas. It is this training which is in the hands of the Faculty.

CHARLES RUSS RICHARDS, M. M. E., ENG. D., LL.D.
President of the University

ALTHOUGH comparatively young in the life of Lehigh, Dr. Richards has effected a complete reorganization of the University since his arrival. Much of the work which he has done is already noticeable. Although the school has remained fundamentally the same, many improved facilities for the advancement and acquiring of knowledge have been made available through his efforts.

His worth as one of the outstanding educational leaders of the country has now been fully recognized, not only by the work which he has accomplished since at Lehigh, but also through his activities in other branches, and in other schools. With a dream of a "Greater Lehigh", he has not only brought about many long-needed changes in the school, but has advanced the standing of the University as well.

The enrollment of the University, as well as the number of instructors, has advanced fifty per cent during the last five years. The endowment of the college has also been considerably increased, and at the same time, several new buildings have been added to the Lehigh campus. Although the days of realizing all the dreams of a completely and well equipped Lehigh are still in the future, Dr. Richards has been largely responsible for what improvements have been made, as well as for those which have been planned for the future.

HENRY STURGIS DRINKER, E. M., LL.D.
President Emeritus of the University
 Merion Station, Pa.

Dr. Drinker, present President Emeritus of Lehigh, clearly foresaw the conditions and problems of a new University, while actively engaged here and proceeded in a business like way to solve them. To him we owe a debt from the past, which it is impossible for us to pay. Along with Asa Packer, with Dr. Coppée, with Dr. Leavitt, with Dr. Lambert, with Dr. Chandler, and with Dr. Brown, Dr. Drinker stands as one of the outstanding figures in the development of the present Lehigh.

Coming as the result of the work of such a group of men, the Lehigh of today honors and reveres the accomplishments of these men in the past. Their work has been invaluable, but they have accounted their time well spent. With such a heritage from the past, we can only endeavor to add to the glory of the illustrious future of the Lehigh which they have built.

CHARLES MAXWELL MCCONN, M. A.
Dean of the University

CHARLES M. MCCONN, Lehigh's first and present Dean, has acquired an enviable record while serving in his present position. Coming from the University of Illinois, where he had served for eighteen years, four of them as principal of the Academy, ten as registrar, and the last four as assistant to the president, Dean McConn found no small job awaiting him. To his initiative and courage of execution are to be accredited many of the improvements that have been made at Lehigh not only in administrative work, but also in undergraduate activities.

While the position of Dean is not always the most pleasant, he has withstood the displeasure of rumors and excited members of the student body, and has been the more respected for the stands he has taken. He has done especially well on his work in organizing administration methods, and establishing beneficiary rules on the campus.

DR. EMERY, as Vice-President and Comptroller of Lehigh, has charge of the plant and accounts of the University. During the vacation months he is also director of the Summer sessions, thus retaining his touch with the academic world.

For many years a member of the faculty, and for sixteen years as Vice-President, prior to his present position, Dr. Emery has had a large part in developing and encouraging the sons of Lehigh. He has found that men develop faster through personal contact than through any other agencies, and by his own energy and example has been a great aid to Lehigh men. Many are the alumni of Lehigh who owe a great deal to Natt Emery, and who are only too willing to pay their debt of gratitude.

NATT MORRELL EMERY, M. A., LL. D.
Vice-President and Comptroller

Packard and Lehigh

THE death of James Ward Packard on March 20, 1928, donor of the new laboratory under erection which bears his name, came as a great shock not only to his many friends, but to members of Lehigh as well. Before his serious illness was known, the 1929 Epitome had been dedicated to him for the tremendous interest he had shown in his Alma Mater, making possible the beginning of the realization of the dreams for a greater University. It was perhaps an act of fate that his death came at the very same time that work was started on clearing the ground for the new laboratory, which now will arise as a splendid monument to the memory of its donor.

James Ward Packard was born at Warren, Ohio, November 5, 1863. His forefathers were early pioneers in the middle West, having settled there shortly after the Revolutionary War. It is perhaps from these foreparents that he derived the energy which enabled him to become a pioneer and outstanding leader in the industrial world. Mr. Packard was graduated from Lehigh in 1884 with the degree of Mechanical Engineer. Always interested in new developments in all fields, he produced his first automobile in 1899. From that time until he retired from active participation in the industry in 1915, he was recognized as a leader in his field.

In December 1926, Mr. Packard donated one million dollars to Lehigh University for the erection of a new laboratory to take care of the overcrowded conditions of the mechanical and electrical engineering departments. Coming at such a time as it did, Mr. Packard's interest in his Alma Mater made possible the beginning of the realization of an improved University. Others have fallen into step, and already much has been done.

Dr. Richards has very kindly prepared a letter telling of the work accomplished, and also the projects in mind.

"In the 1928 Epitome I endeavored to define in concise and general terms the meaning of the slogan, 'The Greater Lehigh.' Perhaps at this time it may be well to indicate the things that have been accomplished during the past five years and to restate the needs of the University that have not yet been met.

"During these five years, substantial progress has been made in expanding and strengthening the work of the several departments of instruction and administration, in improving the various curricula and in developing the spirit of research. The productive endowment of the University which was $3,000,000 is now $5,000,000; and the total annual income from all sources has increased from approximately $600,000 to $1,000,000. The Faculty has grown from 100 in number to 150, and the student body from 1000 to 1500. During this period the University has gained one major building, the Alumni Memorial Hall, and has begun the construction of the James Ward Packard Memorial Laboratory of Electrical and Mechanical Engineering, which promises to be the finest structure of its kind in America. The reconstruction of Christmas-Saucon Hall provided satisfactory accommodations for the College of Business Administration, the Department of English and the Students' Health Service; and the remodeling of the old Commons building into an armory gave Lehigh one of the best plants for instruction in Military Science and Tactics to be found in an endowed college. The acquisition of Lehigh Field and the reconstruction of the swimming pool in the gymnasium have greatly expanded the University's facilities for recreation and physical education. In addition, all the buildings on the campus have been repaired and repainted, and various minor improvements have been provided.

"Despite the progress that has been made, much remains to be accomplished before the dream of the 'Greater Lehigh' is realized.

"The University has completely outgrown its Library. While plans for its enlargement have been perfected, no funds for the execution of the work have yet been provided. As planned, the new library will have reading room space for 400 persons and a stack room capacity of over a half-million volumes. The estimated cost of this essential improvement is $500,000.

"With the completion of the library, the University's educational plant for its present organization will be in splendid condition. In order, however, that it may attain the degree of eminence in the scholarly world that has been the goal of Lehigh's friends, it will be necessary to put the research work of the University on a more substantial basis than now obtains. An endowment for research of not less than $2,000,000 is seriously needed. The income from that sum would give a tremendous impetus to scholarly work that would quickly place Lehigh among the outstanding universities of the country.

"We are greatly concerned over the fact that at present 600 or more students are required to live in Bethlehem wherever they can find accommodations. An adequate dormitory system is one of Lehigh's most serious needs. The University can now house 171 students while it should be prepared to offer suitable living accommodations to 700 or 800 students. The cost of dormitories sufficient to meet our present requirements will be approximately $2,000,000. I have recently requested the University's architects to study the dormitory problem with a view to developing plans for a group of residence halls that can be built on a site on the campus that seems suitable and that will afford a beautiful setting for such a group.

"To enable the University to safeguard the health of its students more effectively than is possible under present conditions, it should be provided with a well appointed infirmary. With the erection of such a building any student who was ill enough to be confined to his bed would be removed to the infirmary where he could receive proper care. The cost of an infirmary with an endowment for its maintenance will entail the investment of one million dollars.

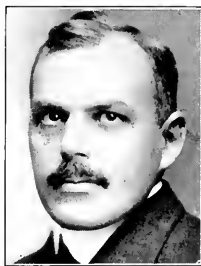

"Finally, there is real need for an auditorium large enough to seat 2000 persons, and suitable for various purposes such as college lectures, Commencement and Founder's Day exercises, the Bach Festival, Mustard and Cheese plays, etc. While such a building may be regarded as something of a luxury, there is no doubt that it would add greatly to the attractiveness of the life of the University.

"These, then, are some of the more important of the immediate objectives of "The Greater Lehigh." Without doubt, as the years go by other needs no less pressing than the above may develop; such is the price of progress."

C. R. Richards, President.

The College of Arts and Sciences

PHILIP MASON PALMER, A. B.
Head of the College of Arts and Science

THE COLLEGE of Arts and Sciences, dating from the incorporation of the University, in whose first register it was designated as the School of General Literature, has a total enrollment of twenty-five per cent of the entire undergraduate body at Lehigh. Under Professor Palmer, who became head of the College in 1921 upon the death of Professor Robert W. Blake, the course has been consistently improved until now it rates among the most thorough in the East. No department pays finer tribute to Lehigh's founder, than does the College of Arts and Science. It was provided for by Judge Asa Packer even when he was primarily interested in a school to give technical training; and it has now grown to a position of wide scope and honorable recognition.

Last year a plan was submitted and approved for adopting a system of comprehensive examinations in this college, for all major subjects. By this plan, creative thinking and independent investigation in the major courses were encouraged, with a corresponding decrease of acquiring merely superficial knowledge of the subjects. A comprehensive examination in English is also given to those students in the College of Arts and Sciences who show a deficiency in the subject. A failure in this examination means the carrying of additional English during the Senior year, without credit.

The Department of History, under the head of Dr. Laurence H. Gipson, was recently added, and has rapidly grown in favor. The inauguration of a course in Fine Arts this year, under the supervision of Professor G. A. Howland, fills a long-needed want in the college. Under the division of Fine Arts are given such subjects as History of Architecture, Freehand Drawing, and a study of the Fine Arts. Although in its infancy, the enrollment in this department was very large during the past year.

The College of Arts and Sciences, while yet in its early days, was thought to be merely valuable in giving engineers a cultural background; but it has now come into its own and is one of the leading colleges at Lehigh. Its growth has taken from the University the designation of "trade school", and has brought about a more balanced University life. Notwithstanding its comparative youth as compared with some of the older scientific departments, it has graduated many of Lehigh's most successful sons.

College of Business Administration

NEIL CAROTHERS, B. A., PH. D.
Head of the College of Business Administration

THE COLLEGE of Business Administration at Lehigh, like similar colleges at other universities, has grown from small beginnings not many years ago. A few courses in economics introduced into the Arts curriculum grew into many courses in economic science and business principles, and these in turn developed into a separate college, with a four-year curriculum leading to a degree. Established in 1919, the curriculum now has the largest enrollment in the University.

The College has one feature which distinguishes it from others of its kind. This feature is the character of its curriculum. It is founded upon a belief in certain principles. One is that the first requirement for any pursuit in life is a sound general education. Another is that a student in business administration should be so trained in the fundamentals that he has a solid foundation for any line of business that he may enter. And a third is that an undergraduate curriculum can not successfully train students for highly specialized professional work.

Based upon these principles, the curriculum permits no student to specialize so narrowly in any one field that he is untrained in all others, and it requires every student not only to learn the basic and fundamental facts that underlie every type of business but also to acquire a familiarity with the historical, social, cultural, and scientific background of business life. The curriculum, because of this ideal and this policy, differs distinctly from that of the typical school of business. It attempts to provide an unusually sound and efficient training for business life.

The Department of Chemistry and Chemical Engineering

HARRY MAAS ULLMAN, A. B., Ph. D.
Head of the Department of Chemistry

DURING late years, chemistry has leaped into the foreground as one of the most important of all sciences. In addition to its engineering phase, its work now includes economic and philosophical applications. Practically all industries and processes, whatever their type, have some features which are based on chemical principles; consequently the man trained in chemistry now has a much vaster field in which to work than in the days when he was regarded as a laboratory specimen.

The Department of Chemistry at Lehigh, realizing the enormous field which must be covered in order to get a thorough understanding of the nature of chemistry, has so balanced its curriculum that the student gets a thorough insight into both theoretical chemistry and its engineering features. The economic and cultural sides of the field have not been overlooked, however, and both languages and a study of the principles of economics are included in the course. In addition to a thorough knowledge of chemistry and its applications, a fundamental training in all science and in other engineering fields is also attained.

Either pure theoretical or research chemistry, or the many phases of chemistry in industries, may be studied. The fact that so many non-chemical plants need men trained in chemical principles, is a direct manifestation of the important part which this subject plays in human life. Food, clothing, medicines, building materials—everything is related to chemistry in some, if not all, of its phases.

The establishment of a Research Department at Lehigh by the various oil and paint companies throughout the East, is a fitting testimonial to the work which has been done in this line by the Department. There are also many fellows and scholarship holders engaged in research of other types. The department is primarily interested in guiding the oncoming chemists, and therefore maintains a constant relation between students and teachers. Inspection trips throughout the East are made by the Seniors each Spring, in order to observe at first hand the engineering problems with which they will be later confronted. A constant relationship between the Department and graduates is also maintained, with mutual benefit to all.

RALPH JUSTIN FOGG, B. S.
Head of the Department of Civil Engineering

IT IS the purpose of the Department of Civil Engineering to give a man a broad training so that he may be able to cope with the diverse problems which confront the modern engineer. The department has developed with the times in a way which has enabled its students to acquit themselves with distinction in the engineering profession. It has trained men with vision and courage, men with ability to overcome the obstacles of the Panama Canal, men who designed the Grand Central Terminal, men who constructed the Metropolitan Tower.

The first two years of the course are essentially devoted to a general preparation in the sciences preliminary to the work of specialization. The junior and senior years consist of instruction in structural design, highways, railroads, hydraulics, and sanitary engineering. That the engineer should be versed in the rudiments of business is essential, and courses in economics, finance, and accounting are given. The theoretical work in all subjects is successfully combined with laboratory and field work in surveying and geodesy. Field trips to great engineering works are provided for, so that the student may be alert to the possibilities of his chosen work and likewise be inspired to carry on the accomplishments of other Lehigh men in this vast field.

THE curriculum of the Department of Mechanical Engineering may be characterized as emphasizing the following: mathematical and scientific analysis of engineering principles; the reduction of shop work to a minimum; and the utilization of the industries in the vicinity of the University as supplementary laboratories. The curriculum in mechanical engineering at Lehigh University was inaugurated in the year 1867, and was administered jointly with the Civil Engineering Department until 1881, occupying at that time the basement and the first floor of Packer Hall. In 1881 Professor Klein took charge of the department, and until his death in 1918, his bold and far-sighted personality shaped and directed the department.

The W. A. Wilbur Engineering Laboratory was made available in 1902. Williams Hall was opened the following year and has housed the department since that time. The course has always been rigorous, comprehensive and difficult, with the result that many of the presidents, the general managers and the chief engineers of the leading industries of the country are notable, living "To make their lives add luster to Lehigh's glorious fame."

BRADLEY STOUGHTON, Ph. B., B. S.
Head of the Department of Metallurgy

METALLURGICAL training must be of the broadest type, for the great specialization in modern industry has created a demand for the trained engineer who is experienced in the properties and uses of metals. The department is especially eager to have the men taking their courses or specializing in metallurgical work as widely trained as possible, and consequently the curriculum has been adjusted to give a complete scientific and economic foundation to the students.

The Museum of the Metallurgical Department is very complete, and offers a large assortment of the various types of work with which it is connected. A collection of the scientific instruments used by Dr. Joseph W. Richards, for a generation preceding his death the Professor of Metallurgy at Lehigh, has been gathered this year. The instruments were all made to order abroad by painstaking mechanics, and include some of the finest apparatus that has ever been produced in this line.

The scientific study which has been given in late years to various phases of metallurgical work, has brought about several changes. The importance of electric arc welding as an industrial process has led to the establishing of a Welding Laboratory on the Campus. The equipment in this Laboratory is very complete and up-to-date; and research work is carried on by all departments in the Laboratory. An annual Symposium on welding is also held each year at the University, at which time all prominent manufacturers and engineers assemble for demonstration work, and to view the exhibitions.

The Department of Electrical Engineering

L EHIGH University was one of the first institutions to offer a course in Electrical Engineering. In 1883 the register first offered a one-year course in applied electricity. Despite the fact that at that time the modern electrical industry was in its infancy, and in spite of the inadequate material available, the foundation was laid for a Department of Electrical Engineering which was established in 1903 with Professor William Esty at its head. Professor Esty, through his remarkable ability and personality, has been retained as head of the department to the present time.

The course now offered in Electrical Engineering aims to lay a broad foundation in the fundamentals of engineering, with the further provision of specialization in applied electricity. The course also includes some of the elementary courses in other branches of engineering. Due to the growth of the electrical industry since the foundation of the department at Lehigh, constant revision was required to keep the courses up to date. This has been very satisfactorily done so that adequate instruction is now given in Radio, High Voltage Transmission, and other modern fields. Specialization begins in the Junior year and is further intensified in the Senior year with extensive laboratory work.

Records of the graduates of this department show that 84 per cent. have followed some branch of the electrical industry. The success of these men, among whom are many prominent figures in the field of Electrical Engineering, has given Lehigh men an enviable reputation among all engineers. With the completion of the new Packard Laboratory in the near future, the equipment and other facilities of the department will be greatly augmented. Such an accomplishment will no doubt give added popularity to the Electrical Engineering Department.

more varied, interesting and profitable experiences than those incident to mining engineering.

Mining is one of the most outstanding of the basic industries, as it furnishes us with all our ores of the metals, coal, petroleum, gas, stone and many building materials. In fact every industry is absolutely dependent in greater or less degree upon the mining industry for its raw materials and fuels.

The actual work of mining constitutes but a part of the duties of the mining engineer; perhaps the greater part of his time is devoted to problems of exploration, construction, operation, transportation and administration, which call for a very broad training in all branches of engineering.

Since mining is carried on in practically all parts of the world, and under a great variety of physical conditions, it demands foresight, initiative, vigor and endurance upon the part of the engineer, and frequently requires a considerable degree of pioneer work.

In view of these general facts, few callings offer

The Department of Industrial Engineering

DURING the last forty years a vital transformation has taken place in American industry. The era of exploitation and expansion has given way to an era of development in organization, and with this change has come the demand for a new type of business man, namely, the man who possesses both technical and administrative ability. Accordingly, it has become necessary to include in the engineering curricula the fundamentals of finance, accounting and management, to provide such a training.

In 1925 the curriculum of industrial engineering was established at Lehigh with the maintenance of these standards as the first consideration. It is primarily an engineering curriculum and has been conceived in the light of twenty years of experience in the development of similar courses at other institutions. This curriculum has been adopted only after a study of this experience has indicated that the University's facilities and its location in the very heart of the eastern industrial section warrant such action.

The Department of English

AMID grumbings and groanings of upper classmen who could no longer "sleep for credit", the Department of English has somehow managed through another year to thrive and expand, while noting with feelings of mingled satisfaction and regret that its Head had won the enviable distinction of outstripping the Dean in last year's Epitome race for unpopularity. The Department feels, therefore, like that flower of the desert called "The Spanish Bayonet":

"I thank Thee— Lord!— for all the faults,
And virtues I have missed
And that I'm not, like stupid plants,
A bloomin' Pacifist.

For when they "Lay them down to sleep"
Just to impose on Thee,
They have to hunt some other place,
And can't lie down on me."

ROBERT METCALF SMITH,
B.A., M.A., PH.D.

The Department has made beginnings during this year in a number of new directions. From four or five the elections in Public Speaking have jumped to thirty. From this beginning we hope someday will come teams worthy of carrying on annual debates with Lafayette. Each year scores of colleges and universities write to us for debating arrangements with traveling teams from the Far and Middle West, or with teams from neighboring institutions. To all of these we must reply, "Lehigh at present is not debating". And yet Lehigh and Lafayette should have held debating contests for the last thirty years. Thanks to the kindness and generosity of Mr. Okeson and the Alumni, the old fashioned oratorical contest has been revised to an annual contest in informal public address, and the prizes have been increased from $50 to $100.

Thanks again to the kindness of Mr. E. H. Williams, the William Prizes in English for Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors have been revised and increased, and the objectionable feature of interdepartmental competition for the Senior prizes has been removed.

In revising the Engineering courses, several Heads of Curricula have allowed a choice of English and Foreign Language in the Sophomore year, and the Department has accordingly expanded its offerings so that a Sophomore, if he chooses English, may elect one of five possibilities. He may join the regular literature course in World Drama, or elect Public Speaking, or Creative Writing, or Writing for Business, or Journalism.

Our newest addition is Journalism. With the Journalism laboratory nearing the stage of final equipment, Mr. MacDougall hopes to be of further aid to all students interested in newspaper writing, or in writing for the Campus publications.

These are the new adventures in English still in the making, and we look forward with the moderate ambition of Mark Tapley "to come out jolly".

The Department of Mathematics and Astronomy

TOMLINSON FORT,
A.B., A.M., Ph.D.

MATHEMATICS, around which scientific progress has been built in all times, is perhaps the boldest of the sciences. But whereas it formerly was reserved for only a cherished few, it is now the most wide-spread study, and serves humanity in its double role. First, it is the basis of all engineering work, and is indispensable to the scientific man; and second, it serves to develop the intellect and the reasoning powers of those taking cultural or economic subjects.

The purpose of the Department of Mathematics and Astronomy has been to train the reasoning power of the undergraduate, and to prepare him in fundamental scientific subjects. The course covers drilling, explanation, actual practice, and testing in the course; yet the department still finds time to carry on purely research work, whether in the field of absolute mathematics or in that of Astronomy. The courses offered by this department range through the complete scale of undergraduate work, and cover the more advanced subjects. The course in Astronomy which is given under the supervision of this department, includes practical observation in the Sayre Observatory.

In addition to maintaining high standards, the Department of Mathematics has also tried to make its subjects as interesting as possible. To affect this end, a series of problems were published weekly during the second term, with cash prizes for correct solutions, in order to stimulate the interest of the students in their work.

The Department of Physics

THE Physics Department, in its presentation of the elementary and advanced subjects which it offers, considers it a fundamental rather than a finished science, and consequently presents its courses in such a way that they will act as a basis for acquiring knowledge of other subjects. All engineering students are required to take undergraduate work in this department, in order that they may be better fitted for the work in which they specialize in their later years. The advanced courses in this department are for the benefit of those who have acquired a deep interest in the work, and wish to continue with it.

Physics, together with mathematics and chemistry, serve as a nucleus around which all scientific theory is centered. The tremendous advances which have been made in the fields of physics and chemistry during the last decade have brought these fields into the lime-light, and the constant interplay and co-ordination between the three fundamental sciences is largely responsible for our present scientific era.

The Department of Geology

BENJAMIN LEROY MILLER,
A.B., Ph.D.

THE earth's surface presents a physical history of the past indelibly written in its crusts, showing many stages and growths through which not only the earth itself, but mankind as well, have advanced through the years. The wresting of the history of nature from the earth, as well as determining the economic and intrinsic values of the minerals contained in its crust, is allotted to the science of geology.

The study of the science at Lehigh deals not only with the nature and value of the natural resources found entombed in the earth, and a study of the history of evolution, but also with a closer observation of the characteristics and manners of nature as well. Geologic time is measured in millions of year, and the process of the evolution of the earth and the life upon it began some 500,000,000 years ago. To the geologist falls the job of studying his science historically, and getting the records of the past that are stamped in the rocks.

In addition to the history of the earth, all geologic deposits having commercial value are studied in regard to formation, constituency, and methods of extracting. Physiography, another phase of the work of geology, deals with the effect of climate and physical conditions on the growth of countries. Practical courses are given to fit the students best for the work which they will undertake on graduation.

Field expeditions are regularly conducted to nearby quarries and deposits, in order to better understand the mining and manufacturing details. Inasmuch as the region around Bethlehem has an abundance of both mines and mills, the location is especially well adapted for the development of a strong department.

The Department of Military Science and Tactics

THE need for trained men was made so apparent during the World War, that the subject of citizen training during peace times became of prime importance. Lehigh, in line with the decision of other colleges, adopted a plan for compulsory military training during the first two years of undergraduate life, with the option of taking advanced work during the remaining two years. The response of the students to this decree was very heartening. Many of the students elected the advanced courses voluntarily after their first period of training, and at the present time there are over eight hundred students taking military training in the school.

Two units are maintained at the Lehigh branch of the R. O. F. C., one in advanced infantry, and the other in ordnance. The advanced work includes a six week camp during the summer, either at Camp Meade for those in the Infantry Corps, or at Aberdeen for those electing ordnance. The excellent training given in the course, and the fine co-operation of the students, has resulted in Lehigh being given a "distinguished rating" in the annual inspection held by the War Department, for the fifth time in six years.

HOWARD R. REITER, M. A.

A COLLEGE education embodies a complete training for the man about to embark upon his career. A tendency has developed among college men to relegate their physical development into the background and to place too much emphasis on their scholastic activities. It is here that the Department of Physical Education enters in as an important factor in university life. The function of the department is to insure that each student takes the proper care of his health by gaining the necessary exercise, so that he finishes college physically as well as mentally equipped to meet the problems of life.

This is accomplished at Lehigh by means of intercollegiate and intramural sports. Practically every man in the university participates in one of these. By participating, the student develops mentally; for never is the demand for cool reasoning and sound judgment more urgent than in the heat of an athletic contest. At the same time that he is bettering himself physically, every man gets into some activity from which he derives some pleasure or recreation. Finally, the business world of today is searching for men who possess leadership, and nowhere is this developed to such an extent as in athletics.

The Department of Research in Chemistry

FOR the first time in the history of the department of chemistry, a research department has been fully organized and endowed with proper instructors and equipment to carry on much needed work. Research has been done heretofore, but only as a side issue, and never in a specially organized body. Although still in its experimental stage, the department has shown much progress during its brief career, and promises to become permanently fixed. The top floor of the Chandler Chemistry building has been converted into special laboratories for the work, although much work is still done in the regular undergraduate laboratories.

Although the majority of the work in research is being conducted in the line of oils, paints, and varnishes, it is by no means limited to these fields alone. Graduates serving on fellowships in the department take outside work, in addition to their individual research problems, and are generally engaged in more than one activity at a time.

The apparatus for the department is very complete, and includes many new developments in the line of chemical equipment. Of especial interest is the new Coolidge tube which has been installed in the laboratory, being the sixth one produced in this country. With facilities becoming better each year, this department has a wonderful start toward becoming a vital part of the University.

History

WILLIAM BROWN BILLMEYER

WHEN the class of 1928 first assembled in September 1924, few of those present realized what was in store for them during the four years of their college career. Looking back over the years now, it seems at once a very short period and an indefinitely long time, since we stood in Packer Hall trying in vain to understand the complexities of registration. The forlorn feeling on entering the first classes, the rush down the steps from Packer Hall to the Library, while we tried in vain to keep our balance against an onslaught of books, hands and belts; then leap-frogging down the streets, rushing after dinks—all these have faded into a background of memories, being supplanted by various other feelings, step by step.

It is impossible to crowd the happenings, the activities, and the feelings that four long years at Lehigh has brought about, into one small page; but as other classes and other generations will search back through the records to find what has been done before them, we must leave a few notes, somber and uncolored, that will show, although only partially, what our class has accomplished.

Although our arrival was as unheralded as those arrivals before us, we soon discerned our purpose at Lehigh. We have learned to enjoy our first year, now that it is over; for that year proved us worthy of the years that were to follow. We won a majority of the Founder's Day sports from the Sophomores, thereby giving us the privilege of doffing our dinks on Sundays; we were the first class to organize the body that was known as the Freshman Y. M. C. A. Cabinet; we introduced smokers and dances during our first year; and we ended the year with a Class Banquet that made history. The history was made through the fact that we were the first class group to bombard an enemy stronghold in Banquet season, the missiles being eggs and the stronghold being the Hotel Allen.

While in our Sophomore year the glamor and lure of excitement had somewhat worn off, we again bested our competitors on Founder's Day, thereby breaking an age-old precedent of the lowest classmen winning. With willing hands we kept the formerly unruly Freshmen subdued. While the rest of our time was filled with activities, and our hearts were filled with the pride of being Sophomores, we soon began to realize that we were in the midst of a transition period at Lehigh.

A New University was springing up. A New Lehigh was in the making. Since the advent of a new administration, many changes had occurred. It was in our Junior year that the announcement of Mr. Packard's gift made possible the fulfillment of a long needed want, a new Mechanical and Electrical Laboratory. Other Alumni became more interested, and soon plans were under way for other improvements—an addition to the Library, new Dormitories, a new Auditorium, and many others. Christmas Hall and Saxon Hall had been combined during our Junior Summer and the Reconstructive period was under way. This feeling spread throughout the campus, with an accompanying improvement in organizations, bringing them up to new heights.

Now as Seniors, looking back over all that has been done during our stay here, and all that we have accomplished, we are thankful and grateful that it was our privilege not only to witness, but actually to be a part of, a great movement which is placing Lehigh more and more among the leaders of American Universities.

AS a person lost in thought, "Is" could take first prize. One can't figure out what he is thinking about, but it must be something important; perhaps he is figuring how he will make his first million. Well, deep thought never did a fellow harm, and it would do a lot of good if it were used for school work. Swell chance of that happening in this case. But just the same he does a great deal of course-crabbling if nothing else is on his mind.

"Is" is a fine fellow, sincere in what he says and means. When he finds he is wrong he will admit it frankly. When he knows he is right you can't argue him out of it. That's the old fight!

When he reaches the top of his career, as a doctor of medicine, there is no doubt he'll be well partitioned. He is sociable and gay when he wants to. His patients will find him a great healer of wounds, no doubt.

DONALD, otherwise known as "Duffy," came directly from Orange High School and arrived here as innocent as could be, that is considering he came from Orange.

"Duffy" immediately turned towards track as his athletic activity, to keep his mind from wandering thru Bethlehem. How well he succeeded in this can be found out by asking any one of his classmates. Cross Country was his favorite sport.

Of course one can't stick to athletics all the time, we're all human he would say. After his first year he began to get a broader outlook. During his years as an upper classman, he blazed a beaten path to the vicinity of Delaware Avenue. This was not a bad decision on his part for many of us think the Hospital is a much needed place.

As for the boy himself he is a mighty likable chap. Whoever missed that flashing smile while passing on the Campus or who did not enjoy that Scotch wit. He is almost always brimming over with optimism.

Satisfied that activities mould a man Charley kicked on the soccer field for several seasons. Going from one end to the other he belloyed deep notes so Carusically that he travelled with the musical clubs for three years. As a result he became acquainted with some of the northern Jersey femmes. Consequently bachelorhood is no longer thought of as Utopia.

Those locks, that smile and the pleasing voice plus what Whitey has salvaged from four years of concentrated ease will all be excellent constituents when Charley hits the world with an I. E. degree.

"RAY" takes his life in his hands when he has a graduate of an arch rival high school write his biography. But such has been his optimism throughout his college life, shadowed occasionally, however, by fears that he did not pass this or that quiz. However he has always come thru and has shown himself to be an excellent student and a hard worker.

In spite of this tendency toward the serious side of college life, he has found some time for sports, both indoor and outdoor. He seems to have been more successful in the former.

As a freshman, he arrived as most freshmen do; with a serious affair in the home town and for two years, almost every week end found him on the 12:10 and sometimes on the 1:40 from Philly. Lately, however his ardor has changed and the trips have become less frequent.

"Ray" is serious in life, sport and love; optimistic, argumentative and ambitious; a well-met fellow who is destined to make his mark and of whom one may be proud to claim as a friend.

HERE he is. The H. S. of his initials we will leave to your own imagination. Four years ago he came from the wilds of southern Penna. where he was the reigning sheik. In his Freshmen year, he devoted his time to study in order to gain the confidence of a suspicious faculty. The remaining three years were spent in the study of human nature as personified by the fair damsels of Bethlehem; and many a broken heart was left behind. The cause of all this may be attributed to a car which presented a way and means of getting around. By daylight he is intent on business; by moonlight, well, that is another story. The temptation of a week end trip has been known to drag Harry out of bed early on a Sunday morn. All in all he is a chap of a loving disposition. Four years at Lehigh have brought his technique to a high degree of excellence. His motto is: They're all the same to me.

ALTHOUGH Barney has made a gallant stand to cover up his past life we have at last discovered the inevitable; he hails from Girardville, Penna., the heaven of the coal crackers and slate sliders. Who could ever imagine that those alluring blue eyes and that blond curly hair came out of such an ungodly region?

Despite this handicap, however, Barney caused the fluttering of many an innocent girl's heart during the years he patronized Asa Packer's institution of learning and other unimportant frivolities. Then, too, it would be unfair not to mention the marvelous statistics compiled by Barney on intercollegiate football. It is hardly conceivable that one man should sponsor so many losing teams.

But in all seriousness Barney's time at Lehigh has been far from wasted. We are sure that some day his ability to analyze industrial conditions will place him in a conspicuous position among the leaders of the business world.

FOUR years ago there arrived on Lehigh's campus a young Southerner who entertained us with wonderful tales of his dear Virginia. None other than "Ed" Barnitz, with his stories of beautiful Virginia girls and corn liquor.

As soon as he got here tho, he started to make a name for himself. He has been on the wrestling squad, and has learned to throw other things than bull. In his studies he ranks among the first, just ask up in the Chem. building. Besides these activities, "Ed" has found occasional time for that very interesting subject, "The ladies." There's lots to tell but we can't give away too much. These hot blooded Southerners sure can throw a mean neck.

"Ed" has made a big success at Lehigh and we know he'll do the same in later life. With that pleasant southern drawl and the smile that goes with it, he'll make friends everywhere. We know you'll make good "Ed", and wish you all the luck in the world.

COLLEGE! That magic word back in '23 caused the gods to drop a big blond viking on our soot covered campus. Thoroughly frightened, reticent and obedient, he diligently sought what the more hard-boiled, humorously term—education. This business of learning, however, began to pall on him and outside activities demanded more of his time. His untiring efforts were rewarded with the managership of frosh basketball.

At this time construction work appealed to Bart and for one term he put a flock of bohunks through their paces daily, but college, its activities, scholastic, social and athletic, lured him back more experienced but, better equipped. B. F. X. meetings were attended less conscientiously although the knack of doing a bottoms up has not been lost. Lacrosse was no longer a relaxation but a means of representing Lehigh on the field of sport and to see him flying around with an upraised stick suggested that he might have had an ancestor who was quite adept at handling a club. On the whole, college has been a means of expressing himself and we might add, his versatility extends far into the social field.

We shan't make any predictions about his future but we believe he has the necessary stuff and the ability to use it. As for the women, well figure it out for yourself.

FOUR years ago Paul's Dad said to him, "Son, I am sending you to Lehigh to broaden yourself," and Paul manfully answered, "Yes, Dad, it is all for a bigger and better Lehigh." Ever since then we have found in Paul a staunch supporter of our Alma Mater. However, all of Paul's supporting has not been directed in educational channels and we find evidence of his activities in various sorts of extra-curricula activities.

Paul's chief delight in life is attacking his accounting problems and how he does love to add up the columns. In fact he is so adept in this occupation that we predict he will become a C. P. A.

However, no matter what he becomes we will always remember Paul's smiling face and his cheerfulness, not to mention his quiet manners and high ideals.

CLYDE, or "Dutch" as the above person is better known, entered Lehigh four years ago along with hundreds of other youths who came to Lehigh in search of higher education. A quiet but friendly manner won him many friends in Bethlehem, as he advanced successively through the four periods of tempering and learning, until he reached his present status.

"Dutch" did not waste his time at Lehigh. In addition to accumulating many friends, he engaged heartily in outside activities, and held a good scholastic record besides—thus keeping the perfect balance. At many a game has his voice been heard, leading the students in inspiring cheers. Although his college life has been a very busy one, he still found time to engage in lighter affairs, such as, numerous out of town visits, and non-stop telephone conversations.

It would be impossible to predict anything but a successful future for Clyde, judging not only by past achievements, but also by personality and ability. The least and the most that can be said is "Best luck, Dutch".

HAILING from out where the west begins, John entered with the Class of 1928 bent upon becoming a Mechanical Engineer and after four years of hard work he has attained that goal. Much of his spare time the last three years has been spent on the soccer field and now he is the proud wearer of an "L" awarded in that sport. The large attendances at the M. E. Meets were due primarily to John's very successful efforts as Chairman of the Eats Committee.

His extra-curricula activities along social lines have been numerous. He has contributed liberally to the support of the "Collic", "McAleys", and the Colonial. In order that his education might not be limited to technical subjects alone, he has shown quite an interest in school teachers and has taken a correspondence course at a well known girls' college.

With the perseverance and ability he has shown while here at Lehigh, we can safely say that there is a brilliant future before him in the engineering world. Good luck to you,

IN THE fall of '24 a lad from the shores of the dreamy Hudson, but north of Rip Van Winkle's shrine, forsook the great colleges of his native state, and following Horace Greeley's time-honored advice to youth, came west to absorb business subjects in an engineering environment. To get a more comprehensive training, however, he spent several summers midst the turmoil of the metropolis, but not in the Wall Street sector.

The efforts of the brothers to the contrary, "our Stevie" still maintains Poughkeepsie is all right, although it does sound bad. But Vassar, which we did not know was a correspondence school, is located in Pos-skip-sky too, which may or may not mean anything.

"Steve's" versatility is revealed by the fact that he is also a man's man. He likes sports and the movies and has done his bit around college, his last service being that of Arcadia secretary. But he has impressed all his associates by his quiet, unassuming, good-natured manner which has won him a host of friends. His qualities of leadership are evidenced by a commendable record as head of his living group. "Steve's" personality constitutes an asset which should surely help him to make good in life—just as he did at Lehigh.

WITH a scholarship earned during four years at Bethlehem Prep, George entered Lehigh in the ranks of the superiorly intelligent. But, as Aesop said so many years ago, a flying start doesn't mean much if you drag later on. Hence, after a year and a half as a Mechanical, George said good-bye to his friends and returned to Hellertown. For three ensuing years he indulged in practical work at the Bethlehem Steel Company, and then decided that for a man of his inclinations, school was a better place to spend time. Accordingly, he reentered Lehigh and astounded the instructors with his ambition and perseverance. But in spite of his brilliant comeback he had conferred upon him the title of "Champion Flunkout". This, of course, was just a bit of witticism on the part of his fellow sufferers at the summer surveying camp. George is not wholly addicted to studies, but for the other side of his life he blames nature. He claims that he is not responsible for the sex appeal that entranced the tender element of Stroudsburg. If present ability is any indication of future success, George will soon be ranking high as a conquering Civil.

BACK in September 1924, a somewhat bewildered Fresh arrived at Mr. Lehigh's College, from the wild and notorious land Harrisburg. The upper classmen were quick to notice his rather forlorn appearance, and promptly dubbed him, "the Orphan".

However, after a few days of judicious training by the upper classmen, Maurice became a leader of the Fresh, in doing the town. To this day he has never lost his fondness for the local "rat races", but we are sure that his purposes are of the nobler type. Maurice has retained the qualities of leadership which he acquired as a Fresh and his capacity for maintaining a good scholastic standing, with a minimum amount of work, is nothing short of astounding.

It used to be quite a task for Maurice to write letters, but since last year a great change has come over him, and all of those letters go to the same place. Well—we wish you luck.

Next year should find him playing the role of one of the famed "Civile" Engineers and his pleasing personality and unquestioned ability, will no doubt bring him great success.

He hails from the Monumental City, how the ladies ever let him loose is a mystery to us. We suspicion he left at midnight on a moonless night. Outside of his conquests among the fair sex "Joe" has other failings, one of them being fencing. Many are the poor Freshmen who wended their way from the gym with sore ribs, their number being comparable only to the number of fair ones who have left the "Ark" in the same condition.

All fooling aside though, "Joe" is a hard worker and of a cheery disposition, as his many friends will testify, so we prophesy nothing but success for him as an Electrical Engineer.

Ben was not only very conscientious in his scholastic work, and a good student, but also attained laurels on the Basket Ball Team. As a regular for two years, he did much to make our team the distinguished one that it is.

Socially he was quite the Menjou. When the Bethlehem damsels became tiring, Ben very exasperatedly had his fling in Reading, where he is the idol of the weaker sex. All said by his friend, Ben is an all-around fine chap and sure to do wonders when he leaves Lehigh's portals.

AT THE tender age of sixteen, little "Chollie" set out to win his spurs in college. He first went to taste the fruits of deep learning at Columbia University. This school being too large for little "Chollie" to form the acquaintances he had hoped for, he left for Lehigh, where he hoped to obtain both knowledge and a series of lasting friendships.

Here his ability to play on the "fiddle" won him a seat in the college orchestra. This he managed to hang on to for two years. His gift of gab also won for him some recognition of his oratory.

Now after four years of college life, "Chollie" has managed to grow up into a state of sophistication. He has supposedly been imbued with the spirit of Lehigh. May it help him carry on in his future work.

"Chollie" has made many lasting friends while at college and his friendship is valued and highly appreciated by all those who really know him. We are sure he will become worthy of the name "An alumnus of Lehigh".

WHEN John first came to Lehigh, we were immediately impressed by his complete disregard of the fair sex. Knowing Scranton and Bethlehem we commended his attitude. But after four years of association with him we found we were wrong. We have had it brought to our attention that he has been spending an average of twelve hours a week in writing letters. These letters are mailed to all parts of the country but are always sent to the same person. It is not for us to record our conclusions here. John's love for music is something we do not understand. He cannot play or sing a note, yet he listens to music, especially vocal music, by the hour. "By The Waters of Minnetonka" will bring him out of the soundest sleep or deepest concentration.

To be a little more serious, we do not know where we have met a better fellow than "Jack". His success and popularity while in college, coupled with his consideration for others and his untiring efforts in whatever project he is interested, show that he will be a leader wherever he may be.

WHERE is my Meyer?", that's what we can expect to hear Mrs. W. B. Billmeyer, Jr., asking in a few months. He sure is a sheik why we almost lost him at the end of our Junior year. It all happened this way: Finding society life rather dull at Newport and Coney Island during the Summer months, Bill decided to spend his vacation in the West. After many thrilling adventures with the cowboys and Indians they finally arrived at Hollywood. They were given a great reception by the boys, and were entertained in the homes of all the famous stars of the cinema world. Then a dire rumor flew eastward and spread gloom on the Lehigh campus: the President of the Senior class might not return to school, for a great movie actor was looking for an understudy. Bill was tempted, but no—he remembered his Alma Mater, his Mother, and his girl—back East he sped, for God, Country, and Lehigh! Well, boys, "Bill" is really a good fellow and has been a mighty good pilot for the good ship Twenty-eight. FRESH from the gridiron and the books, "Norm" entered upon his Pre-Medical career at Lehigh. At first sight he was taken to be a very serious fellow with very serious intentions tacked away behind his dark tortoise-shell binoculars. But, a moment later "Bitt" laughed and everybody laughed with him. As they say in Suisse Beslechem, it was darn catching.

"Bitt's" smile was a big asset to the Pre-Med. Society, for with it he could make even the secretary's report and treasurer's receipt most interesting.

Once upon a time Norbert entertained ambitions of becoming a great doctor. Schooled first in a text of homoeopathy, he turned to his now famous cure for all ill quinine.

Bittrich has been going up to St. Luke's quite a bit lately. We wonder why? It might be some "ma-lady". Scholastically "Bitt" has been coming along great. Bacteriology and quinine seem to be a great mixture and we have no doubt but what some day, Bittrich will be prescribing quinine for every ailment from effects of horse-back riding to halitosis.

Well "Norbert" here's wishing you the height of success in your profession.

BACK in the fall of 1922, a young fellow by the name of Frank Bogerman grabbed a High School diploma in one hand and his courage in both and decided to set the world on fire. After a couple of years of earnest endeavor, under the glowering eye of a hard boiled boss, he decided that education—even Chemical Engineering was a path of roses compared to earning one's way. With this idea in mind, he finally matriculated at Lehigh.

Since being here, he has devoted himself to several occupations, one of which was the afore mentioned Chemical Engineering. Among his side lines, he has taken up the bass-horn and bass-singing (not sarcastic).

It has been suggested that Frank occupied his time in the interval between the completion of his High School course and his advent at Lehigh in sailing the bounding main. This he strongly denies however and claims his nautical walk to be the product of the hill-climbing induced by Bethlehem topography.

BIG Black Laugh! Heh! Heh! Heh! Sure folks, you all have heard of the great Sesqui-Centennial that was held in York, Pennsylvania, last Fall? Well, do you know why that was held? In commemoration of the city's greatest event in all time, the birth of Jack Kemble Bolton! Yes-sir-ee! And it wasn't any ordinary stork that brought Jack, either, —it was an eagle, pterodactyl or some other unusual sort of a bird. How do we know that? Why, isn't Jack an unusual sort of a fellow? Anybody that belongs to the Mustard and Cheese Club and doesn't flunk out of college is certainly an unusual person. Well Jack not only refused to be flunked out, but he even went so far as to make Tau Beta Pi! Yes! Honest! That's unheard of, isn't it? I bet it made the Dean sore when he heard that there was a Mustard and Cheeser in Tau Beta! But good old York sure was proud to have such an extraordinary honor bestowed on one of her sons. Some of the natives aren't sober yet. Dame Rumor has it that they are going to make him Mayor at the next election. And believe me, boys, that is some town to be Mayor of! But in spite of all these handicaps, gentlemen, Jack really is a H - - l of a nice fellow. BILL P. Booker was born March 30, 1905 in Vivian, West Virginia, at which time he let out a rather loud squak; and 21 years later, the old saying "Practice makes perfect" proves true, for his squawking has improved tremendously.

In the fall of 1921 the "Old Alma Mater" was honored by the enrollment of "Billy Boy" himself. That fatal day was the beginning of a new era. Bill was off in the pursuit of knowledge. Poor, misguided, green freshman! After four years, he has learned that knowledge may be pursued but never captured.

"Bill" is now at the point in life when he must shave once a week. Ah! youth blooming forth into manhood. His eyes are beginning to open; he is developing new tastes; his capacity is increasing don't you dare to strike me with that (funnel). OUR immigrant from Brooklyn, Ignatius, has created quite a furor in the ranks since slipping by the Custom officers in the Dean's office and proceeding to baffle the pros for four long years. His remarkable likeness to John Gilbert has been the cause of much scratching and hair pulling in all parts of the Lehigh Valley and points West. Not content with his conquests among the fair sex a truly great victory, he has risen to higher levels on the athletic field. His powerful arms and Adonis physique, which helped him in his first venture, now were employed to keep Lehigh in the sport limelight. His ability to get them in the groove has caused many a batter to swing in despair and has also pulled his old Alma Mater into the lead and victory. Although, slightly handicapped by his lack of weight he has done his share in football and has caused quite a bit of worry for the opponents by his ability to scintillate in a broken field.

Always with a ready smile, a good word, and a certain alertness, "Ig" will undoubtedly rise to great heights, as high even as our opinion is of him and our hopes for him.

HERE we have "Jack" who hails from south of the Mason and Dixon Line. Besides being a good student Jack has attained some success as an athlete, having been one of "Jing" Johnson's famous "hissers". Apart from all this he is a Beau Brummel with the ladies, they claim that he has "it". Since procuring the "Ark" as a means of transportation he is never seen walking on the campus and in addition has become quite an explorer. He now knows all the back roads and their side lanes for a radius of fifteen miles around Bethlehem. Many fair ones from both Bethlehem and Allentown have ridden over these roads under Jack's tender care, and how. Although Jack studied Electrical Engineering at Lehigh it wouldn't at all surprise us to see him turn to aviation for that is where his interest lies.

TO LIVE in Bethlehem was not a new treat for "Mart", as he had been working in the steel works for two years previous to his entrance at Lehigh. Aspiring to be a steel king, "Mart" left the steel plant to get an education, which would help him attain the position he desired.

In 1924 he became known as a "college boy" and has lived up to this name ever since. To a stranger, this young feller, 5' 4" tall, might be taken for a high school boy. But "Mart" has proven that one does not have to be a "brute" to get along. It makes little difference to "Mart" how big they are, he "kicks" them all and it is hard to tell whether he is serious or not. He wasn't permitted to take M. S. & T. because they couldn't find any one short enough to stand beside him. Mart never did quite recover from that severe blow.

With his good natured personality he has won the respect of all those who know him and altho he has not an athletic record to boast of he has made friendships that he will carry thru life. The best of luck "Mart".

LADIES and gentlemen, we present for attention the biggest man in Lehigh; biggest certainly in advirdupois, for Louis moves the Fairbanks at some unprecedented figure, and biggest in genuine all-around good fellowship, as witnessed by his unnumbered host of friends.

"Lou" has played the conquering hero's role during most of his four years with us. Homesickness was the first hurdle to be taken, for apparently Greensburg has its attractions, then physiognomy offered a mighty barrier to be scaled, and now the only thing which keeps our Louis from All-American grid fame is that he refuses to get angry often enough. His spacious figure has been a fixture on Lehigh clevers for some years, and, win or lose, his conduct has always exemplified Lehigh sportsmanship in its best phase. We will feel a keen sense of loss at "Lou's" departure, firm in the conviction that the University loses a man whose heart is as large as his body.

In his freshman year "Walt" started off in his social activities, for which he received the name of "social lion" and also he was known throughout the campus for his grit in athletics.

To say that "Walt" is the serious type would be putting it mild and to those of us who know him it would sound ridiculous. It is true however, that he has his lighter moments as we all do but with "Walt" they are different. Everything he goes into he does it wholeheartedly and you can be sure that the enterprise will be well accomplished if he is to take part.

With his everlasting smile and never-say-die spirit "Walt" is certain to be successful in whichever line of business he chooses to enter. We are predicting a bright future for you "Walt"—Best of Luck.

SINCE 1924 Lehigh University has been inflicted with the caprices of this "swell, dandy, big, football player" hailing from West Pittston where men are coal crackers and women fight with crow bars. It was because of this cultural background that "Tommy" has been under the illusion that he is a football player. While in College, he only achieved being the captain of the team, which is a small matter and perhaps should not be mentioned were it not for the fact that he was one of the sweetest little Irish ends that have cavorted about the Taylor Stadium during the last two years.

Although "Tommy" has a passion for politics, he presumes to become a lawyer, but never-the-less politics will get him soon or late. Pass the Cigars boys, Burke for President!

DURING his Freshman year he did not know what it was all about. You see these Bethlehem dames are different; but after a year's observation on the bridge he was ready for college life. He certainly has a way with girls which we can't duplicate even with four years of association. During his Soph and Junior years, we knew we could find him at St. Luke's if his flivver was absent. We have heard of forty nights of rain, but never of simply "forty nights". His Senior year represents the pinnacle along this line which is narrow but long. They fell one after another, sometimes several at a time, like tenpins. Bud's motto is certainly "Love 'em and leave 'em."

Now don't get the idea that "Bud" was not studious, for he always studied when there was nothing else to do. He was busy all the time with something or other. His motto expression is "I'm busy now."

"GOOD morning-fellows—Gosh, Just about caught the train again this morning." Yes, this is his usual line. He seems to have changed the old adage to: "Early to bed and late to rise." The mere act of getting started on his studies in the evening has been one of his hardest problems in college. However, when necessity demands, "Bill" usually produces the goods. His work when finished is generally neat and correct. These qualities neatness and exactness and his extreme punctuality (????) are some of his characteristics.

When not wrestling with his school work, "Bill" may be found busily engaged in other activities in and around the old home town. We are told that his voice is now being used for other purposes than cheering at our football games—he is said to be a regular attendant at "chorus classes". His progress is said to have been good but we know he'll never make a singer.

"Bill's" interest in athletics never wanes. He's usually well posted on the latest news in all sports—but he's nearly always wrong. We all have a suspicion that one of the fair sex has some part to play in his little game—but try as we might, we can extract no information on the subject. In the outside world we pronounce him a good "jack-of-all-trades". However, we hope he will not try to embrace too much.

IT WAS back in the days, when racoon coats were limited to racoons, beer was drunk out of glass aquariums with handles, and Lehigh used to knock the "I." out of — you guessed it—that the Lehigh bug bit "Bob". To the uninitiated, we must confess that it was a bad bite. He determined to graduate from the institution even if it meant studying now and then.

After the passing of years and money, he was ultimately enrolled. Having a pair of high-topped boots on hand, he decided to take Civil Engineering. Despite the fact that the boots have long since gone the way of all hide, "Bob's" early passion has not forsaken him. In a statement bitterly protested by the moving picture interests and the advertising concerns, he declared that some engineers do their best work in goloshes.

In regard to "Bob's" future, we who know him entertain no fears. His natural qualities assure success. As a gentleman, he ranks 100 per cent; as a sportsman, he is par plus; as a friend, he is supreme.

IF YOU can imagine a man, handsome, care-free and dashing, you have your mental atmosphere prepared for the introduction of "The Swede". Direct from counting pennies in a New York City bank, (and he insists it was a big institution) "Ole" came to Lehigh. Just why a man of such fascination selected Lehigh we don't know, but it is generally believed that "Nails" Carothers sent for him, all of which sounds plausible.

Carl looked upon his studies as one of the minor evils of a college education. They were to be tolerated but were not to interfere with important things. Consequently, he devoted so much of his time to activities that he is now searching for girls to wear his numerous anchors.

Journalism holds the "Swede's" interest, he thinks the country needs more "inside dope". We wish him success in publishing the almanac.

HERE we have another lad who started college with the handicap of "hailing" from the "mosquito state". "Sam" decided early in life to come to Lehigh and be an engineer, rather than go to Rutgers and learn farming, thereby establishing a precedent in Flemington. One would hardly call him lazy, but, suffice it to say, he is a firm believer in the Law of Conservation of Energy, and wastes no more time on study than is absolutely necessary, the remainder, however, being well occupied with other and more attractive diversions, chief of which seem to be "The Saturday Evening Post" and Saturday night dates in Allentown. At any rate, it is a safe bet that he will go to work for a living - but not until all other means have failed. Although "Sam's" musical propensities may be limited, his frequent visits to the Maennerchor show that he has interests along the vocal line.

We are in ignorance of the line of endeavor "Sam" will follow after graduation (though he has been heard to say that his ambition is to travel) but we feel sure that no matter what field he enters, his unfailing good humor, to say nothing of ability, will insure his success.

"JESS" was handicapped from birth by his environment. Who knows what he might be now had he not been born in Lockport, N. Y.? Although "Jess" never attained the great heights of President of the United States, King of Spain, Earl of Pembroke, or Janitor of the Chem. Building, it isn't because he hasn't the qualities or couldn't command the votes, but merely because he didn't choose to run. Nevertheless he has been prominent in club circles ever since he picked the locks of Lockport. The clubs just couldn't get along without "Jess", their most prominent club man. When he graduates (if he should live that long), even the Bethlehem Police Force will have to dispose of their clubs.

"Jess" is a jolly good fellow. He can always see the dark side of things, but he seems to find them quite amusing, at least his hearty laugh gives us that impression. We hope that "Jess" will retain that famous laugh throughout life. And next year, when he is Mayor of Lockport, we might expect to hear him say: "The old town's sure going to h-h-ha! Ha! Ha! Ha!"

TWENTY-ONE years ago last Tuesday come Michaelmas the bells and sirens of Oil City informed a waiting world that a stork had flown over the village and left "Peep" Chickering on the door step. It is reported by onlookers that he was wearing spikes at the time. During his younger days, he shone as a boy scout and won merit badges in tomahawk throwing and solving cross word puzzles.

With a desire to round out his education he boarded the rattle for our "college town" and arrived wearing a vest and a top coat. He subscribed to "Vanity Fair" and under the tutelage of Joe Gish succeeded in becoming cosmopolitan as the best. While in Lehigh, "Chick" has distinguished himself in many ways and his engaging personality has won him a host of friends whose best wishes accompany him out into the world.

"JERRY" came to Lehigh in the fall of '24 after a successful year at Dartmouth. His ardent desire to favor the engineering world with his genius brought about the change.

Civil engineering is his chosen field; but ah! I must add here that there is another field that often receives his undivided attention. Being a keen student of feminine psychology, he delves deeply into the intricacies of the feminine mind and emerges less puzzled than most men. He even employs this talent in letter writing and his success can be measured by the perspiration on "Davey's" brow after toting "Jerry's" morning mail up the hill.

This invaluable asset can do much toward making a man's life a success, but with "Jerry's" other inherent sterling qualities we see only long bright years waiting for him.

TWENTY-ONE years ago there appeared in the Cigol family one who was destined to grow up (to 6 feet) and become a student at Lehigh. After spending seventeen long years in the wilds of North Jersey he finally succeeded in reaching this famous institution. Soon after matriculation "Ev" developed a particular hatred (like many others) for the Military Science Department. They thought a lot of him though, even attempting to give him and seven other students a special sergeant for individual instruction. "Ev" is fond of "wisecracks" and what he calls music. Whenever he attempted to put forth vocal efforts on a selection none of those within hearing, that is within a mile, enjoyed the occasion and promptly voiced their disapproval. Unworried and independent, however, he goes through life. We must predict a future for him—most people have one. "Ev's" present ambitions seem to be to lead a "life of Reilly" as long as possible.

IN THE fall of 1924, Lehigh was thrown into confusion due to the fact that this "Freemansburg Wonder" had decided to honor Lehigh by his presence. He came from Bethlehem High with a good scholarly reputation and endeavored to uphold it at Lehigh. The lure of the test tube and the call of the beaker made him select Ch. E. as his battleground. He came through the first registration in good condition and started off with a bang. Although he still stands high in his class, his interests have turned to other than scholarly matters due to the large number of parties held in and around Freemansburg. He is extremely busy during the baseball season since he is on the pitching staff of the Freemansburg team in the city league. He also made a strong bid for a berth on the Lehigh Varsity, having played on the Fresh team. He can frequently be found on a Saturday night in that surging mass of humanity over at Mealey's.

In all his laboratory work Clarke has proven himself to be a capable man and should prove to be a success in the chemical field.

PAUSE here, ladies and gentlemen, and note the innocent and benevolent expression on the face of this versatile young man. Of course, it is fashionable, when one desires to praise anonymously a public character, to reflect his traits and accomplishments in an impersonal manner. However, I fear we must be a wee bit personal for just a moment in order that the fairer sex will not be disillusioned upon meeting him. He is not the least bit sympathetic towards soprano voices.

Frank spent his boyhood days in Joplin, Mo., coming East to blaze a path of glory at Mercersburg, and later at Lehigh. With natural ability combined with lots of energy, Frank has already made quite a name for himself, and we may safely predict that his future will be most profitable and pleasant.

COLLEGE years pass quickly for almost everyone, because they are probably the happiest years in one's life. For "Cleve", they must have been exceptionally speedy because he has the unique distinction of being one of the few persons who are completely and continually good natured.

Coming to Lehigh from New London, which we believe is somewhere in Connecticut, "Cleve" soon made himself known as one of the most versatile members of the class. From the time of his first awakening to true College Spirit in his Freshman year, when an over zealous Sophomore gently dropped a bucket of varnish on his head, and which "Cleve" claims he is still cleaning out, "Cleve" has shown us all how a student can be a good scholar and a good sport. We say a good sport because "Cleve" has been a member of the squad on every athletic team supported by the school, and all joshing aside he can really play the games almost as well as he talks them.

All of us agree that "Cleve" is either going to marry money or accidentally strike an oil well, and in the event that both of these fail he might try to make a living for himself.

THIS particular outstanding member of the outstanding class of 1928 is another protégé of "the oily regions". Born twenty-one years ago at Oil City, Pennsylvania, "Art" brought into the world with him a pleasing personality, a smoothness of manner, and a decided penchant for the opposite sex. It is an established fact that "Art" wore the derby first, at Lehigh. This was just part of the organized effort that "Dinger" puts up in his travesty of heart breaking. In fact, one summer, "Art", starting at York, Pa., trailed broken-hearts behind him even as far as Hollywood. No, Greta Garbo was not his victim there, but he and his fellow traveler, also a prominent member of '28 had a goodly number of "affairs" to their credit when they turned their backs on the fair city. This is, however, mere exaggeration and what was meant to be said in the first place is that "Art" is held in the highest esteem by his fellow-classmen.

Wishing to assimilate a "fine" "Bill" signed up with the M. E.'s but after listening to the trials and tribulations of the embryonic engineers for a year he decided to become a millionaire under the tutelage of "Doc" Carothers. The inevitable happened, Bill became the All-American propounder of statistical theories which were lauded to the skies by Prof. Glover.

Still, we find him human for with his desire for receiving an education there was intermingled the enthusiasm of recreation. Ancient Fords, long antiquated, and an Indian motorcycle gave "Bill" great pleasure and the Bethlehem cops much exercise when they appeared on the road.

In spite of these proclivities he leaves the boys with the best wishes for continued success.

UNLIKE the Assyrians, William Eugene came down (from Wilkes-Barre) cautiously, and with a great deal of timidity esconced himself on our campus. His reputation as a singer preceded him and we waited impatiently for this song-bird to do his stuff. Never shall we forget his rendition of Berlins' "What'll I do". He knocked the customers off their seats, and how! But, after much persuasion, we succeeded in dissuading this charming coal-cracker from pursuing a career of song that was, to say the least, suicidal; so "Bill" bought a set of drums and organized the "Nativity Discords".

However, we find "Bill" a hard worker, possessing a keen sense of humor, and of unfailing good nature. His optimism is reflected in the threat that he will sell some course-crabbing engineer a student tour to Europe. He has no definite plans for the future although, like Caesar, he is ambitious; and just to be different we shall not predict. As for the matrimonial handicap "Bill" says he does not choose to run; but time will tell.

OLD "Tim" and a winning smile are synonymous, some would say. It seems, at least to those of us who know him, that neither could be present without the other. From this you might surmise that he posess a fine personality—To an infinite degree would better express our thoughts.

With an asset such as this there is little wonder that "Tim" is popular with both sexes. It has been said that to be popular with the women is a handicap in the race for the substantial, worthwhile things in life, but here is the exception to this rule. It is a well known fact that C. Vaughn Converse has at least a half interest in the Bethlehem-Allentown line which might possibly have been suggested by a certain someone.

As for his college work, Vaughn has been ambitious; he has been a hard worker in spite of many set-backs, which goes to prove that you can't keep a good man down. In the future I know that he will be able to write "Why I have been a success".

EARLY in life, Frank's natural precocity asserted itself, when after thoughtful consideration of a cigarette advertisement, he announced that he would be a Civil Engineer. In due time he came to Lehigh.

The logical training which Engineering and Harry Fretz imparted, rapidly convinced him that Big Business received more attention from Lady Fortune than Big Bridges. After making thorough investigation in regard to the refund value of his slide rule, he turned to pursue his natural bent.

His versatility now began to display itself in another field. Despite the fact that Lehigh is not co-ed, he fell in love. The verb "fall" is a poor explanation of the actual facts. Romeo's little affair with Juliet compared with this is a lurch of "hoovey" and "piffle". (Ten thousand busts of Shakespeare would rock dangerously on as many marble pieces if the facts were made known.) With his permission, however, we may quote him as follows: "Fountain Hill means more to me than Bunker Hill meant to Howe."

Frank's musical ability, wit and genuine sincerity has won him the commendations of many friends on and off the campus and they join in wishing him the deserving honor and success which is his due.

JOHNN Addison Covert was born in the Quaker City in 1904. Not being contented with the slow life of the Quakers he went west. It is rumored that he had intentions of going clear to the Pacific Coast, but he got lost in the smoke going through Pittsburgh and wandered around the Smoky City for several years before returning to Philadelphia.

As his middle name denotes, Addy is the "Addison" of the modern age. As the original Addison was famous for his Spectator, so our modern Addison is famous for his Burr. As pile-it of Burro, "Ad" has been a staunch defender of the younger generation. The Burr has been outstanding in the field of College publications, and a great deal of credit is due to "Addy" for making a real success out of his magazine in the face of rather adverse conditions and unfair criticisms. "Cov's" literary powers have been evidenced in more than one field on the campus, as was shown by his election to the office of Managing Editor of the Brown and White. "Addy" has been a prominent club man in his undergraduate days, and we trust that he shall continue to wield a big club as an alumnus. All of us, including his pet Burro and Joe Alope and I this man Zilch, wish him God speed and the best of luck on his missions in the cold, cold world.

JOHN comes from Coudersport, Pa. Of course no one ever heard of the town, but he will tell you that the President of this company, or the owner of that factory resides there, just as much as to say, some famous people live there, so it must be a good place in which to live.

From all accounts and appearances, "Jack", as he is familiarly known by the girls of Bethlehem, Allentown, Easton and outlying towns, has practiced the sentiment of the old song, "We all came to college, but, etc." And when the girls accuse him of "tearing around", he tells them that he does not.

He likes to sleep during spare moments, and of course it may be a late orchestra rehearsal, but you may draw your own conclusions.

Be that as it may, the fact remains that John is good natured, generous, an interesting companion and a friend of whom one may be proud.

IT WAS a case of "Aw hell, I live too near Princeton to go there" that brought Scoop to Lehigh. (Those who have not heard of Pennington, New Jersey, will please consult a map of said commonwealth.) However, while not saying anything against his Alma Mater, he's been heard to say words to the effect that he wished he lived nearer home—at least since his sophomore year. He gets a letter from her every day, though.

Scoop first came into prominence at his initial freshman teaparty where he earned the sobriquet of "the boy in the sunshine bathrobe." Being of an enterprising nature he elected the business course much to the horror of his friends, the engineers. He survived the fearful ordeal (?) of his course and is all set to make at least 10,000 a year when he graduates.

In view of Scoop's past achievements we sincerely hope that his college career will prove to be a criterion of his future success. He leaves, a B. S., thoroughly liked and a friend of whom to be proud.

LEARNING didn't seem to come to "Phil", so he just came to learning on the mountain, like the celebrated Arabian, from his home in the sticks of Fountain Hill. Since the family has moved to New York, and then to Philadelphia, "Phil" seems to have taken on a metropolitan—possibly cosmopolitan—air, the sort befitting the college man. It's all a kind of deceitful veneer, however, for "Phil" isn't really the hardened sophisticate at heart: he's neither a misanthrope nor a misogynist, neither a philanthropist nor an anarchist. He merely goes about his business, between clinks, trying to do his bit and receive his reward.

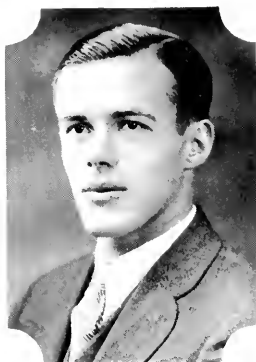

Our friend has done well with the contests of college life—in the classroom, on the field, in the parlor, at the bar. His past will be recalled in years to come as one of color, charm, excitement, pensiveness, and fascination.

We can't say where "Phil" will go when he leaves us. The folds of law, insurance, accounting all beckon to him, holding success for his achievement. It doesn't matter where he goes, some day we will meet again and greet him as the same old good fellow well met.

FRANK L. Deitchler Jr., from Upper Darby, Pa., is the original and only woman hater. He came here four years ago all primed to smash Lehigh's scholastic records, but Fate withheld her trump card until the last trick was boarded. The temptation of throwing the bull grew too heavy to resist, and "Frankie" went the way of all good Lehigh men. Then the band opened its arms and embraced our chaste bull shooter. Atlas! the crowning surprise broke forth when "Dike" crashed out in a party. Girls, ah yes, Girls actually broke our fair warrior's three year abstinence. In his Senior year, our "Frankie" spent all his spare time in the deep solaces of bridge games. All told: "Dike" has succeeded admirably in throwing plenty of good clean bull, instructing all bridge sharks how to play, and keeping clear of anything wearing a skirt.

Despite these drawbacks, "Dike" made good in all his studies. He wasn't a bookworm, but he showed that he learned his stuff, and got the true value of a college education.

THE owner of the above bright and shining countenance was dropped by the stork twenty-one years ago in the great American city of Chicago. Our young hero might still be in the front line trenches dodging machine gun bullets and armored cars if he had not been caught in an exceptionally severe gale and blown clear over to Oakmont in the sticks of western Pennsylvania. Indeed, folks, he might have come down in Fort Wayne if he had not been wearing Oxford bags. At Oakmont the young crown prince soon showed evidences of a bent for plumbing so, crowned with brick bats he left for the cultured East and landed at Lehigh, where he remained four years and passed enough work to justify printing this. At the end of his fourth year he leaves with his sheep-skin (not an overcoat) taking with him some not insignificant honors. His accomplishments in college have been commendable and he now wears the key of Tau Beta Pi. He has been a member of the mandolin club for three seasons and is said to plunk a rather mean note. Ever since the club made the Jersey trip last year he has become deeply interested in that part of the country. However because of a forced silence we have never been able to find out much about his affairs with the fair sex. He can oft times be found at Mealey's, especially when financially unable to do better. He admits, however that it's a lot better than staying home. He started as an athlete, but soon found that the strenuous duties of his journalistic positions gave him no time.

He has distinguished himself as an artist, both the idea and the execution being good. However, we feel that an execution is much better.

As a business man, he is perfect. Any spring day, when all the world is drowsy and everyone sleeps, one can see him tearing around like a whirlwind—trying to find a freshman to do work for him.

We must give the devil his due, though. He really has about a hundred times as much ambition as the average.

We wipe a furtive tear to see him leave. The old school won't be the same without him; for he is a radical: one of those who refuses to conform to the standard, and above all, says exactly what he thinks.

It is hard to say whether he attended Lehigh or St. Luke's Hospital but in spite of the great amount of time he spent at St. Luke's he has been able to turn in some very good grades at Lehigh.

One noted weakness of "Stan's" is women and this weakness leads to a good many week-end trips to Philly. We were lucky enough to take one of these week-end trips with him and after seeing her we don't blame him for going to Philly.

OUT of nothing comes nothing, but out of the bucolic peace and solitude of Bowling Green comes our George. Disdaining the lurid pleasures to be had in Bethlehem, George hit the work for four straight years, aided largely by his farmer's ability to handle the shovel. Anyone can see how well he has succeeded.

Outside of his scholastic success, he has also attained prominence in campus activities, as anyone who looks at his list of honors can see. Born with a keen sense of humor and possessing a splendid personality, George should go a long ways on the hard road of life and he takes with him the best wishes of all of us for success. We all remember how he looked in his double-breasted suit and artist's haircut—awful! He came to Lehigh in order to prove that to be Dutch does not mean that one must be dumb.

His favorite indoor sport is "cutting up", being one of the assistants in the campus tonsorial shop. Many of his masterpieces prove that he was only an assistant. He also tries to make us believe he is a musician. When he puts that 200 lbs. behind that trombone—the noise is on.

We always thought he had nothing to do with the fair sex, but lately we have been made to change our minds because we have seen him in Allentown on numerous occasions.

He has shown much versatility in campus activities, and has proven, in spite of his social tendencies, to be a pretty good Lacrosse player. We cannot help but think how lucky the Musical Clubs were to have him as the manager—we've heard him sing.

Altho' coming from Asbury Park his college associations have made him somewhat of a cosmopolite. An old tradition has it that John got his nickname from the Indians, who used to love to hear him croon the "Indian Love Call". There must be some Indian blood in "Yodel" somewhere, for he took up Lacrosse and soon sacked his way to a berth on the varsity. Beginning from where he left off on the lacrosse field, the fair sex soon felt the effects of his mighty heart blows, and again, his associations with the Indians stood him in good stead.

And, now, after four long, hard years, Yousling emerges with those select few who can say to the Dean, "Thanks for the Sheepskin." "FRENCHY"

"NEES"

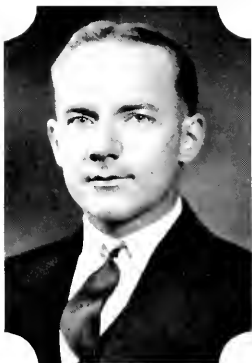

E. E., Electrical Engineering Society (1, 2, 3, 4)

THIS Connecticut Yankee, after spending two years at Bethlehem Prep, decided to make Lehigh his home for the next four years with the desire of becoming an Electrical Engineer. He has more than fulfilled this great undertaking for "Frenchy" has acquired quite a knowledge in the mechanical field. His chief delight is fixing cars and what he doesn't know about locomotion can't be found in books, which goes to prove that he would make a great assistant to Ford. Furthermore, this is one reason why he can so formidably present himself at the gates of Cedar Crest and create such a commotion on the thoroughfares.

Those who are well acquainted with "Frenchy" hold him in high respect for his quiet, sincere, and modest ways. He is always about when there is a matter of great importance in the air.

We can predict that "Frenchy" will make a big success in the electrical field as exemplified by his determination and will to do things.

WHEN the curtains arose on the scene of Lehigh's opening in 1925 we find a new sophomore hailing from the ranks of Bucknell University. Although John has been here only three years he has distinguished himself in that time by his colorful headgear. John may be recognized from a great distance by his striking green hat which proved to be rather embarrassing during the Junior Prom.

Any evening one can pass his door and hear him utter "Jeepers Crips" or "What the —— do you mean". The utterances denote nothing more than John is expounding upon his ideas of evolution.

The "parson" takes great delight in opposing any topic mentioned during a bull session. John has the ability to support his arguments with the most exact and detailed statistical proofs, but at times he becomes fantastical. Of late he endeavored to prove that the unconscious habit of dainty people manipulating a demi-tasse with their little finger extended, evolved from the ancient custom of France's aristocracy drinking from their dainty cups with a canary perched on their little finger.

His theory of relativity, the explanation of the difference between fools and absolute fools and the quantity "tetero" (it is bewildering to his fellow students but a great asset to Einstein's theory, "Frey's") hopes are to give power to all the rural communities of Pennsylvania.

ON a certain day, some twenty odd years ago, considerable excitement prevailed in the City of Philadelphia, the reason therefor being the advent, on this sphere, of a chubby stranger who, with the passage of time, developed into that budding engineering genius and admirer of the ladies, known to his intimates as Evan Harris Gardner.

In early life our hero became the victim of an insatiable desire for knowledge on many and varied matters. This malady grew with the years until it included the desire to fathom everything from sines and tangents to that incomprehensible subject, "The Psychology of the Feminine Mind." To satisfy his cravings Evan studied fundamentals at Frankford High and Bethlehem High Schools, women in Allentown, and the complexities of Civil Engineering at Lehigh.

Evan has worked hard and done well at Lehigh, and we predict his many virtues will overbalance the really commendable vices of a briar pipe and a predilection for the fair sex and bring him success in his chosen profession.

INTO the Lehigh Valley there came four years ago a quiet and bashful lad, from far away Fall River. His knowledge of the famed night boats assured us of his earnestness and quest for further education. Little did we realize behind this modest character was hidden our future Prima Donna. The fact that "Ollie" has taken the leading female role in the Mustard and Cheese plays for the past three years has brought Flo Zieffeld to Bethlehem on several important pilgrimages.

Not satisfied with his laurels on the stage he became manager of soccer, a position which he has successfully maintained. His winning personality and industrious nature will without doubt bring to him success in early life and we know that Lehigh has been made better by the years he has spent here.

"GUS" is the boy that put the "Gus" in Goslin. He might be Irish. Whatever it is, it's a pretty long name for a little man, yet he still claims that valuable gifts often come in diminutive packages.

"Gus" was quite an unknown quantity until his real debut at summer camp, where we think he was quite a sheik, and might have risen to greater heights if his "reserve" had not interfered.

Scholastically, his rating is not so "hot" as it was while attending High School, where perchance his line and appealing looks took better. He seems to take his work seriously here at college, and we wonder if this accounts for his drag with some of the "Profs". His ability along the line of course-crabbing is not unknown although he will stoutly deny any such accusation.

His occasional subtle remarks seem to disclose a keen sense of humor (2), however, and here's to the hope that his "stage-fright" will soon have entirely disappeared, and a bright future await him.

"DO doctors make good husbands?"

This psychological problem has been the subject of the most profound research by our most worthy and learned Dr. Gery for the past four years. The first inkling of this problem came up during his senior year at High School. Our most honorable M. D. (Mule-Driver) set diligently to work upon this age old problem during his freshman year at Muhlenberg. Finding that he had not solved the question by the end of his sophomore year, he decided to migrate to Lehigh and South Bethlehem in order to continue further research.

During his sojourn here, Dr. Gery has been very exacting in the choice of his materials. A year of careful observation and survey in said experiment was made by the Doctor at "quite a great cost." His pains-taking efforts have not been in vain, in as much as he has discovered "valuable data" in the English Department.

In a personal interview, the Doctor states that he intends continuing his research at McGill University for the benefit of generations as yet unborn.

TWO years ago, when Robert J. Gibson first came down the Lehigh river from St. Stephens College, little did our Alma Mater realize the responsibility she was assuming. For here was a man who could actually cope with our History and Philosophy Departments; who could blithely say, "Show me your mustiest and most uninteresting courses," and then, after a semester, in the most disconcerting manner, come back for more! You can easily picture the department heads getting together and saying with worried expressions, "What's to be done? He likes our courses, and even seems to know what we are talking about. We might as well resign." But even though this didn't come about, great tribute must be paid to "Bob" for creating such a furore among our cognoscenti. Moreover, the Departments of History and Philosophy will probably be wild with envy to learn that "Bob" has by no means confined his activities to them. We only can mention that, besides the extra-curricular activities above (or below) "Bob" has to his credit a very distinguished list of extra-extra-curricular activities.

EVEN to the sunny climes of the balmy Southland the name and fame of Lehigh has spread. From distant St. Petersburg "Scotty", "The Voice of the South", journeyed northward with the lofty ambitions of some day becoming a Mechanical Engineer of rare fame. Like so many four-year guests on South Mountain he succumbed to the advantages of Industrial Engineering. He was aided in this decision by the Faculty who have the peculiar idea that students should devote some of their time to exploring the mysteries of text books. Recently "Bob" has been applying his business training to the advisability of paying $27.50 for transportation from Broad Street to the City Market and vicinity.

Each Sunday evening "Bob" disappears ostensibly with the intention of studying, but invariably he takes no books along to study during the time he is away.

Who has heard, and not wondered, at the great volume of sound coming from Church Street? 'Tis merely Scotty, the "Big Noise", bellowing out his disapproval of some Scotch joke.

IT MIGHT be called a manifest destiny that brought Paul to Lehigh. It seems that the graduate lists have an oversupply of Gilmores, 99.44-100 per cent of them former Editors-in-Chief of the Brown and White, so what could "Reds" do but come to Lehigh and be elected Editor-in-Chief of the paper?

His size, (he had to climb on a chair to register), and his by no means passive hair immediately marked him as one of the potential "prominents" of his class. With that start Paul proceeded to load his watch chain with the representative charms and keys of the many clubs, societies, or what have you, around the campus.

He passed his work without burning too much midnight oil, (on the books), and was graduated in four years, but he never let a little thing like studying worry him. Perhaps it was the regular, never failing, daily letter that made him succeed, but we have an idea that he would have made good anyway.

"MILLS" came to South Mountain in September, 1924, to view the Steel City from the Lookout. An energetic "Burr" salesman signed him up for a year, so our hero decided to stay at Lehigh and get his money's worth.

"Mills" has torn up the Arts department in more ways than one while in school. He has a leaning towards Philosophy and Psychology, and will stay up any night and argue about it. However, he has done quite well in the chemistry building also—he secured his last supply of alcohol there.

All kidding aside, though, "Mills" has been one of our best fellows, both socially and scholastically. He has been very active in the doings of the "Club de Quinze" and the Pre-Med. Society. We know he will keep his enthusiasm going at top notch form as he goes out into his future career in dentistry. "Mills" will surely make the world a better place to chew in.

IF YOU ever happened onto the third floor of Hyphen Hall and heard the sound of much argument coming from the room of Prof. Smith, the possibilities are quite large that investigation would show the venerable department head was at his hammer and tongs with one R. M. Goepf. Having been kicked severely in his verbal pants in the course of said argument, the lanky Gyp would then go up the hill to his vat in the Brewery, where he would unlimber his typewriter and proceed to relieve his feelings by pounding out a scorching article for one of the numerous campus publications of which he is a contributor. For the "Gyp" is a literatus, and glories in his knowledge of the English language, that is, if he isn't too busy being a musician and tootling the flute; or being a chemist and raising vile odors under the tutelage of Doc Bab. He is liable at any time to appear in any of these characters, or even in one of several not listed in the catalogue, from the arch-fiend of bridge to the beer-swilling poet. THE world in general owes a lot to East Orange, N. J. for bringing into prominence two great men, two wizards of Electrical Engineering, Dem and Edison. How and why "Dem" won the title of "Wiz" need not be told but should not extensive experiments with Ford spark coils be rewarded with a suggestive title? If we were to breathe his only other flagrant fault we might mention chair wrecking, but it would scarcely be fair to blame him for the destructiveness of others.

As a student, "Demmy" rates high, but as an all 'round good sport he walks away with all the honors. (Note: Bet my roommate, who wrote this, will want to borrow ten bucks on the strength of that. But wait—the worst is yet to come.)

He has that rare quality of making and holding friends that is a valuable asset. His extra-curricula activities are numerous and diversified, ranging from athletics to artistic decorations for the Burr. Aeronautics falls under the list of his hobbies, and who knows but what he'll shine in that field before long. No matter what line of work he takes up, it's a certainty that he'll do more than make good.

"MILT" is the boy with the permanent wave. We often wonder who his hairdresser is. Although it has never occurred to us to ask him we are sure he would not divulge his secret. Whenever he wants to go out, it takes him fully thirty-five minutes to get ready (five minutes to dress and thirty minutes to comb his hair).

"Milt" is a product of Bethlehem High and sure is a fine example of the good things turned out from there. He is an accomplished swimmer and would be among those who have achieved fame in that line only for the fact that he keeps continually in mind that "Caesar was ambitious". He is always willing to do someone a favor, has hosts of friends and is a good example of Lehigh spirit—never gives up the ship.

"Milt's" favorite pastime is the stock market. Someday, mark these words, he'll be occupying a seat on the New York Stock Exchange. Here's wishing you, "Milt", the best of luck.

NEW YORK'S gift to Bethlehem—a "bathroom tenor" (the word gift is merely an effort at courtesy). Despite the disadvantages that would be experienced by the removal of bath rooms and showers, the thought was very often considered as worth the expense when "Gardner" would attempt high C's a la Martinelli. True, a fellow should not be discredited simply because he is a lover of classical music—but, when he tries his own interpretations, something should be done.

One would think that "Gardner's" natural ambition would be directed towards Gatti-Casazza's payroll, but, seriously, he hopes to be an M. D. someday. Judging from the manner with which he handles the "bones", we unanimously agree that his specialty should be in the line of Osteopathy.

However, as his college career draws to a close, we all realize that a great deal of fun and comradeship will be gone from our midst. Gardner has endeared himself to all of us and we know that there will come a day when we will pride ourselves in his accomplishments in this cold, cold, world.

FOUR years ago at Rensselaer, "Les" made a great start at getting a college degree. After one year he decided that to be a truly great engineer he must continue his education at Lehigh. And so in his sophomore year, we find, "Les" settled down at Lehigh and confronted with the problem of how to get through college with minimum work and maximum good times. If you ask him if he solved the problem he will probably deny it; but don't let him fool you for he has tried it successfully for three years.

His idea of complete happiness is to drive a flivver over and round about Fullerton, though why this is no one seems to know. Someone mentioned a girl as the cause. Maybe they're right!

He is a great fellow, this lad "Rosy". He has numberless friends and everyone is mighty glad to point him out as one of his pals. This characteristic along with that clear thinking head of his will surely pull him to the top in whatever he starts out to do.

Although "Ben" might give one the impression of being a prof's delight, we know that he spends most of his time inventing excuses for getting out of work—that is when he is not out on a date. His greatest hardship at college was in getting up for an "eight". This was so difficult for "Ben", that we doubt if he knew the names of the prof's of his eight o'clock classes.

"Ben" had one bad habit. He supplied the college with cigarettes. He proved the theory to us that one can smoke, constantly, without even purchasing the insidious weed. The boy must have been born an artist. Besides this, "Ben" was an accomplished athlete. He was Coach Glover's Chief Assistant of the mighty Brown and White crew.

We predict a brilliant future for "Ben". If he does not open a millinery store, after graduation, we are sure he will revolutionize the underwear industry.

BROOKLYN claims "Hank" as one of its more or less illustrious sons, but cannot claim all of the credit for such an ambitious youth, as it has been ascertained that he spent the greater part of his more tender years in the balmy State of Florida. This fact probably accounts, more than any other reason, for his curly hair and his nonchalant attitude toward the many signs of the weaker sex.

When a certain registration day in September 1924 was over, it found that "Hank" had good intention of graduating as an E. M. Since his favorite recreation soon turned out to be hiking up and down Wyandotte Street, he gave up the more pretentious idea of becoming an engineer and transferred to the B. A. course. This seemed to fit into his extra-curricula activities to a much greater advantage.

Next year "Hank" expects to pursue the elusive higher education at Harvard Business School. If this expectation is realized, he will go there with the best wishes of many friends in their confidence that he will have little more trouble with graduate work than that which he encountered here.

WHEN "Al" graduated from Evander Childs High School he felt a desire for Tigger and Letter worlds to conquer so he came to Lehigh in September 1924, and as a result now graduates as an Electrical Engineer.

After an eventful freshman year "Al" left us in the middle of his Sophomore year to investigate some lurid tales of New York University, but by the middle of his Junior year was back rooting for Lehigh stronger than ever.

His scholastic reports speak well for the work which he has accomplished, although it is true we cannot say that "Al" did nothing but study. In addition to his night work "Al" found time to make the Track and Cross Country Teams. He has been an ardent inventor for four years, but has not yet set the world afire.

From the frequent visits to New York and the daily letter which he writes we are led to believe that "Al" has succumbed to the charms of one of the fairer sex. Those who know say that his reputation as a connoisseur has been greatly strengthened by his choice.

AFTER "Al" had been graduated from the high school in Pleasantville, N. A few terms spent among the intricacies of Machine Design and Calculus developed in "Al" a decided leaning toward the erudition of the Business Department. That he might partake in more of the knowledge disseminated by Prof. Carothers and his colleagues, and still maintain the distinction of being an engineer, "Al" became one of the charter members of the Industrial Engineering College.

Even as all college men, "Al" concerned himself with the pursuit of the fascinating female—more or less aimlessly at first but during the last few terms he has devoted himself rather exclusively to one of the fairest in Allentown. "Al's" sartorial neatness has been an important point in his favor and should prove an invaluable asset in the great "game of life".

FOUR short years ago yours truly decided to take things easy for a few more years and with that intention "Rolly", after several hours of crashing and banging through the red tape became one of Lehigh's Verdant Frosh.

After a great deal of consideration and meditation he made the Business Curriculum his goal and the army his hobby. Being somewhat of a musician "Beck" blew his way into the band and whenever it steps out you will find him there tooting a mean clarinet. His musical talent however, did not engage him with the fair sex in Bethlehem, but we know that "Rolly" follows things feminine in his home town and after some cross examination he admits she is a charming person.

"Rolly" is one of those more quiet and serious minded fellows. One is unable to figure out just what he is always thinking about but when the showdown comes he usually ends on the right side. As an engineer, the boy is good—as a lawyer he might be better—but as a promoter of bull sessions try and even tie him.

Opinion seems to have it that "Hen" is giving up the courts for the bounding-main and hopes to take over the Shamrock at an early date. It has also been rumored that "Hen's" "good gents" have to be able to sail a boat.

In later years we know we will look back on the days spent at Lehigh and congratulate ourselves on having been numbered among "Hen's" friends. His success is assured. May it be even brighter than our fondest hopes.

It is believed that "Bill" is on excellent terms with the Goddess of Fortune. He has a remarkable faculty for getting in smash-ups and coming out with a whole skin. As a student he has proven his ability in getting his degree in three and a half years. When he leaves here, he is going to study Law, and anyone who knows "Bill" will agree that he was made to be a lawyer.

"KEN" Heim majored in Greek. To that may be attributed the dense fog which he seems to be in always. Sort of "It's all Greek to me", business with the single paradox that it is in Greek alone that he is not in a fog. He is most obliging, and will pass you the bread any time you ask for the cream; he'll explain any translation to you,—in Greek. Sometimes after dinner the boys will ask "Ken" to play the piano for them and he will immediately break forth into "LaCathedrale Engloutie" or the "Goliwog's Cake-Walk". He is as generous as he is obliging. When he has any money to spend on records he buys "Siegfried's Funeral March" from "Gottterdammerung" to arouse enthusiasm and pep up the fellows at the house.

AMIABLE, clever, bright, mysterious fairly well describes "Bill"; all of which factors sufficiently blended to give him a very likeable personality. The word enemy seems to be out of his vocabulary.

All through college studying has been a side issue with "Bill"; although he has a scholastic record of which to be proud. He is a natural leader among men characterized by the number of irons he has kept in the fire.

Not unnaturally he is attracted by the opposite sex and from all appearances with a great deal of success. Some day, some girl will get a truly finished product. However, he still has a passion for telephones. If you wish to use the phone you are sure to find "Bill" on the line. It is even known that he gets Special Service from some of the operators. It may be that "Bill" has taken this telephone hobby to heart for we understand he is seriously considering a position with the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. First, let us discover why he was called "Spike". Entering Lehigh with the name Clarence, but with the jovial belief that he wasn't "mere flesh and blood, but iron!", what was more natural than to dub him "Spike".

Perhaps the best description of "Spike" is embodied in his philosophy of life, a short one it's true, but ingeniously easy to live up to, to wit, "Health is greater than scholarship". Not being a hypocrite he modelled his college life after his thought and came through unscathed in body.

"NAT" came to Lehigh in the beginning of his Sophomore year. An outstanding personality immediately won him many friends, and a constancy of character has enabled him to keep them. Athletically inclined, his activities have been largely confined to that field, so that he is always in training for something. This has probably been influential in developing to a very high degree that most admirable trait of character—fair play.

Being widely read, Nat can tell you something about everything. One of the subjects on which he is likely to wax most eloquent is the natural mental inferiority of the female of the species. Despite usual differences of opinion on this subject, he gets along rather well with certain of the opposite sex, so that when he goes out he seldom goes alone.

"Nat" embodies the elements of success, and if character and personality are the criterions, we will hear more of him in the future.

IN HIS search for the source of knowledge, "Don" followed in the footsteps of the three wise men of old. Guided by his lucky star he came to the town of Bethlehem where he found Lehigh.

For four years he labored diligently to absorb those things which constitute an education and now we find him ready to adventure out into the world as a business man.

During those four years, not all of his time had to be spent delving in books, so he was also able to prove his ability in other activities along with bull sessions, barber shop chords, and the banjo. One of his hobbies is riding trains, but we suspect that this is only a means to an end, for the rumors are that a very attractive girl awaits the arrival of his train.

As graduation draws near, we all join in wishing "Don" every success and the audience will please remain standing while we sing, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again".

HERBERT CLARENCE HOBBS, Jr.
BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Brooklyn Technical High School

C. E.; Freshman Swimming Team; Varsity Swimming (2, 3, 4); Intercollegiate Diving Champion (2); Cheer Leader (3); Sophomore Cotillion; Cyanoide Club; B. U. N. Y. S. C. E. Phi Sigma Kappa.

BROOKLYN'S contribution to Lehigh was "lil Herbie". His was an unassuming nature and he quietly pursued the difficult art of diving in the pool until the boys began to notice that he possessed remarkable form. His steady practice in this difficult sport resulted in his being crowned intercollegiate champion.

"Herbie's" activities have not been solely confined to swimming and diving. The boy sings, dances, and the broken furniture about the house indicates his acrobatic ability. He is deeply interested in his scholastic work since he expects, upon graduating, to pack his rod and transit and decamp for foreign parts. He finds time, on certain definite dates, to meet a number of secretive collegians at specified places where they retire to a rear room. Muffled sounds that might be "bottoms up" emanate faintly from the locked room. Perhaps, the secretive and playful organization is overturning tables or paddling some of the more mischievous members.

The boy is misogynistic. His favorite philosophy is that of Omar Khayyam without Omar's women. At present, he would rather represent Lehigh and America at the Olympic games than build a Holland Tunnel. Good luck "Herb" and we trust you will retain that keen sense of humor.

"SENATOR" "W. W." "HOKEY"

E. E.; E. E. Society (1, 2, 3, 4); Treasurer (4); Eta Kappa Nu, (Corresponding Secretary)

JUST a glance at the above masterpiece of the photographers art instantly brings to mind all the pristine qualities of mankind. Now while the "Senator" is the personification of most of these, there is no use of going into them in detail, suffice to say that the ones he lacks are not held against him.

When Warren left Washington, D. C., and came to Bethlehem three or four years ago, we had no doubt that this Southern drawl which women "just adore" would make him leader of the local social world, but we have been doomed to disappointment—he just won't give these women a tumble. And the worst part of it is that he won't even look them over—just says "Aw, what can you see in these Bethlehem women?" Granted he's right, but it's a strong man that can take that point of view!

As the Rotary News would say, "Lehigh's loss will be Washington's gain," and we're sure that Washington won't be disappointed.

QUIET chap but oh, Boy! Four years ago, having completed his education at High School in his home-town, Allentown, we find "Kerm", in order to appease his intense desire for knowledge, among Lehigh's verdant Frosh.

Having a hankering for sockets, cycles and lightning discharges he aimed at earning an E. E. degree. He has been a good student and accordingly his ambition has been realized. His aim now is to show to the world his qualities as an Engineer.

Aside from his work in College "Kerm's" pleasing personality has won for him many friends. But there is One in particular. You know, Ladies and Gentlemen, he has a lead on all the rest of his friends and here's why? He has found the only woman in the world for him. Lucky, eh what!

Undoubtedly with such support and with a background of such calibre his friends are positive of his sure success in any of his future undertakings. They wish him the best of luck.

"ZEB", as he is better known, has such a distinctive air, pleasant smile and a beautiful crop of curly golden hair—that all the girls can hardly pass him by without saying, "My, what a handsome chap!"

Four years ago this young gentleman boarded the train in Dover, Delaware and headed for the Holy City. During his Freshman year he worked hard and long, but as time passed "Zeb" gradually took on many extra-curricula activities—learning to dance—getting dates with the best looking girls in town—and developing into a smooth college man.

This young man has several peculiar ideas about women however, and usually gets his girl friends from some distant point, Georgia and Colorado standing out prominently.

But taking everything into consideration "Zeb" has a wonderful way about him which commands the respect of his associates. We predict for him a very successful career.

"JACK" came to Lehigh in the middle of his Freshman year, and in a quiet, unobtrusive way began building the foundations which bear so well the laudable and imposing list of accomplishments noted above. In spite of the fact that "Jack" has been exceedingly busy since his advent into our midst, he has maintained an excellent scholastic record along with his other activities. But more than these material things, significant as they are, he still manages to be himself. That somewhat thoughtful and determined face looking at you has the power of dispelling the gloomiest of glooms by virtue of an illuminating smile—and "Jack" is nearly always smiling.

If, among other things, a high degree of intelligence, indomitable persistence, and fine personality count for success in life as they have in college, "Jack" will travel far along the road to prosperity and happiness. Here's to you, old boy.

MORTIMER HOROWITZ

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Erasmus Hall

"MORTY"

B. A.; Varsity Basketball Squad (4); Beau Arts; Deutscher Verein; Phi Sigma Delta

THERE are several theories concerning the reason for "Morty's" choosing Lehigh as his Alma Mater. The one most generally accepted is that he once saw a brewery and immediately fell in love with its product. However, in spite of this, he has developed into a very likeable lad and has captured many friends with his winning smile and bright personality. While accused of bearing a similarity to the famous Arrow Collar ad, he denies the fact and really deserves claim to distinction because of the fact that he is one of the exceptionally few who admits unpopularity with the opposite sex. "Morty" says this so convincingly that one would almost believe him. Intimates, however, tell of the ethereal spell this handsome youth casts over the fair sex, and of the perfume-scented letters he daily receives.

Nor do his talents halt here. "Mort" is an excellent scholar and a versatile athlete. As a drop-kicker, he possesses an excellent local reputation and, if ever you have the time, draw up a chair and listen to stories of enthralling experiences with the Original Celtic Basketball Team.

"You look like a statue of 'What's-the-Use'."

FROM the wilds of Glen Ridge, New Jersey, came this unassuming Freshman to Lehigh, knowing little of college life and its intricacies, but full of ambition and desire to do big things about a University Campus. Since that time, "Len" has achieved quite some fame about our campus, being involved in many extra-curricula activities and still managing to be among those who have been honored scholastically. His interest in wrestling both at Lehigh and in the sport as a whole has been noted throughout his entire college career.

"Len" has the reputation of being quite a social hound and his escapades at several of the local girls' schools, as well as out of town, have proven to be quite noteworthy. Week-ends in New Jersey seem to be his weakness and one seldom finds him in Bethlehem if there is any possibility of his getting away.

May his efforts in the business world be crowned with success! and may they be as outstanding as his career at Lehigh has been.

"Bob"

C. E.; Wrestling Squad 1, 2, 3, 4; Sophomore
Council; Arcadia; Tau Beta Pi

OUR friend "Bob" hales from Winsted, Conn., the land of ice, snow, rocks, and rivers. The town is put in because ordinarily no one ever elicits the information from its first citizen and it really should be better advertised. "Bob" is ambitious, not only concerning his town, but also his ambitions and his "sox apple". This leads us to his bid for fame, his inferiority complex. This is one of his pet theories, the other is his philosophy of life. For an explanation of either the reader is referred to the originator.

The above picture portrays "Bob" in one of his happier moods. Usually it is a safe bet that you will find him in bed sound asleep. If he isn't sleeping your next best bet is a bull session; third chance is his wrestling at various places; and the worst bet of all is that he is studying. Yet he is one of the brilliant men of his class.

Speaking of wrestling reminds one of another of "Bob's" theories, to wit: pickles and wrestling don't mix. This was discovered at Saylor's Lake, along with the experience as to the best room in the house in which to live.

"Bob" is silent, but still water runs deep, totally unlike the rivers about his home town. He has hobbies, ambitions, and convictions, and is all set to shove his way into the limelight of engineering.

SIX feet four inches of literary engineer with a horse laugh. That's "Shorty." To adequately know him one must literally step up to see him. A New Yorker, he came to Lehigh in search of knowledge.

Of his first two years we can say little, except that he knows the goings and comings of all known means of conveyance between Easton and Bethlehem better than any other living person or persons, including the conductors themselves. Having acquired this knowledge "Shorty" spent his last two years here in learning something about and from the university. You can see by the list of activities above that he was quite a busy man—considering his first two years a total loss. But he's an engineer and that accounts for it, so "Shorty" says. We have heard so much about these far famed engineers tho that we are rather surprised that the vegetable matter on his upper lip didn't turn out any better. But, really, they can do anything—so they say.

This he readily accomplished, if records speak for themselves, and added to that an envious record as a practical salesman. And in the course of all these events he has taken a special and appreciative interest in the town—, did I say town—well, mostly the west side. During these various activities he has found time to add to the musical strains of the college band and spring usually found him ready to go out for some sport. As he goes out into the world, after a successful career at Lehigh, a good record, and leaving behind lots of friends, we feel sure that he will achieve success as inevitably as he reached his goal here, by steady, insistent work. ONE bright and sunshiny morning a wee voice was heard above the distant roar of Niagara Falls. This happened on the first day of July 190—, and to commemorate the event it was called "Dick". This voice grew stronger day by day until now it has no rival but the Falls itself. Now a voice of such proportions is traced to a large source, and true enough "Dick" is one of our great big boys and handsome too.

"Dick" came to us quite young, possessed of desires and ambitions, one of which was to become a mighty swimmer. In this he was most successful as he demonstrated in the interdorm swimming meet. "Dick" is not only successful in swimming but is also an accomplished bridge player. Like everyone else "Dick" has a failing; the fair sex. Just now it is a particular "failing". How about it, "Dick"?

Volumes could be said about "Dick" but space is limited. He is a good scout and popular. He expects to revolutionize the world with his scientific discoveries and works;—so good luck, old man.

SOME have said that the first hundred years are the hardest. "Gog" discovered the truth of this statement soon after entering our dear old Alma Mater. However, the good old Irish was not to be downed, and after having narrowly escaped leaving very prematurely he settled down and prepared to graduate from this mans university in the prescribed time.

As a business man, methinks one would have to go far to find a shrewder one. And furthermore, he warned! Do not try to argue with this son of Erin. It won't be an argument long, but will evolve into a lesson, with yourself being the one taught.

We will wish "Jack" luck because its the thing to do and everyone needs a little when starting into our world. However, if "Jack" only gets a slight glance from the smiling face of this famous lady, called "Luck", he is bound to make good use of it.

THIS happy lad was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., but it was not the poor fellow's fault. Strange as it may seem he has been "existing" there ever since. But gazing into the mysteries of "Pop's" life one finds a reason the most wonderful girl in the world. Otherwise the chap seems to be normal.

"Father" Kelly received his "nomme du guerre" for his devotion. It is said that he clasps his hands so tightly in prayer that he can't release them when the collection box is passed.

"Pop" came to us "broken in" from West Virginia University, and since he has been at Lehigh he has managed to absorb all the hot air dispensed by the University's experts in various fields. A conscientious, assiduous student with a natural ability to swallow and digest books—that's "Pop" Kelly! Add to that a disposition to be envied and you have a fellow who is always ready to help you.

We are certain that "Gene" will go out into the world with a determination to win, and judging from his record in the class-room we know that success will be his in the near future. Good luck to you "Pop" Kelly!

"Roy"

Bns.; Allen-Lehigh Club

FOUR years ago, in a desire to broaden his education, Kise signed on the dotted line for "Nails" Carothers' course in business calisthenics. He leaves behind him a record of attending three out of six eight o'clock classes weekly.

"Roy" has utterly disregarded the Bethlehem Belles, but this in no way means that he is immune to the wiles of the fairer sex. On the contrary, his Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday night excursions beyond the city walls leads us to believe that some fair damsel has captivated him. And his frequent assertion that "gentlemen prefer blondes" is by way of telling us that she is just that.

College traditions, to "Roy", are important things and must be upheld. Consequently, through much practice, he has become quite adept in the clever manipulation of the containers of foamy liquid. In this respect he is an extreme "invert" due to his "bottom's up" complex.

Roy is a very ambitious young lad and has been successful in all his undertakings. He is unwilling to take things at their face values but must see the "whys and wherefores", a characteristic which was in no small way responsible for his reaping class honors in his Freshman and Sophomore years.

PARADOXICAL, as it may seem, that intelligent looking young man you see above comes from Trenton. Furthermore, he is to all intents and purposes living down the stigma attached to him by his birthplace.

Paul doesn't think Bethlehem is such a bad place—not while the women still believe in that honest face of his anyway. He has gotten away with the innocent stuff for four years and it isn't up to me to show him up now.

Besides being a ladies man "Klemp" is quite the student, anyone who can decipher the organic formulae that he juggles is necessarily one. "JACK" came to Lehigh after knocking all his studies at Exeter Academy for the proverbial "loop", and here sought new and harder fields to conquer. He not only sought and found, but conquered them with little effort.

When John entered here as a Freshman, he believed strongly in the motto, "There is time for work and time for play." For three years, he spent two evenings a week studying, and five evenings receiving education from the association with the fair sex. Finally, the fourth year he combined the two.

It is said that red-headed people have very quick tempers,—well, the exception proves the rule, and "Jack" is the exception. He never gets the least bit excited and is a friend to everybody. He is never tiring in his efforts to do things for other people, and always has a ready smile for everyone.

Exact and steady, yet practical and always ready with the goods at the right time. That is why Paul has made good in his M. E. course.

Study and work isn't Paul's only activities. We have even known him at times to retrace his steps in order to secure his drivers' licence. The car, as we understand, has more than one use, especially around Macungie. We wonder, Yes or No, we will ever want to remember you, Paul.

"KORZY"

E. E.; Electrical Eng. Society (1, 2, 3, 4)

FOUR years ago, South Jersey gave this son to Lehigh, to be schooled in the science of Chemical Engineering. He has survived, and proven a worthy member of this clan. He is a good student, especially in those subjects which are of interest to him; but he is inclined to show indifference to those of lesser interest. By the end of the term, however, he manages to work up an interest in everything (thus explaining his survival at Lehigh). Science alone, can not claim him, for he has demonstrated ability in the art of music in the Bach Choir of Bethlehem, The Arion Society of Allentown, a Church Choir, the Engine Lab, Quartet, and numerous concerts of "ethanolic" inspiration. The ladies find him irresistible. Those who know him most intimately, have from time to time, heard of very interesting feminine friends from New Jersey, Delaware, New York, and Pennsylvania. Finally, as we part and diffuse into the great cosmos, let us wish him a successful future.

"Hell! I'm broke again"

"KORZY'S" early years at Lehigh seem shrouded in deep and dark obscurity. He hibernated in his hole on the third floor of Price Hall and worked his hours away in various manners known only to himself. In fact, it was not until his junior year that "Jawn" blossomed forth in a social way by taking unto himself a job in the library. Thereafter one could find a grinning, dark-haired little chap behind the counter on so many evenings a week. In fact, he became so enamoured of his work that he used to spend his spare time in the world of books making keen observations and following the librariannesettes up the spiral stair-case in search for more intimate knowledge of the inner workings of the library system.

But "Korz's" greatest claim to lasting notoriety rests in a field far removed from his bibliophilic labors: he is reputed to be the only man who ever spent four years in the Brewery without ever having been known to drink a single beer. Such commendable sobriety should take him far in the world where he now goes to take his place.

ON SEPTEMBER 18th, 1904, the town of York, Pa., acclaimed the birth of another potential President. Not choosing to run in 1928 he made a wise choice for a man with a corporation on his hands, viz. the career of a business man.

Several years elapsed at Swarthmore Prep. School and points East, so that we now find him in his fourth hectic year at Lehigh, almost ready to get a corner on the wide, wide, world. This should not be so hard for him since he has had the whole world promised him as a graduation gift—to do with it what he wishes. His fully developed business acumen and a line of jokes worthy of a travelling salesman from way back should be of great use to him in this venture.

"Jack's" extra-extra curriculum activities were too diverse to mention all, however a few include Coach Glovers' Crew, Charter member of the Lyric, Pastor Emeritus of Mealy's, advice to lovelorn Freshmen, and official Tea-Paster at the Chat-a-While to say nothing of his strong forte—Women. Ah!

All in all his good fellowship has brightened up many a dull moment, attacks of dyspepsia, or what have you, a worthy exponent of his favorite song, "Chasing the Blues Away."

Following the old formula, but nevertheless true one, we wish him all success and hope to obtain a loan at his bank sometime in the future.

FOUR years ago "Hen" came here a symbol of purity—but look at him now—a fruitful source of demoralization. My—what college can do for a man.

After a very successful scholastic freshman year "Hen" decided to rest on his past laurels. He succeeded equally as well in his sophomore year but in his junior year his professors socked and rocked him. Little did he realize the folly in that belief of his that he formulated at the end of his freshman year. Since then "Hen" has reached his manhood and we hope for better things from him now.

In all probability "Hen" will make his mark in the business world.

WHAT! You've never heard of Rutherford Heights? Well, neither did anyone else until they met "Cussy" Kramer. Handsome, bashful, likable, and good natured, he is most assuredly a fine representative of that little city of which Harrisburg is the chief suburb. Though not purposely slighting his Alma Mater, "Norn" says that his only regret upon graduation is that there is just one "girl" in Bethlehem whom he has not been able to bring under his wing. What a blow these poor women will take when they find that their "it" is Paris bound!

But aside from his position in this Hall of Fame, "Cussy" is most assuredly "one of the boys". Known by many and liked by all, we feel safe in saying that he'll be missed at Lehigh. Hard luck and women no longer phase him, thus his success in Engineering is secure.

CLAP hands, here comes "Charlie". "Charlie" was born in Binghamton, but not liking the town moved to Harrisburg at an early age. All he learned was obtained at Harrisburg Tech., graduating in 1923. In order to get a running start, he gave Bethlehem Prep. a treat for the year 23-24, and then credited himself with a scholarship to the Alma Mater. He has the distinction of being the class baby of '01.

As a senior indulgence, he almost raised a mustache and really did accumulate dignity. Work, that's his fondest habit, it seems. His constant overhauling and concentrated attention upon his flivver gives valiant proof that Charlie has mechanical ability. He's a radio fan of no mean extent, remedying the numerous ailments of radios, which were the thorns of his existence.

Needless to say, the fair sex of Bethlehem didn't rate at all, since a certain blonde from Harrisburg intrigued him. It was not known until his senior year that "Charlie" had forsaken the claims of a bachelor and had been married secretly before he entered Bethlehem Prep.

"Charlie" is a mighty fine fellow and his conscientious effort to do things well designates him to be a success in his chosen career of E. E. Here's hoping and best o'luck to you.

FOUR years ago, the land of coal-crackers and culm dumps, released unto Lehigh one of its future kings of the coal industry, "Kootch" is this young hero.

Small in stature, "Kay" soon proved his greatest in his scholastic works, and the honors he received placed him away ahead of most of us. Coming here with a little practical experience, he always proved a great help to his younger classmates.

"Kootch" used studying merely as a sideline, and the bright lights of Bethlehem often found his lovely countenance at their door. In his stay with us he won the admiration of his classmates and was elected their senior sergeant-at-arms. With his winning ways he should gain great fame and renown, and great things are expected from him in the future. Go to it old scout, we wish you the best of luck!

AMONG the all-kinds-of men in our class, "Bill" is one of those who came "for knowledge"; by sheer determination to overcome all handicaps, he has gotten it. First as sand-heaver for a Bethlehem Construction firm, then as foreman of its crew, he managed to pay all college expenses, and at the same time to maintain a high rank in his M. E. course.

Stubborn, tenacious, exact, untiring, he is one of those classmates who will be missed, because his pronounced characteristics first attracted attention, and then revealed a personality that even since has enabled him to retain his friends.

But "Bill" didn't give all his time to work and study. Not by a long shot! He is one of the reasons why Section D needed a telephone—and "Bill" says a telephone has been worth anything without an operator. He has just one problem: he cannot keep accurate count of the one-time lady-friends who have married his rivals—that may be why he is anxious to return to Williamsport. Be that as it may, our best wishes attend you, "Bill".

"WEN'S" business delight seems to be a fair one. Dan Cupid has had the Law of Gravitation at work on him for two years and we believe that we do not predict wrongly when we say that the inevitable landing is coming very soon due to the attracting force of a certain mademoiselle in Massachusettes.

The eternal sameness of love may forbid any originality yet those who fall are of all kinds.

"Wen's" category is with the serious, sensible, and dependable. His fine ideals appeal to the better part of us and his vim, vigor, and vitality often have aroused our ambition as we watched his lean, long, lanky legs move like a wheel around the track on one of his seemingly unending jaunts.

For "Wen" we predict success—success gained through his honest endeavors and through his sincere personality which make him outstandingly a gentleman.

THOSE of us that have a good memory will remember that when "Dick", as his friends call him, entered Lehigh he was a studious and good natured boy. As he became one of us his interests broadened and sometimes sacrifices were made for those feminine interests. We don't think his nature changed.

Whenever you hear a disturbance in the seminar room or the rooms of the Electrical Department you will generally find that it is Laudenslager in the midst of a "big argument". He has quite a batting average, too, for he wins quite a few. Maybe this type of education is not productive of a good Engineer but, since "Dick" belongs to the "U. G. I." perhaps it will be a help when it comes to selling someone a Power and Light plant some day. He's a follower of "Corona" and maybe someday the world will find his career corona-like.

Richard's activities sometimes run in a different track and he assumes the role of John Hancock by forming a constitution for the Allen Lehigh Club. So we see that he has left his "footprints upon the sands of Lehigh" as Longfellow would express it.

"SKEETS" came to Lehigh from the worthy institution of Mercersburg Academy, where he had a very colorful career. Four years sped by and "Charley" found himself a senior, filled with the lore of Faraday, versed in the logic of guns and military tactics and adept in the art of keeping open water between himself and his opponents in any pool.

Besides acquiring an enviable record in achievements and athletics, "Skeets" has kept in mind the main purpose of going to college, that of getting an education. "Charlie" has been especially good at keeping a perfect balance between studies and activities, business and pleasure.

In addition to numerous achievements, a host of friends will testify to his success at Lehigh. He has developed his all-around qualities while here, and received the perfect balance which designates the college man. Whatever he may do after leaving his Alma Mater, "Charley" will undoubtedly be as successful as he was at Lehigh.

IT IS no longer necessary to take English 4 to understand the meaning of the word versatility. Merrill has spent three years among us. Before he adopted his present role as an honor student in the Pre-Med. course, he first studied engineering and then art, trying out the Carnegie Institute of Technology before coming to Lehigh. As a final proof of his ability to adjust his mind to changing ideas, we refer you to pages 182 and 242 of the Freshman Week Bible—Freshman Hygiene, which he illustrated.

Don't get the idea that Merrill does things in a superficial way. His college grades are an indication of the conscientious student he is. We don't doubt that if he stayed at it he would have become a member of the American Academy of Art, or a successful Engineer, and we are not so sure but that he will make use of these apparently irrelevant backgrounds in honoring Lehigh as a famous Surgeon.

EVERYONE has some outstanding characteristic and I am glad to say that Harry's is "good naturedness". Armed with witty remarks he has easily crossed the threshold of amiability and taken possession of the house of personality. To know him is to realize that this is not idle talk for it is every bit as much in evidence as he himself—and that's going some.

"Pop" Larkin voiced the idea that a plump, jolly individual makes a good worker. I agree and might add that Harry has gone farther up the line by proving to us that he has executive possibilities. Many are the times that he has given orders, but few are the times that men as a result of this, have shirked their duties or entertained misgivings. This, no doubt, has been a great aid to a man who has been a successful leader of his fraternity for the past two years.

I have yet to find any part of the valley where Harry does not have friends. It is known that he takes frequent excursions to numerous and sundry parts unknown and nary has he returned without a new bond of friendship. I dare say that he is well versed in the art of good fellowship, if you know what I mean.

ALTHOUGH "Lee" has a double stain on his character, since he hails from Trenton High and has attended Lafayette for one year, we do not hesitate to put our stamp of approval on him. He has been able to live down these self-inflicted handicaps and we find that "Lee" is a better man today for it.

At present, he is broadening his education by taking advantage of both Cedar Crest and Lehigh. The funny part is that from the standpoint of attendance, he deserves a degree from both institutions.

Jealous as it may seem, we are sorry that "Lee" will not be with us again next year as his company was, and always will be, eagerly desired by all of his friends. The many examples of his sterling character make us feel confident that "Lee" is stepping out into the world as a man advancing toward the top rung of the ladder of success. Here is to you, "Leo"!

THE full circumstances of "Shimmick's" leaving Rensselaer have never been disclosed, but from observations of his activities in Bethlehem, we'd say that a woman had something to do with it. At any rate he still claims that Troy women can give Bethlehem women cards and spades and beat them at their own game—what game, "Sam" doesn't specify.

Beside his Lotharian proclivities, "Shimmick" was a real athletic at Rensselaer, playing varsity basketball in his freshman year, as well as tackle on the freshman football team. However, Lehigh didn't offer him an athletic scholarship, so he became a student. Anyhow, "Shimmick" still thinks Harvard is the best college in the country. Just ask him—but not when you're in a hurry to get to a class.

To be serious, we know that "Sam" is just the type that gets ahead in the world. He knows when to keep his mouth closed, and he knows when he has something important to say—and says it well. He knows how to study, and how to have a good time. And how!

BEN is one of those few who are able to obtain a Lehigh degree in three and a half years. Not that we'd call him a genius. Far from that! But he has displayed the same versatility in his studies as he has in his diversified athletic career, leaving behind him an enviable record.

Although handicapped by lack of weight and inexperience in a new position, "Ben" played a consistently good game at guard during the recent football season. Nor will anybody forget the smashing defensive exhibition he gave in the 1926 Marine game.

Ben should be a huge success in the business world. His shrewdness and business acumen are two characteristics of which he cannot be deprived. They have long made themselves manifest.

WHEN "Bob" left N. Y. U. in 1925, he decided to go to a college where he wouldn't have to shave every day, and where he could wear those trick pants of his. However, he went and signed up for an electrical engineering course, and found that he'd have to add work to his activities—which is quite a shock after an Arts course at N. Y. U.

"Bob" is a ladies' man. Ask him—and he'll tell you that he's going to make a wonderful husband for some lucky girl. We wonder if he has reference to a certain young lady in New York. "Bob" is also a humorist; he even went so far as to swear off dates in Bethlehem. We have to laugh at this, for "Bob" is irresistible to women—they just love the way his hair sticks up in back.

But seriously, "Bob" makes little noise, accomplishes much, and uses good judgment in all that he does. All of us expect him to go a long way—in the right direction—and on the right road.

ANY attempt to summarize "Dick's" achievements during his college career would necessarily read like a "Farmer Burns" advertisement. Also a record of his mishaps would look like the front page of the N. Y. Times, after a New Year's celebration. However, "Dick's" enviable propensity to "come back" even in the face of this seeming hard luck, has won his class-mates sincere admiration and esteem.

About a year ago, our hero, had the good fortune to be one of the members of the party to take the student world cruise. Now we are all convinced that this is the ideal way to receive a college education.

Lehigh's prominent position in the wrestling world is in a great measure due to his untiring efforts and recognized ability.

With "Dick's" stick-to-it-ive-ness to aid him in life's battles we predict for him a great future.

Best luck to you, "Dick"—

WHEN Jacob James Longacre migrated southward to our beautiful South Mountain campus, having successfully and rapidly absorbed all that Catasauqua High could give him, there was not a shadow of doubt in his mind as to his choice of a profession. He came, he saw, he conquered. Born and bred in a scholarly medical atmosphere he early demonstrated an inherent aptitude and a desire to acquire pre-medical knowledge. Rapidly rising to the top of the largest and most promising group of pre-meds that the university has yet produced, he still found time to enter into a variety of extra-curricular activities other than the honorary societies, which came as a matter of course. "He touched the dead corpse of the Pre-Medical Society and it sprang upon its feet."

"Jack's" one aim in life, and he has never bothered with lesser or subsidiary goals, is to become a surgeon. Following in the footsteps of his paternal parent, he intends to storm the forbidding posterns of medical school with the design of spending four more tumultuous and intensive years in this field.

MEN of great ability have come and gone but four years ago there came a lad from Myerstown who was destined to become a great man. It was none other than the man pictured above.

When "Asa" first landed in Bethlehem he was a shy, bashful lad. But it was not long before he lost this shy, bashful attitude and became a Lehigh man.

Though "Asa" goes on many nightly pilgrimages and is busy otherwise we must admit that he is a good student. There are times when he is deeply devoted to his work but they are not frequent.

But, taking all things into consideration "Asa's" ability, looks etc., we know that he is the type of Lehigh man who will leave his mark in this world at some time in the future.

GEORGE comes from the town of coal, foot-ball teams and—"wimma". We first heard of the mining activity, then a big hulla-baloo concerning the Maroons, and quite recently the final good point of the town was brought forward. So much has George been struck that frequent trips home are the result, and Bethlehem girls are completely abandoned to their fate.

Scholastically, he is a good student, being especially interested in bridge problems, in which strength is not concerned. Many an evening he has spent with the author, working to no avail on the intricacies of auction. After four years of experience, he is practicing as a consulting engineer and also spends much time teaching and imparting to the Freshmen and Sophomores his profound knowledge of the subject.

Personally, George is a good friend to have. Usually cool and conventional, he is always ready to enter into a good time, and his consideration for his fellow sufferers is laudable. On a date he removes his spectacles and drives home very slowly. He'd even give you the coat off his back if you needed it. He is quiet and unassuming but stands up for his convictions, and these qualities are surely the measure of a man anywhere.

"Mac" is always out for a good time, and when nobody else can help him find it, he usually starts a little entertainment of his own.

For the past four years he has majored in making friends and reciting Clancy's Wooden Wedding. On top of all this he can be serious and do great things.

Success lies before him and although he will be missed at dear old Lehigh it won't be long until his friends hear from him in the engineering world.

BOB left N. E. High in Philadelphia in June 1924 and in September set forth to conquer Lehigh. Strange as it may seem he arrived without a Ford, but he soon acquired one, and since that time he has seldom been without a trusty chariot. His four years have been eventful. As a freshman he participated during the sophomore banquet season and repeated this as a sophomore. During his entire stay chemistry has been the high spot among his interests at Lehigh. He has been an active member of the Chemical Engineering Society for four years and from his present rate of progress we are expecting a big revolution in the chemical field in the future.

His history would hardly be complete if we failed to mention the many feminine hearts that he has broken during his four years in Bethlehem. Seldom a day has passed that "Bob" hasn't played bridge or eaten an oyster stew as these are his favorite diversions.

"Bob" we expect much of you in the future and your classmates all join in wishing you all the success and happiness of this world as you go through life.

GEORGE began his college career on the shores of Lake Cayuga. He says that loyalty to New York state as the home of his birth excuses this choice in schools. However, at the end of his Sophomore year, he came to stay with us at Lehigh. George is one of those boys you read about who seldom cracks a book but always succeeds in getting by with an enviable record. Lately we have been thinking that George has been working for the Bell Telephone Company in some mysterious capacity, which necessitates his compiling a long list of telephone numbers. To date no one has succeeded in getting more than a passing glimpse of this precious list. We're wondering who he'll will it to when he leaves Lehigh forever. Besides George's very evident prowess as a "social lion", he has, in the past, struck terror to the hearts of laurel holders among Lehigh's track men, in displaying his ability as a speed demon of the cinders. We look for big things from George in the future and he has all our best wishes for his success.

"EDDIE" occupies a rather unique position in the class. He was not born at an early age; he showed no particular evidences of pro-college leanings while very young; he did not drop off a freight train in the wan pale light of early morn four years ago and haul a large and battered suitcase after him up Old South Mountain to the scene of his future triumphs; the traditional certain party also appears to have been lacking in overt manifestations, and "Eddie" is not, necessarily, picked as one whose future career is an absolutely foregone conclusion.

The reason for this apparent abnormality is due principally to the fact that, being a native of Bethlehem, "Eddie" knew as much about Lehigh when entering as a Frosh as most men do after three years on the campus, hence he was able to avoid the manifold pitfalls which beset the path of the undergraduate. His progress through college was rapid and continuous. Engineering, the arts, the sciences, the military and sports each claimed a part of his energies, and in each he prospered.

As to predictions for his future, there are fairly good indications that "Eddie" will not go to swell the ranks of the bond salesmen. Also we doubt that he will ever teach Greek. Otherwise, we set no limits to his achievements.

CURTIS, or "Curt" as he is more affectionately known is a product of our neighboring city of Allentown. We can't discredit him for that fact but we can credit him with the good judgment he showed in selecting Lehigh rather than Muhlenberg for his further education. Aside from that, "Curt" wanted to study engineering and that just can't be done at Muhlenberg.

He entered Lehigh with the class of '27 and is best remembered by them, but due to the misfortune of first selecting Electrical Engineering, a course he realized he wasn't made for, had to postpone his graduation for a year in order to complete the curriculum prescribed for Ch. E's. By the Ch. E's. of '27 he will always be remembered as one of their group, however. This quiet, unassuming chap was everybody's friend. He always had a pleasant word and smile for everybody and it is with genuine pleasure that we see him reach the top rung of the academic ladder and receive his degree.

"Curt", old man, we wish you all the happiness and success in the world and hope that your life after college will be as pleasant as is our memory of you.

WHEN Chester arrived in Bethlehem from the wilds of Harrisburg, he was sweet and pure; indeed, when the Dean rushed down to the station to meet him, he might well have doubled for Jack Dalton.

However, after looking around for the villain, or villains, temptation etc. were conquered in due course, and finding none, he turned his overflow of energy to the gentle arts of wrestling and basketball, said sports being greatly honored by his participation.

So the years went by, until, with the Spring of his junior year, came the big event. He grew a real, honest to goodness mustache. This is considered by many to be one of his greatest accomplishments.

We find him sadly changed in his senior year. Old, cynical, aloof, he wends his way among the hordes as he goes to his class. We take the liberty of predicting a brilliant future as a salesman for him; one glance at his laughty mein would convince any customer of the futility of argument.

Although he started his career up at Wesleyan, we cannot hold that against him, for he realized his mistake before it was too late. As a result, "Stu" hopped off the train, and fell right in with "Twenty-eight".

His ability of presiding at "board meetings" is unsurpassed, and it would not be amiss for us to predict some large corporation fortunate in securing this embryo executive. However, "Stu" may fool us all, and there is a strong possibility that he will show the undergraduates of some university just how accounting should be taught.

At any rate, "Stu's" ability, and willingness to ever help the less fortunate should go far towards making him a success in any field he chooses to enter.

GIRLS, here we have a hundred and twenty pounds of flaming youth, except when he's near a freight yard. Four years ago he was the perfect picture of childish innocence; today he is the apple of the female eye. In his Freshman year his virtuous resolutions were successful; but the ensuing three years wrought havoc with study. In his Sophomore year, it was not always sickness that took him to the Hospital. Henry's Junior year was marked by an alarming increase in his social activities, new conquests came daily, and studies slowly assumed the minority. In his Senior year he assumed the proverbial dignified air. As a rail-roader he made good, for no freight car number escaped his eagle eye. Henry has often attempted the he-man stuff and he is oftentimes seen walking on our back roads.

Now, as to his creed, we can but say: New face—new fancy.

FULLY cognizant of Bethlehem and its environs G. S. Messinger, '63, deemed it the best place to express his protegee who had rooted at Easton High for four years.

Fear of the debilitating effects of too sudden an acclimation prompted Clyde to commute during his Freshman year, thereby increasing the dividends of the L. V. T. Co. Consequently, as a Senior, he enjoyed the opportunity of grabbing a few extra nods of sleep during the chapel services.

Even the best of men go wrong. Clyde proved the veracity of this when he enlisted as an M. E. Swearing and sweating have been prevalent at times but he has remained true to the colors of Larkin's cohorts.

At the last election Wilson Boro politicians anxiously sought his vote for they claimed "part time" residence as substantial proof of interest in the activities of that community. Clyde denies this but prefers to continue his visits to that home where L. V. T. ranks high in the heart of one little Miss.

However, after a year and a half he discovered that the broader range of subjects offered Industrial Engineers appealed to him, so that now he is a full fledged Industrial.

One must not get the idea either that "Dan", as he is generally called, is without his faults, even if he is a stalwart on the football squad. He wastes his time in "bull" sessions, spends his money foolishly now and then, and tears off over the weekends to see the fair lady.

He studies too, not too much, gets his sleep regularly, usually in the afternoons, is a member of the football and wrestling squads, takes a lively interest in other college activities and we wish him much success in the "cold" world which he soon will enter.

Nevertheless "Gil" even without over-study has done quite well scholastically. As far as perseverance goes, "Gil" ranks "ace-high"; for even now, in his senior year, he is still plugging away, determined to pass off chapel, having missed-out previously several times by only one or two. In appreciation of his loyal attitude, I think that it would be fitting that we all stand and give him a rising vote of thanks. "Everybody, please rise for a moment". "Thank you, that's fine." I can see from your enthusiastic response how deeply you appreciate his efforts.

All joking aside, "Gil" is really a very fine fellow, the kind that you just can't help getting along with, not temporarily but permanently. His samaritan-like attitude is fascinating and will, no doubt play an important part in his future success. Well "Gil", good luck to you, I know that success as a doctor will surely be yours.

THE handsome yoked above is Penbrook's gift to Lehigh and woman. "Stan" is the living example of what Lehigh can do for a pure and simple dutchman. "Ivan" started off with the class of '27 but took a year off to cut grass in a bonyard and work in the bridge-shop of the Bethlehem Steel. He took another shot at college and became a ball of fire scholastically, socially, and athletically. "Stan" is now fully tamed, being housebroken in everything, and is now all set to hattle his way to the position of the successful banker. "Brute" usually has it all doped out and manages to see a good deal of Bernice and Marie, who do not know who his old man is and consider the source. "Stan" is a very deep thinker and gets a big kick out of that inner satisfaction of knowing things. He is an earnest student of Anatole France and knows a lot of the good ones from Shakespeare. Penbrook, you can be proud of this son. He is destined to go far in life, and will sometime be a credit to Neal Carruthers and an object of intense interest to Percy Hughes.

THE personage on exhibition above is none other than the very popular Walter L. Miller, better known off-stage as "Walt". He was the first person to advance the theory that too much study causes insanity; and as a result he has led a very sane life.

When "Walt" was a very young man he migrated from the woods outside of Reading to the big school of Lehigh. As a result of his early ambition to study, "Walt" has done a lot of work during his sojourn in Bethlehem, although he frequently goes deer-hunting over the week-ends.

Seriously, "Walt" is a hard worker and passes all his courses with ease. He has made innumerable friends on the campus and in town by his pleasant manner and sociability. We're sorry to see him leave Lehigh, but everyone expects him to take the world by storm. If a winning personality and past achievements count for anything, he is sure to make good. AFTER four years at Lehigh University the Class of 1928 finds that among its members there is at least one "man of mystery" from the remarkable town of Woodbury, N. J., which turns out human products of every known type as well as unheard of, capability, or what have you. "Now we have a fellow down at Woodbury —". But to get back to our "mystery man", it has been a deep mystery to everyone who knows him how "Dan" has been able to spend three or four days of every week, continuously for four college years, vacationing at Woodbury, and still make so many of the cherished "Ys" in his major subjects. For us it remains a mystery even when we know that he hails from such a remarkable, and until four years ago, unheard of community.

May this most potent mystery power always stay with you, "Dan", and after you leave the halls of this university, we know that in whatever field of endeavor you enter, success will be yours, assuredly.

"EDDIE" is one of the marvels of the modern age. Six years ago he came to our shores from Germany and after spending three years in America decided to come to Lehigh. He entered as a scholastic sophomore because of work he had previously taken, but was forced to go under Freshmen regulations. As soon as his first term was over he escaped the regulations and that year the Arcadia decided to institute "Moving up" day. Then "Eddie" was a Junior. Therefore he had been a member of three classes during one year. Since he first started as a Mechanical Engineer he has been snooping around into activities, one of which is the band. Whenever we would see "Eddie's" smiling face, blowing his Baritone horn in the "van" of the band our thoughts always traveled backward about fifteen years to five portly Teutons playing "Ach du lieber Augustin" in front of the local "Rathskeller."

HERE, gentle reader, is a lad hailing from the Empire State, who came to Lehigh by the way of Mercersburg Academy. He has won his way by seeking the most pleasant way of accomplishing his tasks, perhaps by that coveted characteristic, and winning smile of his. "Who could refuse him any request when he breaks into that innocent, dimpled smile." Professors, the English, the Spanish, all who see it fall under its influence.

While at Lehigh "Jim" has not confined himself entirely to the classroom. A glance at the end of his watch chain which he keeps concealed and is disclosed only on rare occasions, for he is very modest, there is an array of charms of many Lehigh organizations. So it is evident that in this college son, Lehigh has had an untiring worker and can see in him a strong ambition to strive toward positions where he is of valuable service and can do things worth while.

We know you have it in you, "Jim" lad, and with the help of a certain sweet young thing whom you nearly succeeded in hiding from us, (until this year), we are expecting to hear of you in high places in which we wish you much success.

"HELLFIRE"

E. M.; Theta Xi

THE little town of Souderton lays first claim to this fair lad with the profile of a greek god, but like Homer, he is claimed by many others including Collegeville, various cities in Virginia, Tennessee, the Carolinas, and of course Bethlehem. But alas, he soon leaves the last named metropolis in search of new worlds to conquer. George's chosen profession is mining, accordingly he has elected to do his searching underground. This, we must admit, is too bad, for the precious metals yield only to the voice of the rock drill and dynamite, and while we assume that George knows all about mining, we deplore the loss of his other talents to the outside world.

Despite the handicap of his good looks, we know that George will march steadily onward, with the same determination that has enabled him to surmount the discouraging obstacles of illness and injuries while in college, to the royal goal of success.

"RAY! I'm a college man!" quoth the "Rev. Dr." Mueller as he stepped from the Pullman of the "Diamond". As a crowd gathered to meet the great evangelist, the "Reverend Doctor" drew himself up to his full height of five feet four inches and delivered his famous sermon on "Wine, Women, and How to Sing." After a great ovation the crowd dispersed in a hurry. Thus Wesley arrived in our beloved town and launched his great campaign which is now at its height. And, though there are rumors to the contrary, it is really due to this great reformer that Bethlehem is being made safe for freshmen.

In his off moments Wesley studies Industrial Engineering or catches up on sleep. It has been said that he once actually got up in time for an eight o'clock class. But, as none of the witnesses survived the shock, we are unable to substantiate the story.

"Aie lomme sleep!"

"BALA"

E. E.; Junior Cheerleader (3); Assistant Cheerleader (4); E. E. Society (1, 4); Tau Beta Pi; Eta Kappa Nu; Price Hall

INTERSPERSED with memories of our early college days come thoughts of "Bala" as a quiet, unassuming, innocent Freshman, amusing us with his dry humor and his musical accomplishments on the banjo. Since then, however, he has seen "life" in the "Tig college town" and one would scarcely know the sophisticated Senior as being the same "Bala".

As a cheer leader we believe him to be of the best and with his ability to wave his arms, he should be able to win great renown in the business world.

The variety and intensity of his amours show that he possesses that desirable quality known as "It". He has changed the addresses on his letters at least twice a year during his college career, but his latest acquisition has thus far proved far more durable than the rest. However, we are still wondering who the "lucky woman" will be.

Bailey's pleasing personality is bound to win him many more friends and we predict great things for him in the affairs of men. Fine fellow, good sport, best friend, we wish you the best in Life, old man,

"BILL"

Bus., Freshman Basketball; Freshman Baseball; Beaux Art's Club; Dormitory Dance Committee (Chairman); Alpha Kappa Psi.

SYNONOMOUS with "Smilin' Bill" is the racket often heard on the various roads to the consternation of the avoidrupoic police and staid Bethlehemites—all forthcoming from the dilapidated Chevy. "Bill" is recognized afar as the man possessing three proclivities, cars, basketball and some additional cars. Consequently 'tis not too absurd to picture "Bill" come tearing down traditional New Street standing on the running board, steering the Chivalrous Chevy with his right hand and dribbling a basketball with the left.

Perfection is not complete, "Bill's" single fault being his admitted membership in Alpha Kappa Psi, honorary business fraternity. One deserving complaint is his failure to graduate with two degrees, one from Lehigh, the other from Moravian Seminary where he "studied" a-plenty. And as "Bill" smilingly reminds one, "When bigger and better cars are built I'll drive them"—to which we add, "and own them also."

“MORT” is a native of the city that should have been the capital, says he. His higher education was begun at the Naval Academy, the experiences of which, as he relates them, are very humorous. After realizing that being a naval officer was not what it was cracked, up to be, he transferred to Lehigh.

"Well, I flunked that one" is the favorite remark of this young man as he finishes a quiz; but when the results are posted, we find an A or B.

If there is anything he enjoys more than a "bull session", it is more bull sessions and he is able to relate some remarkable instances as proof.

Several years ago it looked as if Kelly-Springfield would obtain the services of "Naussie" after graduation, but since then a Wrightsville concern, realizing that "Mort" has the makings of a future Carnegie, has been bidding for his help.

With "Mort's" ambition, willingness to work, and his record in college, there is no reason why he should not meet with all kinds of success in the future.

HERE we have a man who hails from that great institution of learning Princeton. For two years he worked under the shadow of Old Nassau but decided that to study engineering as it is really studied, it should be done at Lehigh. Now he is about to leave us and go out into the great unknown of Life to seek the fruits of his labor.

To give an accurate description of "Joe" is a tough proposition because, like the proverbial waters, he is still and deep. On the outside he has proven himself to be one of the finest we have ever known, and we know that somewhere inside he has some exceptional qualities that will place him still higher on the scale of success.

"Joe" has been just as successful in his activities outside the class room as in, and we know that there is someone who will gladly welcome him when he leaves us. We wish you all the luck in the world, "Joe", and success in any undertaking.

"Maybe I shouldn't have mentioned it."

IF YOU saw the Mustard and Cheese production, "Mercy Sakes", you would not question the fact that "Lee" is the Black Bottom's greatest gift to Lehigh. Not even his best friend would question that. Would you, "Lee"? This boy is "pep" personified, and, should he desire to enter the theatrical field, we do not doubt that his lusty voice would carry him to a glorious success as peanut vender at the Yankee Stadium. In addition, "Lee" is a reputed bridge player—indoor and outdoor.

Nor do "Lee's" accomplishments end here. He showed signs of intelligence some three years ago when he decided to leave Columbia and come to college. It wasn't long before he received an "A" in logic. Since then, he has been a self-admitted authority on football.

Although a strong Lehigh rooter, "Lee" regrets that he didn't go to McGill. And now that we've met the "reason", we can't say we blame him. It's too bad you can't commute, isn't it, "Lee"?

"Mike" believes no activity is too pecuniary to warrant non-indulgence. Soccer, tennis, wrestling,—all have contributed to "Mike", and "Mike" has reciprocated.

Among other accomplishments, "Foss" numbers an uncanny vein of luck at draw poker. One of "Spike's" escapades, terminating in a state of deshabille, was originally credited to Stroudsburg's "licker"; but subsequent investigations reveal the fallacy—the true cause was "Mike's" ability to rate a full house against "Spike's" three aces.

"Foss" is gifted with one of those keen minds, permitting numerous hands of bridge to supercede the proverbial midnight oil to the detriment of neither.

For three years of his college life, "Foss" remained oblivious to the wiles of the skirt-bearing species; but he, too, has fallen victim. "Mike", cognizant of the attributes and contributives of Bethlehem girls, finally rewarded them by finding himself a jane from the mosquito infested state.

Good luck to you, "Foss", in life and Elizabeth, N. J.

"BILL" is a native of Bethlehem, and naturally enough, decided upon Lehigh as his Alma Mater. However he found that a Chemical Engineering course and his many feminine friends did not mix well, but a man may be down but he is never out. Of course "Bill" returned for more, this time as a Bachelor of Arts.

From the moment he discovered that his voice had a true Army officer's resonance, "Bill's" ambition to become a member of Uncle Sam's standing army arose regardless of the fact that he is fully five feet four inches in height. Being a man of some foresight, he has decided that the government might have something to say in the matter. He has prepared himself for the future as a professor of German, this being his anchor to the windward.

What the future holds in store for "Mike" is unknown, but his friends will rest assured he will come out on top with the same beaustic visage that has marked his activities here at Lehigh.

PASCHALL is one of the lads from the wide open spaces where men are men, and most of the "moon" isn't in the sky. "Peter" came to Lehigh from Harrisburg Tech where he had a reputation as an industrious and conscientious student. Since then he has succeeded to a marked degree in removing this horrible stigma. During his freshman year he was a mechanical engineer. But seeking broader fields to conquer he became a chemical engineer, and is now qualified as a first class booze tester, beaker washer, or what have you. Whatever it is that makes the feminine heart go flip-flop "Peter" has in quantities. At present the town of Bryn Mawr seems to hold considerable interest for him. "Pashawi" is one of the outstanding drill masters in the R. O. T. C. Every Monday afternoon he does his bit to make life a burden for the underclassmen. As a result he intends to take up the profession of arms and to give the United States army the benefit of his intelligence and ability. A fine sense of humor combined with a personality completely free from affectation assures him a host of friends wherever he may go.

BACK in the summer of 1924 "Flip" decided that he wanted to be a big business man, and, hearing of the famous course in Business Administration at Lehigh University, made up his mind to get his training at that institution. September of that year found him a loyal rooter against Lafayette.

"Flip" was an innocent little fellow with Frosh cap and black tie. My what four years in Bethlehem and vicinity have done to this little lad from Glen Ridge!!

He used to study diligently during his Freshman year, and hardly a night passed that he did not seek the "Land of Dreams" before ten o'clock. Now, "Flip" studies when the girls are busy (this isn't often); and naturally his downy pillow is left untouched until the wee-small hours of the morning. But I think you all will agree that the handsome young man portrayed above could hardly go through Lehigh as he started his first year. He goes to about all the dances within a ten mile radius and usually attends stag, as the other girls would commit suicide if he took a "one-and-only".

Notwithstanding, "Flip" is making the grade in fine style, and we prophesy a successful business career for him.

"STAN" breezed into Bethlehem determined to learn everything possible about kilowatts and to get by the Sophs as easily as possible. Incidentally, he got as far as Warren Square when he heard some brutish Soph shout, "Hey, Frosh, off with the knickers".

Regardless of banquets, fights in lumber yards, stiff knees from hurdling, and stiff necks, "Stan" shows promise of being one of Lehigh's leading engineers some day. Besides getting his "amps" a la Prof. Beaver he has been taking a few courses on the best and shortest route from the North Side and on how many trips to Allentown make enough. Surely several fair hearts will be dashed over the landscape when "Stan" takes himself off to do battle for his daily bread, and what a battle. We're rooting for you, old timer, and here's hoping that you may be as successful in engineering as you have been in affairs of the heart.

WASHINGTON has given us Lincoln, Wilson, and Walter Johnson, but the greatest of these is Pierson. This type-writing engineer came to Lehigh with the ambition to be an Electrical Engineer and all that bunk. Buffeted about by surging passions and beset on every side by Laboratory reports, "Spide" fought on—and conquered.

Nevertheless, "Spide" has been a member of the baseball, football, and wrestling squads for two years. Perhaps, too, he has a list of eligibles. He's human, boys—take a guess.

"Spide's" ability to take part in college activities and at the same time keep "way up in his studies, and his general attitude have won for him the admiration of his entire class. We have no fear for his success and we shall have sympathy for his competitors, because it is "Spide".

STEP up, folks, and meet Lehigh's greatest paragon of virtue! Our Walter boasts of never having drunk Bethlehem beer, nor indulged in other outdoor sports, such as broad-casting, as offered by this fair City of Bethlehem (not of Judea!) It is true, folks, but wait—there is a Reason, and we, who have been fortunate enough to know her, say that the Reason is amply sufficient to keep anyone away from the so-called temptations of this red-hot town. Few and far between are the weekends that have found "Pitt" in "Bethlehem", indeed we have often wondered why he has not been awarded a free pass by the Lehigh Valley Railroad for long and faithful service. "Walt" has certainly earned his reputation as Lehigh's star long-distance commuter.

Yet, with all his traveling, "Pitt" is quite the optimist. Feeling that a straight Arts course was beneath the notice of an intelligent man, he majored in Metallurgy, and so may be included in the honorable company of Engineers.

To lay all joking aside, tho', "Walt" has qualities that should carry him far along the road to success in life. Anyhow, we, his friends, all hope they will, and so wish him the "best o' luck" in his chosen career. Good luck to you, Walter, old kid!

"Jim"

Bus.; Mustard and Cheese (3, 4)

LONG ago in 1924 B. C. (Before Course-Crabbers) came a youth in his pre-twenties to Beslem which is near Lehigh. Asked why he came to this man's college, of all places, he replied that first he wanted to leave Williamsport-Billport for short since all the bills came from there. The other nine were because he wished to sleep undisturbed.

It seems that "Jimmie" in his meanders here and there has not lived up to his part of the bargain; and besides he worried as to when he could cultivate a mustache. Personally we believe that he is still in grave doubt.

He has suffered for some years from Fliveritis but would still make a good mechanic in a Ladies' garage for he never fixes unless clad in a Sunday Go-to-Mectin' suit. Get him to show you how to crank a car.

But, in spite of all his sinning saintly-ness "Jimmie" is one "helluva fine fellow" and may his figures always come true.

THE old saying, "When in Rome, do as the Romans do", does not apply to "Dave". Shamokin's best example of one who has the courage of his convictions. He doesn't exactly go around and blow up buildings, but has some very radical ideas. When quite young he studied under a communist teacher and was known to all as "square root" (i.e., under the radical). At any rate, Dave takes his work seriously and loves to study—especially M. S. & T. He put this off until the senior year, the better to remember it after graduation. Track is his favorite sport, as it keeps him in training to catch trains. In fact, he is such a well known figure between here and Philly, that some have been heard to doubt his loyalty to Lehigh by thinking that he's taking a night course at the Academy of Fine Arts. Dave's fine arts, however, come in the form of cutting classes, getting in and out of trouble, and writing brilliant and learned theses. In spite of all, A's are his constant companions. He intends to continue adding to his store of knowledge after graduation, and we expect to hear a lot of "Dave" in the future.

HAVE you ever walked through Warren Square and heard a noise like a huckster's bugle? That was the young lad pictured above practicing on his saxophone. From the stories he tells, and others we hear of the dances at "Budd Lake" we wish we were musically inclined. But music is not "Jit's" only accomplishment and, though he protests that his knowledge of the courses he is taking is as thin as this year's debts, he nevertheless manages to emerge from the finals with very satisfactory marks.

"Jit" has given evidence of only a slight interest in the fair sex; his attitude of indifference being something we have tried in vain to imitate.

With his present idea that the world is a wonderful place for those with a sense of humor, but hell for the pessimist, he should encounter few gloomy obstacles in whatever business he enters.

"GENE" was born in the bleak and drear coal fields where little is known about what goes on outside. At an early age his naturally inquisitive nature began to ask the "Why" and "Wherefore's" of many things, thus, Hazleton lost one of its leading citizens; Lehigh being "one up."

Being an E. E. "Gene" had to pound the books quite regularly, however, it was not all work and no play. He shone most brilliantly over the week ends. Not that he wasted much time on the weaker sex, the fair ones of Bethlehem rated not at all for he insists the home town product is the best. "Gene" is at his best in a crowd of men. His extra curricular activities have been carried on mainly off the Campus. It is said he knows Bethlehem better than any one in College and who can deny it.

"Gene" has a big program before him when he graduates. We know how able he is to carry it out so here's wishing him luck.

JUST why a chap like this had to come from a place like Jersey City is beyond us. It may have been, if we can rely upon Aristotle for an explanation, merely the result of his having been born there, or of some other trifling cause over which he had no control. However, despite this gross error of his youth: that of selecting a spot so near to Hoboken for a birth-place, his better nature manifested itself as he neared manhood, or whatever, and prompted him to choose the much more floridly intellectual atmosphere of Bethlehem in which to grow and blossom forth into maturity like the proverbial Jopple tree. Yea, verily.

Besides being a boxer of no little note, a physiographer par excellence, and an ardent seeker into the whys and wherefores of things educational, "Ret" further distinguished himself by getting out of Lehigh in three and a half years, and what is more astounding, by doing so without being told to by the dean. Right now, we hear, he is encouraging the rising generation of Hillside, N. J. to the bigger and finer accomplishments of life.

As a final crack, we might add this little epitaph:

He walked through life with dreamy eyes,
This quiet, thoughtful chap called Ret—
But waters, though they're still, may be A little something more than wet.

"ALL the news that's fit to print" about "Rex". Originally our colleague hailed from San Juan, P. R. For further details of his hailing apply to the Porto Rican authorities. His first experience with civilization was obtained at N. Y. M. A. After this encounter the Military Academy officials were about ready to retire. Then "Pepito" enlisted with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's cohorts. Since that day Dr. Butler has been broadcasting as if he had felt the last straw.

To bring order out of an otherwise chaotic life "Colombo" wended his way to Bethlehem to absorb the culture of the enlightened gentlemen of Lehigh. In these surroundings he could not help but display an advancement in intelligence and learning. But "Rex" was not alone in deriving benefit from his progress for today the faculty and student body find in him a brilliant student and an ever welcome friend.

Rexach is leaving our midst—temporarily we hope—with a sheepskin which he acquired by some hard work and more dexterity. We wish him all the success in the world and hope that we shall have him with us frequently.

Hasta la vista, "Pepito".

"ROBBIE"

Ind. Eng., Ind. Eng. Society

"ROBBIE" is the only contribution that Port Norris ever made to Lehigh's student body. Believing that a transition from this small town to the famous South Mountain Institution of Bethlehem would be too abrupt, he spent a year of preparation at Peddie. "Robbie" wanted to startle the mechanical engineering world (under Fred Larkin's guidance) when he entered Lehigh but his ambitions later turned to other fields. Industrial Engineering with its strong attraction forced him to spend his last two years dashing between Bill Hall and the Business building. After wading through Machine Design he found himself extremely annoyed in his Senior year by a course known as Statistics and its necessary evil voluminous reports. Except for these petty difficulties his life was devoted to taking afternoon naps and writing frequent "billets doux" to the one and only. Sleeping in the afternoon is a common occurrence with "Robbie". He often talks in his sleep too, and we can always get responses to any questions whatever when he is in this mood. Unless he breaks this habit before he gets married we fear for his welfare. All efforts on our part have failed to discover why "Robbie" is so extremely reluctant to reveal his future ambitions and hopes (?).

"No, that's right."

THERE followed in the wake of the leading Parkersburg citizens who matriculated at Mr. Lehigh's college a rotund lad named Charles Angelo Roberts. He was called "Angel" but did not act the part. For when the class fends came off, the man from the wilds of West Virginia was right at home. After his fightin' days were over, his interest did not diminish; the underclassmen appropriately dubbed him "agitator". In time, as he became one of the Rover Boys, his sobriquet changed to "Angie".

Being mechanical and prosperous, he purchased a motorcycle, one that ran—for a while. A more familiar sight is "Angie" playing chauffeur in his Dodge, in which for three years he "got around". And he did in more ways than one. With the aid of his motor he collected ads and "got in college", as his activities attest. Result: a collegiate "key ring" on which he could display a different charm every day in the week.

A delightfully congenial, jovial, enterprising lad is "Angie". He is well-liked and will be missed, but he should do well as a big oil or butter and egg man.

TO BEGIN with, "Mink"—for nobody calls him anything but "Mink",—can do anything he wants to if he wants to. That seems to be Mink's chief and only real fault. One thinks of a bloodhound when Mink is really serious about a sport or a subject. With his head close to the ground he trails it to its har, disregarding interference in any form. Soccer, Lacrosse and Singing were "Mink's" chief interests.

"Mink" has the kind of laugh that makes it a pleasure to be laughed at,—a beautiful "Pebecco" smile, and a stack of puns that would make any sophomore envious. With true Spartan spirit, he withstood the wiles of the fairer sex until his senior year, but then—Oh my,—and Stamford is such a distance from Bethlehem!

We'll be sorry to have you leave us "Mink", and when the name of Robinson is joined with that of Morgan, don't forget the old place and those damn hard Chapel seats.

IN September of our Sophomore year our class was increased in number, but scarcely so in bulk, when Harold came to us a legacy from R. P. I. His size, however, is not at all commensurate with the place he has taken in the eyes of his classmates.

"Casey", as he is frequently called because of an unconquerable disposition to argue, is quite an athlete both physically and oratorically. He has won honors at both. As an emulator of Darwin's theory, he has no equal at rope climbing.

We are never at loss to explain Harold's absence from home or meals. He has blazed a beaten path between the distant parts of Bethlehem, and may be seen traversing it at any time of the day or night. Harold cannot be blamed for it when the cause is considered. Just ask him.

We will be sorry to have to part fortunes with Harold but such is always the way. To say that he is well-liked is unnecessary—his popularity attests that. We wish him as much success in after-college life as his efforts now deserve.

THERE was great joy in the M. S. & T. Department when "Ruby" appeared at Lehigh, for here was a man with the natural carriage of a major and all the demeanor that is incidental with that position. But alas and alack, "Ruby" took a dislike to things of a military nature and the great case of Rubino versus M. S. & T. began. Our good-natured friend, "Joe's" favorite pastime is sleeping; also his favorite hobby is sleeping, and all in all he is a past master of the art. "Ruby" spends two days thinking about some work which in itself takes about a half an hour to do. "Ruby" spends a good deal of the leisure time at the Dispensary and has been such a frequenter, whether he was ill or not, that he has come to be regarded as a familiar figure there. It is obvious that such contact should make him familiar with most of the remedies so that "Ruby" can, upon the ailment being named, immediately recite the remedy with all the details. He always has a representative collection of pills in his room.

Law school, where he is going, is calling him and in anticipation of this it is always he who is called upon when legal decisions are made.

WITH its usual inclination to whittling down its fellow members to life size, the Class of 1928 soon decided that the individual with the numerous names was to be thereafter known as "Rye." Not content with a single nickname "Rye," soon acculturated such others as "Ich", "Walt", and "Swede". "Rye's" most outstanding characteristic is his remarkable lack of speed, except when hurrying to an eight o'clock class when he may be seen dashing madly up New Street after a breakfastless preparation for the morning grind. "Ich" successfully survived four years of continuous "riding", leaving behind many favorable impressions of his untiring good humor. His first years were spent in unmercifully pestering, teasing and otherwise bothering his fellow students on Church Street. The especial victim of Ryerson's attacks has been his roommate Stone, the other half of "Rock and Rye" twins. In the early part of his last year "Rye" made his first acquaintance with one of the gentler influences of life (women) and one of the reactions was that he almost completely forgot to bother the other Monticello-ites.

Sigma Alpha Mu

THIS is supposed to be a biography of a student in college. Naturally enough it should then be a story of his studies, how he met them and what they did for him.

Having seen "Manny" as a freshman, without any knowledge at all, and having watched him through the long arduous four years of his college career I feel capable of judging what it has done to him. Here, I meet an obstacle, I can't find anything to write about, it seems that he's remained the same, that he's preserved and kept his soul free from anything that might be classed as knowledge. He must have gone to classes, he is graduating; how did he do it? It can't be the fault of his school after all. Some men have acquired something at Lehigh, it must rest in his possessing the art of withstanding all outside influences while giving the impression that he is constantly absorbing. "Manny" appears to be unchanging.

Perhaps his home town is the reason for this quality. Ever hear of calm, old Philadelphia; ever try to break through its air of seclusion? There you have it!

"Oh Mm--y!"

NEW YORK, N. Y.

Columbia Grammar School

"HERB"

B. A.; Band (1, 2, 3); Sigma Alpha Mu

HERE we have a man of thought and character. "Herb" was not the kind to make himself ostentatious on the campus, but confined himself to the thirst of knowledge and to studying men.

Very thoughtful during his college years, "Herb" made many friends. He was none the less popular among the professors, with whom he stood ace-high.

But, with his serious temperament, "Herb" has a tender spot in his heart for the female sex, much to their fortune. His towering form seemed to be quite an attraction for them.

Although not quite a social celebrity or an unusual student, "Herb" is a real man and friend. His friends are many and all that know him think well of him.

In line with his idea of knowledge, "Herb" expects to see more of the world by travelling after graduation.

S. M. E. Student Member (1, 2, 3, 4); Intercateranety Council (4); Pi Delta Epsilon; Phi Gamma Delta.

"BILL" came to us after spending a year of college life elsewhere and we have never regretted his coming, for he has shown his abilities to be far-reaching and has proved his worth to us. His work and able handling of the destinies of Mustard and Cheese Club have been an asset in the production of two of the best productions the Club has put on.

His limitations are few, his accomplishments many. He is included in that illustrious category of men who execute responsibilities assiduously, without praise, without ostentation and without recognition. Truly Lehigh is proud of her adopted son whose faith has been unwavering, whose loyalty has been incomparable.

Once more Lehigh proudly sends forth from her protecting wings a true son, well learned in the theory of life, well equipped for the practice of his knowledge and well versed in the execution of propriety. A prudent scholar, an affable companion, a virtuous man.

"CHICK"

M. E., M. E. Society, Treasurer

TO BE a Jerseyite is bad enough, but to be born in Newark is a little short of a calamity. At the start "Chick" chose Steven's Tech as his college but not being able to stand the Hoboken atmosphere and finding the courses too easy he decided to come to Lehigh.

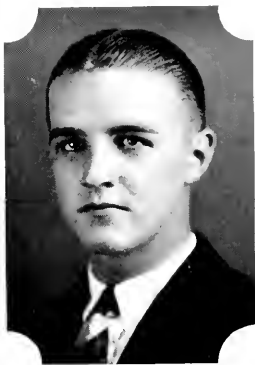

"Chick" is a living proof that the maxim "Never let pleasure interfere with business" is a true one, and the result is a satisfaction to everyone. In the face of this his mind is always active trying to find some way to get out of work.

Two noted weaknesses of this remarkable individual are women and an insatiable appetite for argument. We often wonder why he takes so many week-end trips to Newark and suffers the agonies of coming back on the bummer. We hope he lets us in on the secret soon.

A characteristic quality of "Chick's" is a strong determination, once his mind is set all attempts to change it may be considered futile.

Don't forget our bachelor apartment.

"FRITZ"

Ind. E.; Business Manager, Burr, Assistant Business Manager (3); Managerial Board (2, 3); Member of Board of Control of Athletics; Arcadia; Industrial Engineering Society, Treasurer (4); Secretary (3); Sophomore Cotillion; Pi Delta Epsilon; Phi Sigma Kappa

THIS somewhat modest and unassuming youngster fresh from the hustling "Bronnix" and its crowded subways deigned to favor Lehigh with his unobtrusive presence.

Becoming oriented was a matter of small moment to "Freddy", since he is on speaking terms with all the dispensers of the "emporiums" favored by the loyal sons of Asa Packer. At the outset he was more or less of an enigma; but his rather frequent nightly excursions in the immediately vicinity led us to suspect that he is not as misogynistic as he would have us believe.

As one of "Pop" Larkins' Industrials, "Freddie" does not quail before the menacing presence of the Great God Calculus. He "flunks" it and smilingly repeats it the following year.

We refuse to make any predictions but we do know that his keen sense of humor, courage and intelligence are adequate reinforcements in this business of living. By the way, may we add that we envy his power of endurance over the telephone.

LOUIS RECTOR SCHREINER

CHEVY CHASE, Md.

"LOU"

E. E.; Fencing Club

LOUIS Schreiner hails from Washington D. C. He began his college career at the University of Maryland, but after two years decided to come to a man's college. Maryland is co-ed, which partly accounts for "Lou's" behavior since he came to Lehigh. Bethlehem girls will be very lonesome after this June. We might add that "Lou" holds the section record for the telephone Marathon.

We take this opportunity to warn any enemies Schreiner may have against resorting to the sword for revenge, for he takes a fiendish delight in mutilating the vitals of his fencing opponents.

Having learned all about water power at Lehigh, "Lou" is now one of the country's authorities on the subject and expects to favor the Niagara Falls Power Co. with his attention. In six months we expect him to be president of the company.

Aside from the few faults just mentioned "Lou" is a good fellow and will not soon be forgotten by his friends at Lehigh.

"NORM"

C. F.; Football Squad (2, 3); Wrestling (2, 3, 4); Sophomore Council; C. F. Society (2, 3, 4); Scabbard and Blade; Tau Beta Phi, Corresponding Secretary

"NORM" comes from the Quaker City, aside from a certain dignity of bearing on special occasions there are few attributes of the Quaker in his disposition.

The librarians can vouch for this, for "Norm" is not only well acquainted with the library but also with the librarians.

To be able to associate to any great extent with librarians, of course, one must be a man of parts, and Schreiner fills the bill in this respect as well as anyone we know. This knowledge of art and letters is remarkable for an engineer. He is fond of such gentlemanly pastimes as horseback riding and is a close follower of the Prince of Wales' style in horsemanship. He is also more or less of a musician, both on the piano and vocally. It's true that "Norm" started singing in the showers one day and a Frosh came running with the query, "Who shouted mad?" but he must have been an especially dumb Frosh.

We have said nothing about "Norm's" ability as a student; if we were to say much, it would discourage some of the rest of us.

It is principally due to his powers of concentration and to the fact that he allows nothing to worry him, that we expect Norman to make a success of engineering.

"SCHWARTZ"

M. E.; Musical Clubs (3, 4); Mechanical Society (2, 3, 4); Pi Tau Sigma

ON THE second floor in Section A of Taylor Hall there is a suite known as "The Schwartz Dump"—for ten years a member of that family has occupied that suite. What then, could Frank do after being graduated from Harrisburg Tech but come to Lehigh and inherit this palatial "winter home"?

He early distinguished himself as a consistent and hard worker, mastering the M. E. course until he can all but out-Larkin Larkin. He stars, particularly, as an economist, proving again that a good engineer doesn't belong in a Ex. B. A. course. But what a treasure that valentine in Economics should be after all the A's in his other courses.

While his first interest has been centered in the classroom, and his activities upon the Campus have been few, he is widely known as a man of strong loyalties. In a quiet way he has built himself into the regard of many of his classmates—and in less quiet way he has tormented them with his diversified assortment of practical jokes.

ALONG in 1924, "Art" decided that Glen Ridge might just as well have another representative at Lehigh. The idea was acted upon, and during the ensuing four years he successfully proceeded to delve into the intricacies of accounting and finance.

Although he held his energy well in check, he did allow some of it to escape as the above activities signify. "Art's" pride and joy are his "gentleman's marks", but he assures us that as soon as this sojourn is over,—not to mention house parties and week-ends,—he is really going to "get serious". We don't believe he means to settle down, but still we can't forget "her", at a certain Lehigh house party.

With "Art's" ambition, willingness to work, and his record while in college, there is no reason why he should not meet with all kinds of success in the future.

ANDREW REYNOLDS SECOR

SCARBOROUGH-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.

"Andy"

Ch. E.

EVERYONE around Taylor Hall knows "Andy". He came to us from Scarborough School on the Hudson, in search of knowledge in the field of Chemical Engineering. His bid for fame, though, lies in his cheerfulness, and in his ability in the fields of billiards and argumentation. In the later field he is willing to take any side of any question against any opponent at any time. His most outstanding work while at Lehigh has been the four years of observation of the Sunday parade from his study window in a vain quest for the beautiful girl supposed to reside in Bethlehem. In a bull session "Andy" is always a welcome member with his tales of trips on the St. Lawrence; although there are still some doubts as to the veracity of his fish stories.

Putting all joking aside, we feel certain that "Andy's" success in life is an assured fact. His pleasing personality and big heart can not help but bring about a repetition, on a much larger scale, of the popularity and success he has attained at Lehigh.

Slatington High School

"BRUTE" "SHENT" "SWEDE"

Scrub Football (2, 3), Varsity Squad (4); Wrestling (2, 3), Team (3)

EARLY one September morning in 1924, a big blond lad landed in Bethlehem in front of the old Union Station which has since gone down before the relentless march of progress. Not being much impressed by this edifice, Howard started up the hill in search of bigger and better things. After scaling old South Mountain, he arrived at Lehigh and, as a consequence of the interminable red tape of Freshman Registration, was duly started on his career as a Chemical Engineer.

Since he has been here, we have discovered that "Shent" is a darn good skate. He hails from Slatington, that place up in the sticks from which all the good slate emanates, and Oh Boy, he is some tough baby when he gets riled. Besides being one of the best Chemical Engineers in his class, "Shent" has been on the football squad for three years and has been one of our hard working subs. Not being satisfied with messing up the other fellows in Football, he took up wrestling (and how!). Since then he has been flinging some mean holds about the mat and promptly acquired the title of "Brute" by his rib cracking antics.

Well "Shent", old boy, we know that one of these days we will hear of you again as some big Chemical Engineer.

"Don't get me riled"

JOSEPH RUSSELL SHERMAN
HAZLETON, PA.

Hazleton High School

"JOE"

B. A.; Freshman Honors; Baux Arts (2, 3, 4); Sigma Alpha Mu; Phi Beta Kappa

ONE hot afternoon, a few years ago, a big handsome fellow with a farm-crish atmosphere about him, called Joseph Russell Sherman for short, was seen walking up the campus toward Packer Hall. At that time one would never have supposed that this boy would become an excellent scholar, and an all around good fellow.

His home-town, Hazleton, Pa. is really nothing to be proud of, yet to "Joe" it is the haven of God's chosen people, and only by his excellent speaking ability is he able to convince many people of the high quality of his birth place.

Unlike many chaps who study but refuse to admit it, "Joe" claims to do his work, and his record certainly compliments him upon his admirable scholastic ability.

"Joe" isn't a "Ladies man", but he does know how to handle women, his taste for the female sex being of an extremely fine type.

Thus, all said by one who knows him, "Joe" is a student in its fullest sense, a very fine chap, and a good judge of women.

AND so another Kaol-Kracker came to Lehigh! Thus began the tale of Richard C. Sickler, alias "the Man with the Green Gloves". Would that space permitted us to elaborate on the chronicle of this local celebrity, but alas! we can but touch lightly upon the high (or should they be low?) spots of his collegiate career.

Of "Dick's" freshman year it is sufficient to say that he alone was responsible for the great increase in the sale of paddles by the local lumber merchants. His sophomore year was one of recuperation from the after effects, needless to say.

However, to lay all joking aside, "Dick" is blessed with many fine qualities,—a winning personality, perserverance, and forethought, all of which should carry him far along the road to success. At all events, "Dicky Boy",—you have our best wishes for the future, and you leave many firm friends behind you who wish you well. Good luck to you, "Dick", old man!

Bus.; Varsity Football (3, 4); Squad (2); Circulation Manager, Lehigh Review; Frosh Football; Musical Clubs (1, 2); Rifle Team (2, 3, 4); Captain (3); Saint Paul's Society; Phi Delta Pi

CRASH, bang, tinkle, and "Si", whose Maiden name is Gardner Merritt, appeared on the Lehigh campus, after a non-stop flight from Brooklyn Tech. All this enthusiasm soon appeared on the football field and the "Hero" soon got a permanent berth in the backfield. The one soft thing about Gardner is his voice which warbled sweetly in the Glee Club mid the other whiskey tenors. Being a business man "Si" tried out his salesmanship and found himself circulation manager when the "Review" was born. Socially "Si" cuts a figure at E. Y. P. A. and B-Thorpe. In his quieter moments he is content to sit and play solitaire but his bridge is more noisy. Merritt has never been seen with any reading matter except the "Daily News", but strange to say, he has never been to summer school. He soon hopes to relieve pater of business cares and so we wish him all success, for Simes has always been a hustler.

LISTEN my children and you shall hear the tale of a Lehigh Senior. Out of the valley of Nesquehoning came this blond lad with the good intention of conquering all - but alas 'Twas in vain. With the passing of two hard worked years on old South Mountain he took a turn for the better or worst - the result. Ah! Dear me, as some old philosopher said - he sure knows his onions now. A correspondence school has nothing on him when it comes to the mails. Oh, sir, what is the secret of thy power! Perhaps he has that big little word - it. Conservatively speaking, he has acquired a nice capacity, Oh say about a farad. Yes, four years has brought about quite a change - once a mere, insignificant freshman and now an engineer in the making. He is quite adept at engineering things - now don't ask what. Really, you would be quite surprised at all his accomplishments. Now dear sir what is that thing hiding under the smeller. Who would have believe it? Thus endth the sermon - Amen.

"GOVERNOR"

M. E.

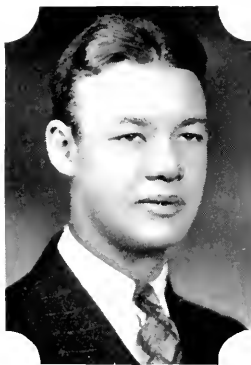

THE famous governor of New York has nothing on our "Al" Smith who typifies everything which is synonymous in the reunion bull-session - "Yes, a h - - of a good egg".

As soon as the "Governor" was able to roam the lanes of Allendale, free from maternal care, he displayed alarming symptoms of embryonic engineeritis. At that tender age his mechanical efforts were confined to the intricacies of Erecto, clay blocks and tin soldiers. To be more specific - a prospective inmate for Asa's Asylum.

Belief in the philosophical attitude that "variety is the spice of life" prompted him to give Columbia University a tryout for one semester. Not satisfied with that venture "Al", still liking to play with toys, hops about during his vacations and is now qualified to give info on "How to wipe engines" and such low-brow stuff.

Sorry, but no more space, please refer to "Who's Who" 1945 edition.

"SMITHY"

B. A.; Varsity Football Squad (4); Freshman Football; Track Team (3, 4); Vice-President of class (1); Y. M. C. A. Cabinet (1); B. U. X. Sigma Chi

DURING the last four years, between summer cruises on the "George Washington" and Standard Oil tankers, "Gene" has endeavored to wrest from Lehigh's grasp the benefits of a liberal education. Majoring in English, he has added a great deal to his natural ability as an orator. Given a listener, he will immediately spout forth in a defense of Bryon's moral character or on the defects of that publication, the New York Times.

His progress along the lines of extra-curricular activities was severely handicapped by his sojourn at the nearby institution of Moravian College. Nevertheless he made a very good showing with the football and track squads and served as vice-president of his class one year. We sincerely hope that his desire to become a prominent lawyer will not be frustrated by his weakness for a set of traps or too frequent visits to Paterson, N. J. where it is rumored an attractive member of the fair sex dwells.

"BEN"

Eng. Phys.; Lehigh Review (3, 4); Vice-President, Radio Society (4); Wilbur Scholarship; Tau Beta Pi (3), Vice-President (4); Omicron Delta Kappa; Phi Beta Kappa

AND now, Ladies and Gentlemen, if you will give me your attention, we have come upon a very rare, and an almost extinct, type of the masculine being, the student. We have before us the man who has won more scholastic honors than any other member of the class. However, notwithstanding his Wilbur Scholarship, his Tau Beta Pi and Phi Beta Kappa keys, he is "even as you and I".

"Ben" isn't a spectacular fellow, doesn't go in much for the exciting things, and is quite content to pursue the intricacies of higher mathematics while other men delight themselves with more alluring figures. But at that he gets around some—we have it from reliable sources that he once went to the movies. He admitted it, too, but added hastily, "Of course, I studied a little during intermission."

"Ben has three claims to fame: he can study longer at a stretch and oftener than any man in the class; he hails from Lancaster—say ya do, "Ben"?; and has succeeded in evading the snares of all designing maidens—so far as anybody knows. Any one of these would number a man among the exceptional characters of the class.

Best of success, "Ben"!

"SPEED" "SPANISH" "LEFTY"

Bus.; Baseball Squad (1, 2); Arcadia; Board of Publications; Interfraternity Council (2, 3); Athletic Committee (3); Sophomore Council; Chi Phi

FOUR (?) years ago "Speed" Spalding came up to Bethlehem from Muscle Shoals, Alabama, and he has never returned since because he went home with his room-mate one week end to Cranford, N. J. And ever since then Cranford has possessed such an attraction over George that we in Bethlehem seldom see him any more. He usually spends only three or four week ends of the year with us—Spring and Fall house party and Lafayette game, if it happens to be an odd year.

"Speedo" started his college career as an engineer, but, like so many other men of very sound judgment, changed to business at the end of his freshman year and spent his remaining college days discussing baseball and losing money on the Washington Senators.

And now that George hopes to graduate in June, we are all beginning to realize how much we are going to miss him—especially those of us who succumb too easily to the "bull-session" which is ever present when George is around.

"SPIKE" "DUTCH"

C. E.; Varsity Football Squad (2, 3); Basketball Squad (4); Civil Engineering Society (1, 2, 3)

FROM the famous bologna town, Lebanon, there came a certain flying Dutchman, Speicher, known for his ability to consume beers and pretzels. No doubt at an early age he showed an aptitude for building mud dams and bridges. Although he knows a little more about science now, he wouldn't give a dam if some one did bridge the gap between Nicholson and Lebanon—it would make the trip so much shorter.

The reason why "Spike" chose Lehigh for his Alma Mater was, that he wanted to see Lafayette beaten—even if he had to do it himself. For two hard seasons he reported for duty with the scrubs, hoping to make the varsity and show the football world what he could do. Unfortunately, he didn't make the team—hence that Brown team is still looking forward to a victory.

Of a genial and sunny disposition, "Dutch" has acquired a host of friends in his four years in Bethlehem. His endeavors to do things well, designate him to be a success in the career he chooses. Here's hoping old man!

"How can you tell?"

WILLIAM PAUL STARKEY, Jr.

CHESTNUT HILL, PA.

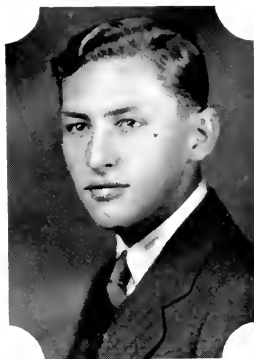

Lawrenceville

Bus.; Freshman Track, Squad (2); Lacrosse Team (3, 4); Beta Theta Pi

PAUL came to us from New Haven, handicapped by a years tuition under old Eli, but Lehigh's whole-hearted adoption of this young stalwart soon convinced him that he had found his Alma Mater, and accordingly he set out to show the rest of us just how much he realized this.

Not only has Paul's career with us been marked by scholastic and athletic triumphs but socially he has kept Lehigh well within Bethlehem's 400. Ever since his first appearance he inaugurated a new standard for the well-dressed man at Lehigh. Paul has been affectionately dubbed "the boy with the Perfect Build" and we seriously suspect that the recent popularity of "La Crosse among the 'Weaker Sex'" can be traced to the attraction of that "indefinable something" which this brown-eyed lad possesses.

We predict every success for Paul and he goes forth to the "battle" with all our good wishes and a host of friends.

CHARLES RICHARD STAUFFER

Bethlehem High School

"Dick"

Bus.; Varsity Lacrosse (2, 3, 4), Squad (1), Captain (4); Union Cabinet, Chairman of College Song Committee; Interfraternity Council, Committee on Interfraternity Athletics; Cyanide Club; Delta Upsilon

"GIVE him a chance, he's just a local boy" does not apply to this blithe lad, for Richard has ascended South Mountain from the wilds of West Bethlehem and made Lehigh cry for mercy. His ready smile and brawny arm account for his remarkable popularity with the men, and his tousled locks and classic nose are in part responsible for his even more marked success with the ladies. "Dick's" main accomplishments, however, have been on the Lacrosse field, and so outstanding have been his achievements that he has been the people's choice for Lord High Executioner of the suicide squad for the rest of the season.

In a more serious vein, our Richard is a mighty fine fellow and Lehigh graduates him, "nudest masculine cheers and feminine sighs, into the business world to make the name of Stauffer synonymous with success.

'STEVIE' "DEMON" "BILLY"

Ch. E., Section Chief E. (4), Arch. (4), Frosh Football (1), Chem. Society (1, 2, 3, 4), Dorm. Wrestling Champ. (5)

ON THE night before the fourth of April in the year 1907, there appeared in this world a chubby little fellow bubbling over with wiles and smiles. Sixteen years have passed and our hero enters upon the scene.

As Forrest climbed old South Mountain for the first time, each tug on his heavy bag made him more determined to become a Chemical Engineer. "Sammy" had heard that it might take five or more years to make a real Chemist, but this did not deter him in the least. He got right down to hard work (?) and tried to make the salts, the ethers, the stinks and the smells combine to form the "elixir of life".

For three years Stieff ground, dissolved, mixed and filtered; but his hoped for product was not forthcoming until he happened upon a certain radio active "something" two blocks north of Penn Street. Almost immediately IT'S radiation put new life into the product and investigator alike, with the result that great things were accomplished.

Forrest's good nature and his hearty laugh have won for him a place in the hearts of all.

Well, Forrest do you ever think you will be a Chemical Engineer?

"STONEY"

Monticello Club

SEDATE, serene, staid, sober, solemn and serious, "Stoney", sauntered his way through Lehigh. Classes were the bane of his existence. Except for classes, studies, professors, and other campus nuisances, "Stoney", like the rest of us would have enjoyed a fine four years vacation at Bethlehem. Frank and his roommate Ryerson spend many profitable evenings gambling at that game known as Russian Bank. As much as a nickel has been known to change hands in one night. During the summer he teaches at Woodbury High School and he is a rare success from the students standpoint they all pass. This might seem strange but a glance at the young femmes explains it all.

Coming here as an innocent freshman he had "Okey's moral victories" thrown at him so often that now any mention of them makes him see red. In parting, his main ambition seems to be to see Lehigh win an "Immoral" victory over Lafayette in football.

E. Society; Interfraternity Council (3, 4); Arcadia, Treasurer; Pi Delta Epsilon; Sword and Crescent; Omicron Delta Kappa; Phi Delta Theta

AFTER three years spent at Exeter, "Don" arrived at Lehigh looking for new fields to conquer. An eventful year as a Frosh, which included a speaking acquaintance with the Allentown police force, followed. Then, aspiring to bigger things, he began to help the Dean run the school—now look at it! Being abundantly gifted with that invaluable asset, a sense of humor, he speedily made the Burr board and is at present the only living rival of Don Marquis. In athletics, he turned his attention to track and proved his worth by being a perpetual winner in the broad-jump. And Oh, yes! "Don" also did some studying at college. He intends to become a C. E., so in the future the landscape will undoubtedly be covered with bridges of his building. Beware of them!

A capacity for work that astonishes an onlooker, and a versatility which is often read about but seldom encountered, leads us to predict an unbounded success for "Don" when he leaves Lehigh as he has had while here.

"Lou"

Ch. E.; Track Squad (1); Chemical Engineering Society (1, 2, 3, 4); Arcadia.

LOUIS is the big, blonde, blue-eyed boy from Brooklyn. In his affairs with women he gives justice to all but special favors to none. Loyalty is one of his predominant virtues. One of the things about him we admire is that he is not ashamed of his home-town, or if he is, he has never admitted it. And ever since he first discovered that the nauseating vapors which emanate, after a protracted period of fermentative decomposition, from the oval reproductive body which is the fruit of the domestic hen, can be produced by the proper mixing of chemical ingredients, he has never wavered from his ambition to become a chemist and soap-maker.

As a means of attaining the realization of his ambition he applies himself diligently to his studies, but does not over-emphasize them. Many a fellow he has helped over the stumbling-blocks of a tough course. Neither does he fail to do his share in any project undertaken by the University in whole or part. Considering his devotion to his chosen field of effort and his notable achievements during his four years at Lehigh, we predict for him a brilliant chemical success.

"BIRDIE."

B. A.; Soccer Squad (1, 2, 3); Wrestling Squad (2, 3, 4); Club de Quinze; Collegium Romanum

THE vicissitudinous life of this young man eventually led him to America, and then to Bethlehem. With that tenacity of spirit which is characteristic of his race, he decided to stay for four years, and has done so. His gift of the cristic art, plus a slight London accent gives him an individuality all his own. Incredible as it may sound, and in spite of his physical limitations he saw and sailed the seven oceans while most young men were going to grammar school. On rare occasions he has divulged a few of his sea adventures, and they compare with any fiction written; however, even to his intimates, there still remains an impenetrability of mystery which has not yet been pierced.

There are two pet hobbies of his which he has never been able to hide; he assiduously trips the light fantastic toe, and 'feels' for the French language.

"SWEITZ"

M. E.; Glee Club (2, 3); Pi Tau Sigma

"SWEITZ", a product of the hard coal regions of Pennsylvania, four years ago bid farewell to the fields of anthracite, mules and coal crackers to come to Lehigh. He had no particular reason for making such a drastic change. He might have matriculated at any other school but he followed the way of least entrance resistance and came to South Bethlehem.

At Lehigh "Sweitz" displayed his talent in the Glee Club and developed into a fine crack (ed?) first bass-man. His nights were often spent in distant villages, even going as far as Catasquiqua to pass the time.

After four years of B. T. U's, Machine Design and beer we find "Sweitz" ready to graduate as a "broken down Mechanical."

"RAY-RAY" "RAY" "PRECIOUS"
"SHAMBLE" "WENDY"

Industrial Engineering; Freshman Basketball;
Tennis Squad (1, 2, 3, 4); Sigma Chi

"RAY" hails from Philly. He isn't exactly the Quaker type, but he sure radiates Brotherly Love. One of his characteristics is that of being a likeable chap and as a result "Precious" has many friends at Lehigh.

But his friendships are not confined to the South Mountain reservation and its environs; there are those whom he esteems at Smith, Beaver, and Vassar, which in part accounts for occasional holidays spent in Poughkeepsie with "Steve". The postman associates the name Sweitzer with St. Louis, for "Ray" has a way of getting results which involves an unorthodox left, and well conceived phrases commonly known as "line".

In his undergraduate days "Ray" has accomplished plenty. Ever serious about scholastic attainment, he has "crashed thru". His was the uncommon good fortune to receive the commendation of Lehigh's "crew coach". Some sort of statistical work will hereafter probably be his chief line. He has wielded a racquet for his Alma Mater, played basketball for his House, and danced his way into the hearts of local maidens. "Ray's" Saturday night depredations need no elucidation. He was distinctly sophomoreish when he put away childish things; his choice of ties aroused the envy of the Frosh and the ire of the upperclassmen.

"JACK" "SWINT"

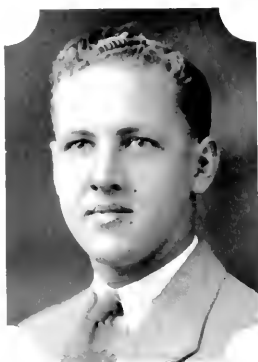

B. A.; Freshman Wrestling, Club de Quinze

ONCE upon a time, there was a little boy named "Jack". "Jack" called the flats of New Jersey his home. For various reasons, cultural and otherwise, he decided that a college man's life was an attractive one. So he came to Lehigh to broaden an already well-developed and sophisticated mind.

However, his childhood illusions were quickly shattered by the inexorable grind of studies and dates. The old-time Colly claimed his undivided attention for awhile, but Union St. soon took it away. Now "Jack" is able to walk that trail backwards and blindfolded. Chemistry and "Jack" also, were good friends, so close that he took freshman Chemistry several times, finishing it off by majoring in that science.

With John's loss, we lose an entertainer of merit. His Machiavellian anecdotes were masterpieces. We feel that he will attack the future with the same bull-dog determination that has characterized his stay with us. He leaves for Jersey's clay with the best wishes of his many friends.

"PETE" hails from Washington where men are congressmen and women are keen. He was only a poor little city boy when he came to this fair town and then She came along. "Pete" has never recovered. Scholastically he started his spurt as a Frosh by obtaining Freshman honors, and by keeping up the good work throughout his four years he is one of the highest men graduating from his curriculum. Oh yes, and he's an athlete. ask him and he'll tell you all about it. As a track luminary he was a broad jumper receiving most of his practice jumping on Broad Street trolley cars. When a junior, however, he decided that he preferred baseball to track so "Amby" as he is known about the diamond held down first base during his last two years in college.

He's an engineer and is going to work when he graduates. His greatest ambition in life is well, you'd better consult him. He graduates with a good class as a good student, a good athlete, and a good fellow. Gwd but he's conceited.

"NAT" "TY"

IF EVER Jersey City had a prodigal son, it is "Nat". That city can toot its horns and wave its flags in honor of his fine record at graduation.

"Nat" has been a distinctly thoughtful man at college. Especially thoughtful of his studies, wherein he found success that warrants considering him one of Lehigh's best scholars. "Nat" was also very thoughtful of the girls, much to their fortune and the burden of the mailman. Being one of these blondes that women prefer, he was quite prominent with the other sex.

"Nat's" famous huddle system before an examination is tradition at Lehigh. His blonde hair could be seen in the center of a mob of "don't-crack-a-bookers."

Looking back over the four years, all who know him realize his unusual ability to make friends. And together with his fine social ability, the world is going to step up and take notice when "Nat" hits it.

With a chosen field of Big Business, and the hope of showing Jersey a little of the Lehigh spirit, "Nat" should accomplish wonders.

"CHARLIE"

E. E.; Musical Clubs (2, 3); Band (2, 3, 4); Eta Kappa Nu; Associate Bridge Editor; Tau Beta Pi

"CHARLIE" happened to Lehigh in the sophomore year, having "prepped" for two years at Moravian College before entering. He has found that technical stuff is easy for him, and has devoted a good part of his time to examining the inside of textbooks, but don't think he is lost in any kind of a situation on that account. As a result, he is now graduating as an Electrical Engineer with high honors.

He is a rather quiet chap although he makes a big noise in the Band, where he plays one of those horns that wrap around his ears. We all envy him the inside track he has held at Fem Sem through his acquaintance with members of that Faculty.

One of the traits that has made "Charlie" many friends is his willingness to help others at any time.

We know that with all his characteristics, "Charlie's" future will be even more of a success than his past, and we all join in wishing him the best of luck.

TA-A-A-M! Wa-a-a-t? This is the cry that can be heard resounding through the halls at any time of the day or night.

"Pratt", as a very meek Freshman, arrived at college a few days late, but he has been "on time" for every other event of importance since then.

His greatest responsibility while in college has been the care of his roommate which he accomplished with only a fair amount of success. The methods he used met with some opposition on the part of said roommate, but we are sure it was all for the best.

"Pratt" kept to himself and his books during his first year, but after that his natural friendliness and curiosity got the best of him, and since that time nothing has happened that he has not been connected with in some way. His popularity with those of the fair sex has caused us to marvel, and we're wondering who the lucky lady in Scranton might be.

We know he will be successful in that battle called "Life", and his many friends are wishing him the best - here's to you "Taam"!

TWENTY-TWO years ago "Towlic" got his first glimpse of the world in Brooklyn and was immediately convinced that to live anywhere else would be heaven. His wanderlust carried him from Flatbush to the Mosquito State and then to Beantown. Among the Puritans in New England he is now developing the Hahvahd culture and accent. Although Howard is a hard worker, he does not permit the electrical engineering course to cramp his style entirely. Far from it! Hood College and South Jersey are known to hold some wonderful attraction for him. In this "Holy City of Bethlehem", Eighth Avenue seems to be Howard's favorite place. He firmly believes that each life to be complete must have the gentle influence of the fair sex. Severe censorship due to Howard's desire to hide many true features has altered our original sketch considerably. Was it modesty or fear that prompted this action? However we filled our allotment of words without revealing too much, which is the main object.

THE above countenance, O gentle reader, is that of one of the favorite sons of a suburb of Pittsburgh.

After playing golf for four years at Kiski, "Dick" returned to Pittsburgh in the summer of 1924 and, after spending a stifling three months in the smoke of the outlying districts, he finally cleared his lungs, felt his way out of the darkness, and pointed his toes toward Bethlehem.

The lad soon found that there was much to be learned off our campus on the hill and early in his career set out in quest of the various kinds of knowledge that lay in the land that stretches from the foot of the hill out across the valley.

As most of us have many regrets as we look back on our four years of strife and pain, so hath Richard, but his greatest is that our noble institution has never been represented on the field of honor in the ancient and honorable Scotch game.

In closing we wish him the success that is due him, whether it be in designing a bridge for the English Channel, or if it be in the National Open.

"ROGE" "VAN"

FOUR years ago little "Roggie" came into our midst from the city of wine, women, song and Onakers. Of all these, however, Roger knew nothing. His life had ever been a sheltered one and of the weaknesses of the flesh he lived in total ignorance.

During his sojourn here at Lehigh, "Van" has learned much of the ways of Bethlehem's warm, weak, and willing women and of the beer that flows in the gutters. He has also cast away his ever faithful umbrella for a more "collegiate" and serviceable "slicker". Altogether Roger's education has progressed remarkably in the last few years.

Roger had one ambition, if it can rightfully be called such, and that was to become a Chemical Engineer. Being a "good fellow" and a Chemical Engineer don't seem to go together but Roger is the exception. He has had his trials and tribulations with the department but still they can't down him.

Now that he is about to leave us we begin to appreciate just how much we will miss him and his cheery smile. Roger's indomitable courage and perseverance will go a great way toward making him the success we all know he will become. Good luck, Roger, in the great fight ahead. We all are betting on you.

"DANNY" "SHORTY" "BIG BOY"

E. E.; Sophomore Council; Wrestling Squad (2); E. E. Society

IF "Danny", known as "Authority Dan" to his intimate friends but better known to his classmates as "Shorty", manifests as much perspicacity in subsequent years as he has in preterition, his auspiciousness is indubitable.

"Danny" initially depicted "The sign of superior intelligence" as a verdant freshman, when the Sophomore Council honored him as Lehigh's baby-boy. As for his alternate alias—"Shorty"—one glimpse is an elegant sufficiency, anymore would be superfluous.

He has also entered the lime-light in the off-campus activity as exemplified by his frequent appearances at the bi-monthly Friday night performances on Broadway. As a first class E. E., he possesses a low frequency voice and he uses this wavering tenor in utter disregard of the unfortunate victims who chance to be within the range of his powerful expostulation of non-harmonic discord.

Nevertheless, we all regret the day when "Danny" leaves us. He has been a faithful friend, a willing helper, and a loyal Lehigh man. We look for great things from "Danny" and feel certain that he will be a credit to Lehigh in his profession.

"NED" "NICK" "NERO"

B.A.; Freshman Swimming, Band (1, 2), Deutscher Veteran (3, 4)

"NED" is the originator and sole agent of the ear to ear grin and the gurgling chuckle. The picture above was taken when "Ned" was wearing his very cruelist sneer, so you can well imagine what this lad looks like registering contentment. But "Ned" is not just the happy-go-lucky boy you might think he is. He is an authority, "par excellence" on the German language and his researches carried him to Heidelberg last summer, where acting as a representative of Tom Bass, he tried to introduce the "Heidelberg Cap". "Ned" returned a connoisseur of light and dark beer, and when the picture above was taken he admitted he was contemplating the short-comings of Bethlehem beverages.

"Ned" is somewhat undecided as to what career he will pursue. He has hinted several times of his desire to go into active retirement, but is still uncertain as he believes the field has already been unsuccessfully exploited.

"NORM" "RUST"

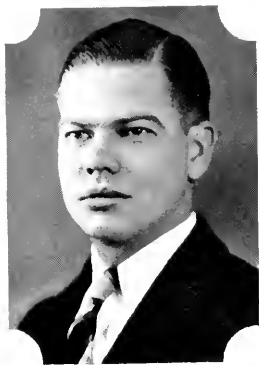

C. F.; Soccer Squad (1), Varsity (2, 3, 4); Track Varsity (2, 3, 4), Anadhi; Spike Shoe Society (3, 4) Treasurer (3, 4); C. F. Society

OUT of the wilds of Norristown in 1924 came an unknown youth, who, in four years, was to make himself very much felt, not only on the field of sport, but also at the Traylor, the Colonial, and at Mealey's. We pity the poor girls who have never known the heavenly bliss of a dance (or shall we say, workout) with "Norm".

This happy-go-lucky chap makes light of all the more serious things in life, including the austere faculty, and lets nothing worry him, not even his studies; for didn't he say, "There's not more than a good month's work in a term, anyhow."

But, seriously, "Norm's" modest and unassuming ways have gained for him a host of admiring friends, and whether his fortune lie with the "Civiles" or in playing the stock market, we wish him lots of luck.

"WOODSY"

Ch. E.; Chem. Society; Manager Freshman Basketball

IT WAS down in Centre College, back in the dim distant years, 1922 to be exact, that "Woodsie", who was then taking life easy as an arts student, became obsessed with the idea of becoming a Chemical Engineer. And so, on that memorable fall day in 1923, had one been at the Lehigh Valley Station, he would have seen this misguided youth alight from a "Valley Rattler" and head toward old South Mountain with the fires of ambition fairly flashing from his eyes.

But these internal fires were not able to cope with our cold northern climate and "Woodsie" almost departed from us. However, the next fall found him again on deck and with the same ambition but with an added knowledge of climatic conditions and a suit of red flannels.

From then on things rolled along smoothly. Lady Luck seemed to be making amends for her previous harsh treatment and as a fitting climax to this period of his life, we see our Mr. Walker proudly walking down the Chapel aisle to receive that coveted degree in Chemical Engineering.

"LIMESTONE"

E. E.; Ass. Mgr. Fresh. Basketball (3); Electrical Society (1, 2); Radio Club (1, 2); Sigma Chi

THE maxim, "like father, like son", doesn't hold in the Warner family—that is, from a football standpoint, for "Limie's" father witnessed three Lehigh gridiron victories over Lafayette back in the old days. Nevertheless, Warner, '27, can recall some pleasant memories relative to his life at Lehigh.

"Limestone", as he is familiarly called, came to Bethlehem from Montgomery School as a typical freshman. He caught on quickly however, and after spending his first vacation on his own, he was qualified for the role of a typical soph. Since then he has come to know "that little town of Bethlehem".

He embodies the principle that big men make the best targets, for A. C. and Machine Design found him an easy mark. But it is not alone for his physical stature that he is respected; he has "it"—with the fellows too. At least he does not only write home. Consequently one of Hartford's fairest has travelled this far South.

Living "way across the river" encouraged "Limie" to invest in a campus wreck and have faith therein—for two years he towered head and shoulders above the tonneau. He found time to play House football and help Bart manage one of his Frosh quintets, and sponsor some good dances for his living group.

SINCE too much truth might be disapproved by "Watty", and too much untruth might offend someone else, we have been put to considerable difficulty in writing this sketch. After graduating from High School, "Ed" undertook several years of work as preparation for the dangers and hardships of four years exposure to engineering as expounded at Asa Packer's South Mountain Resort. As a tender and unsophisticated youth, fresh from the land of the coal dust, he had aspirations of becoming an electrical engineer. A year's experience in that department made him decide differently. The further experience of a summer's work in the mines, finally convinced him that his energies should be devoted to the "deeper" things in life; so in his sophomore year he transferred to the mining course. Much of his time has been devoted to musical activities, both in and outside of school affairs. His favorite occupations are eating, sleeping, and preparing a treatise on "How to Increase Your Avoidupois". He claims never to have had a date in Bethlehem; we can figure no good reason for being out so many nights.

"Come on, gang, let's eat."

HERBERT FRANKLIN WEAVER, JR.

"Herb"

Ch. E., Band (1, 2, 3, 4); Chemical Society

ALL hail this star of the "local talent"! "Herbie" blustered in on us in Freshman year, from the local high school, blowing his own horn. The latter we can forgive him, for "Herbie's own horn" has been a decided factor in the unrivaled supremacy of our Lehigh Band. Besides marauding a mean Sax, "Herbie" cracks his courses. When he isn't mauling said Sax in the Chapel, "Herbie" may be found husting test tubes in Chandler; and from all we hear, this bozo is going to sling an obnoxious Ch. E. degree.

The nearest "Herb" likes a woman's voice is coming thru a Radiotron. It is one of Life's paradoxes, that a person, so musically inclined, should at once be so bashful, and such a confirmed "wim-min" hater.

But Dame Rumor has it that "Herbie" has been making frequent but brief visits to Wellesley. Here's luck, "Herb", - B. Thorpe and Fem Sem are too cosmopolitan.

May your life be as broad as your smile, and your success as big as your inches.

"HARRY"

Met. Eng.; Mining and Metallurgical Society

SEVERAL years ago "Harry" wandered into this little town of Bethlehem, with the intention of becoming a Chemical Engineer, but soon discovered that he would never become very proficient as a beaker-boy and removed his presence across town. After spending four years at Moravian and getting his B. S., "Harry" decided to come back and join Stoughton's crew of iron-workers.

At present his usually buoyant spirits are somewhat depressed, as he has been afflicted for sometime by an unhappy desire for an honest-to-goodness mustache. In vain has he tried everything from Stacomb to mustache pomade in order to make it appear as a well ordered mustache should, but to no avail, it is still very dejected looking.

He is, all things concerned, one of the busiest men in college; business, bull-sessions, dates, studying (?) and driving around in the Chrysler.

In spite of this rake off, we wish to assure you that Harold is one of the best natured chaps on the campus; nothing is too much trouble for him to do. Partially for this reason and partially because we think he may need it, we wish him all the success possible as he goes out to "conquer the world".

EXTRA! Extra! Extra! The new Ford is out! Extra! Extra! One hundred miles on two dry cells! Remarkably efficient new electric motor designed by M. E. Welch, E. E. Lehigh '28, the new electrical wizard.

Who knows but some day the world will be startled with Big Shot's new inventions? After working hard long years, at Lehigh and Rensselaer, he should deserve some better fate. His two dissipations are women and the saxophone. He gets the women easy and the saxophone loud. Wow! what a combination.

But he's a nice boy. He hails from Bayonne, N. J. where he graduated from Bayonne High, a gangling youth and a radio nut. However the novelty of radio soon wore off and the severity of college made its impression. And today we find the sophisticated Senior. And how! But he's handsome, girls, he's handsome! Look at his picture.

FOUR years ago this extraordinary young marvel began a meteoric career as an M. E. By being a virtuous freshman, a stoical sophomore, an indifferent junior, and a cynical senior Marvin has achieved his sheepskin.

Due to superfluous remarks and inane speech, to which he is much given especially so in the dire presence of the more favored sex, many a maiden has blushed and wrung her hands in despair. Why should this innocent youth of tender years be so unsophisticated as to permit those of the wilder sex to so seduce him that he should condescend to horrors kiss one of them. Oh, he is one of us? Behind his beaten-silver-rimmed glasses there shines the appeal of a good man for a good woman.

Marvin's observations are not limited to the engineering field, for a great deal he can tell you of Tom Mix's methods of persuading parkers to move along, when looking at the lights of the city from the lookout.

THIS chubby-faced boy from Buffalo began his career at Lehigh with an enthusiasm which has been transmitted to a large number of his classmates. From the very beginning, Arthur M. Rosenberg & Co., Tailors, agreed to help defray his expenses in view of the widespread free advertising which he created. In addition to holding several class offices, and being Business Manager of the Brown and White for the past year, "Fred" has long been an active member of Bethlehem, Allentown, and Easton society. His ability as a horseman is unsurpassed and many an afternoon finds him riding accompanied by a fair companion. "Fred" is a most obliging and entertaining host, according to Dr. Carothers, who was present at the Intercollegiate Newspaper convention here last Spring.

His graduation is practically assured, although, in the past, he has had several interesting arguments with Professors Becker, Reynolds, and Glover over the question of grades. Unquestionably, "Fred's" cheerful disposition and optimistic outlook will go a long way toward insuring his future success in the commission business.

NOT long ago, a tall slim youth made his appearance in our little town, imbued with the idea of obtaining a sheepskin. The first thing he did was to become absorbed in the eloquence of the eminent Dr. Carrothers. However, in a short while, he became restless and sought new goals to achieve. Publications, cheer-leading, the welfare of our wrestlers, soon concerned him.

But it seems that no man's life, no matter how free from complications, can remain so, for frequent weekend trips and other signs, soon betrayed the developments that were to change the whole course of our man's life. Much to our surprise this chap, who always did do things thoroughly, announced that he had willingly relinquished his freedom for life. Fortunate fellow.

Thus we now see his with a definite goal in life and ample capacity to reach it. In our humble opinion, there is no doubt that success is inevitable.

SOME four years ago the incorporated village of Richmond, Va., turned out its band and gave a rousing send-off to a young hopeful who was departing for the uplifting regions of Bethlehem. This young man, as a glance at the varied activities in the above list of honors will show, has fulfilled the fond hopes of his fellow-townsmen and will, no doubt, be met by a couple of bands upon his return.

"Fran", with his genial smile, his ready wit, and his sincerity of purpose has made his likeable personality felt wherever he has gone. He has been an inspiration to his friends and a leader in his living group, and it will be with mingled feelings of pride in his achievements and sorrow at the prospect of his departure that we watch him accept his diploma.

Prophesying his future is a difficult task, but having wrestled with him we can safely say that whenever he gets in jail he will worm his way out in short order.

LADIES and Gentlemen, step right up, and view the rosy checked pride of Buffalo. "Don" came to us four years ago with the highest ideals and ambitions and has been able to realize them in regard to scholarship, campus activities, and social life. No questions will be answered concerning other activities.

"Don" is the official representative of Sam Hellman, Bert Green, et. al; at Lehigh. No day is complete until he has explained the phrases, "The guy tossed one up to the plate that a blind woman in a tunnel could have hit with a curtain rod" or "I'm nothin' but a locomotive pulling a string of empties." Lately he has been discoursing on some peculiar machine, known as the plutoscope.

Seriously speaking, "Don" is liked by everyone and we really think he will be able to command the price of coffee and cakes after he is kissed good-bye in June by "Dutch" Stocker and Supreme Court Judge Harmon.

THREE years ago when the Dean had a new name on the lists. The name that was found on the sheet was none other than Wilson, Taylor Franklin. Other facts that we gathered from this sheet were that Taylor had come to Lehigh after graduating from Bethlehem High and taking two years at Moravian. Besides this we learned that we would have another student in Electrical Engineering.

Since he has been at Lehigh Taylor has made quite a record as an engineer. Besides being a good engineer he is quite a mechanic and some shreik. He's a wowo with the voltages and currents but with the opposite sex it's inexpressible. What is more he is quite a bull-heaver and when it comes to arguing about electrical phenomena he has a "hot line".

After graduating he expects to be a hard-boiled engineer. We predict that in the near future he will be a second Edison.

JUST about twenty years ago a baby boy descended upon the world. He howled and made a lot of racket much the same as other baby boys, but he soon got over that. In High School his parents were afraid that he would lose his faculty of speech, but they were reassured by his occasional pointed remarks that he would not be dumb but merely a man of few words.

At the early age of sixteen he descended from the Lehigh Valley train and started to solve the Bethlehem and Lehigh University problem but he never worked out the answer until two summers ago. Since then he has become a man about college and even more of a student. He never found studies hard, like most of us, but complained because they were so dull. While the rest of us were wondering where we would find time to complete our work, Warren was considering what he would do with his extra time. He always seemed to find an unlimited amount of time to do anything that anyone wanted him to.

Last of all Warren is absolutely unique in his class. He has never succumbed to Bethlehem's beer. And that is some accomplishment.

IN THE Fall of 1924 a new menace was added to the women of Bethlehem. "Ed" Winters alias "Chollie" decided he would make Bethlehem his home for the next four years. No sooner decided upon than done—so for four long years "Chollie" has been persuing (higher?) education at Lehigh, with the following results: (1) "Ed" has become an exceptional accountant—just ask him, he'll tell you. (2) He does not want to become president of the United States. (3) Billie Doye has wasted her life because she has failed in one great purpose, namely to meet "Ed" Winters. (4) The women of Bethlehem are not so dumb as they appear—they're dumber.

Upon reading the conclusions that "Ed" has reached at the close of his four years of college, I'm sure my dear reader that you will agree with me that the world is about to benefit by one more smile and helping hand, which is one of the finest qualities any man can contribute to his community.

FROM the snow-capped peaks of Alaska to the sun-kissed shores of the Mediterranean, no greater joy could be found, in the year 1903, than that of Maison Wright de Syracuse, when little "Holy", a funny shaped amoeba with a happy smile on one end and ten toes on the other, came to visit. The smile has been on its face ever since, despite the fact that the toes in question have led it into many devious by-ways. When the critter grew long enough, one more potential major-general embarked on his Manliusan career. And now Lehigh has had him for four years, bags and all. Besides managing the basketball team and making a fine appearance on the gridiron this past season playing the baton in the band, he has distinguished himself in various other activities. What little elf with a start like this could but have a brilliant future!

FOUR years ago, a six-foot youngster packed his carpet-bag, bid good-bye to his friends and relations, and set out on the bumpy Long Island Railroad. As the "Queen City of the North Shore" faded into the distance, he firmly made a resolution to set the world afire.

The next news of our hero was from the Chandler Lab. He had matriculated as a Chemical Engineer and soon thru the smoke, it was seen that he had very nearly accomplished his original resolution. A twelve cent lab rebate gave him new ideas about a college education. Things could be done much more efficiently without so many laboratories. For this reason he became an Industrial.

We surmise that he still had his original purpose in mind during the summer of his Junior year for we found him selling gas stoves.

At present, although his ambitions are all going to Smitherens (one in particular) we are again made uneasy with the rumor of a prospective job as Lamp Lighter with the Long Island Lighting Co.

IN THE fall of 1924 Reading sent one of its athletes to Lehigh to make a name for himself. After winning his numerals as a guard on the Frosh basketball team he aggravated an old injury which kept him from further athletic participation of any sort. "Jack's" build is the envy of many fellows and we are sorry that he is denied the advantage of it.

Starting on the wrong foot as many before him have done, he saw the error of his decision, and has now become a very successful Business student and from all indications intends to carry this on into the future. We know that "Jack" will accomplish what he has set himself to do.

"Jack" has spent very few week-ends in Bethlehem during his four years at college, carrying all the news of Lehigh to Reading on his weekly sojourns. We are not hard pressed to assign a cause to these trips, and it may be that visions of the future have quieted "Jack" down.

He leaves us with best wishes for as much success and luck in the business world as is his in love.

"DICK" is one of those unfortunate individuals who was tricked by fate and had to be born in Bethlehem. But he has those sterling qualities that point to a bigger and better Lehigh. Knowing a good thing when he sees it explains his entrance into the Electrical course. Suffice it to say "Dick" trotted out his stuff and now sports an Eta Kappa Nu key, which he shines lustily before each quizz.

"Dick" has a few good points which we should not fail to mention. He has an unspotted church record (??). However, "Dick" does not like to be rushed (out of bed). His chief obstacle for four years was not being able to get "gym" credit without going to the gym.

Good luck to you, "Dick!"

Opinions

*This is the tale of our life,
Written for people's mirth
In jesting guise but ye are wise,
And ye know what the jest is worth*

THE truth at last! Now will be settled, once and for all, the true status and significance of many things with which we have come in contact at one time or another during our four year sojourn on Old South Mountain. The call for opinions on these topics, issued at the beginning of this our final year, was answered with gusto by our classmates, and the results were truly astonishing. With what amazement we realized the depravity of the men of '28, we cannot express. It is to our sorrow that we could not publish, in toto, the wealth of dirty remarks, insults, etc., that poured in upon our astounded heads, but alas! we had not space enough for it all. We could but separate the wheat from the chaff, selecting those which were most publishable, and casting the rest aside, though with great regret. No easy task this, for the wit evinced by our classmates was really superlative. However, we hope that our selection will bring back, in years to come, pleasant memories of happy hours spent in the past four years, and that the readers of the opinions which follow will enjoy reading them as much as we did. They may not be the acme of literature, but at least they are worth reading if only for the sake of the wise-cracks contained in them. At any rate, here they are:

"SUPREME"

is what "Jack" Zerbe thinks of Our Class. Ward Wiegand goes even further and says it is the salvation of Lehigh. He may be right, but if so Lehigh doesn't realize what she is losing. "Bill" Scarlett remarks that it took 63 years to produce one like it, while "Johnny" Kelly chimes in with his familiar, "O. K. M. N. X." "Chet" Martz avers that '28 was God's great gift to Bethlehem women, and he should know. "A good bunch with good spirit", was "Jimmy" Murray's contribution, tho' we must say that we wonder what sort of spirit he refers to. On all sides pour in comments on the high quality of our class, and the universal chant is, "The Best Ever!"

"DUDS"

was the opprobrious title given to all other classes by "Norm" Kramer. "Kuch", Kuchinski likens them to the handle on a soup-pot, "there, but not in it", which we call a very worthy sentiment. "Bill" Helmsdaedter just sighs, "Pitiful", and lets it go at that, while "Charlie" Brady avers that '29 is more to be pitied than blamed, because they were born just one year too late. "Why bother?" asks Frank Willis, and to tell the truth, we'll be damned if we know! The consensus of opinion is that all other classes are terrible, which may or may not be true, still, they're all Lehigh men, so we'll have to forgive'em.

"CENSORED"

is printed in large, black letters over "Joc" Bent's opinion as to the head of his course, so we'll pry no further into that. "A good pilot", enthuses "Ken" Chickering. "You know, pile it here, pile it there," Frank Willis says, "there's no need of a fog-horn when this Fogg is around", which "Don" Straub supplements with, "He'll pass, may we!" Chorus of Civiles chant, in close harmony, "Amen!" "Jimmy" Murray thinks that "Doc" Esty's distinguishing characteristic is that he does not resemble Coolidge. According to "Jack" Swinton, the head of his curriculum should have gone to France during the late unpleasantness. "He could have held Verdun," "Jack" explains, "and all by himself, too!"

Faculty Ballot

*"There we met with famous men,
Set in office o'er us;
And they beat on us with rods—
Faithfully with many rods—
Daily beat on us with rods,
For the love they bore us!"*

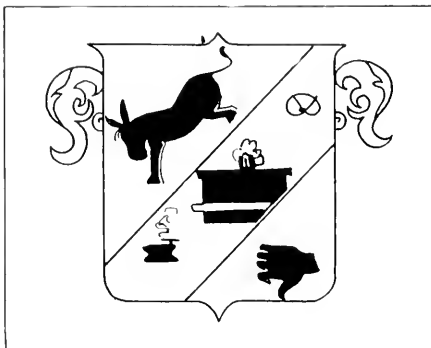

— Rudyard Kipling.

"A COAT OF ARMS"

designated as follows: "mule rampant on a field azure; bar sinister, in brown on white; gules d'or; and a Dean's hand, thumb down", is the appropriate memorial suggested by Bob Levy. Not bad, say we, not bad at all. "Herbie" Hobbs wants a bar in Drown Hall, and "Bill" Billmeyer suggests a Rubie Goldberg sculpture. "Make the Campus level", is shouted on all sides, while the Engineers would like to see elevators installed in the Physics Building and Packer Hall. "Don" Straub would erect a building to house files of all the rules passed by the Faculty in our four years. Were this done, however, most of the existing buildings would have to be torn down to make room for it, so we fear "Don's" suggestion is impracticable.

"WHEN GREEK MEETS GREEK"

says "Walt" Miller, trying to be funny about Interfraternity Council, while Ward Wiegand defines it as "a great silence broken by motion for adjournment". "Freddie" Schmid becomes classical, and tells us that it is "Much Ado About Nothing". "Just ten hooks shot to hell", mourns "Bill" Billmeyer, and Harry Lenna heartily agrees with him. "Zeb" Hopkins crashes through with the brilliant remark that it is a "bunch of Greeks NOT operating Kandy Kitchens", which seems to just about sum up the whole works.

seems to be the prevailing opinion about Arcadia. George Fearnside is not so mercenary, however. "It's not what it's name suggests", cries he. "Gene" Smith comments that it is a good idea, but "and leaves the rest to imagination, while "Bill" Scarlett defines it as "a body of men brought together for the Faculty to take power away from", a sentiment in which many others loudly join. "Len" Horton designates it as a big "bull session, with lots of aims, and no accomplishments", while all concur in the idea that Arcadia would be all right, if "and we all know the rest by heart.

"COARSE" is what "Dick" Ullery turns to a rather flagrant pun, when commenting on Course societies. "Dutch" Speicher asks, "Isn't that where one goes for 'free smokes' and 'cats'?", but then "Dutch" is always thinking about food. "Angie" Roberts admits that "some of 'em are good", with which "Hellfire" Moyer agrees. "Big blows in a little cyclone", comes from "Gard" Simes, and the class as a whole seems divided as to whether they are worth while or not.

"GET YOUR MAN"

remarks "Norm" Young, and it seems to be a very appropriate comment on the Rushing Rules. He adds, however, "at any price", which makes us wonder just what he meant. Perhaps "Walt" Miller's contribution might clear this up a bit. "Tough on the old man's car", says he. Fearnside says the rushing period is two weeks too long, and many agree with him, uttering heart-rending groans. "Don" Straub thinks they are all right, and wishes success to the house with the biggest cellar. Several admit that the rules work quite often, and anyhow, who wants to rush a rule?

EDITORS AND BUSINESS MANAGERS

"SHADES OF MENCKEN"

cried "Jack" Bolton, after reading the last issue of the Lehigh Review. "Kuch" Kuchinski thinks it must be reserved for starving poets and short story writers, to judge from the material that comes out in it, and it must be so because "Gene" Smith complains that there are too many geniuses working out on it. "Nat" Hill is more charitable, "Time will tell", he remarks. "Al" Harris suggests printing on the cover, "IN MEMORY OF LESTER BEEBE". "Lehigh's Mercury" is the stigma attached to it by "Hank" Hansen, while "Jack" Zerbe's contention is that it is a review of everything but Lehigh. Frank Clayton just says, "terrible", but the consensus of opinion is that it is a baby which needs to be fondled.

"RAW, RAW, RAW"

"Just like a cheer", says "Bob" McClarin, referring wittily to our Burro. "Norm" Young likens it to College Humor, "But more refined, oh, yes—OH YES!". "Often naughty, always entertaining", is "Art" Swallow's contribution to the general discussion, and "Curt" Converse chimes in with, "The women are hot!", which we think is rather a "broad" statement, heh! heh! Leister opines that it is for the sophisticated only, and advises the President and Dean against subscribing. The Dean said, though, that there was only one obscene joke, but maybe he didn't read the ones we did!

"THE COLD DOPE"

fits the Brown and White very well, according to Earl Diener. "Bill" Connor says it has all the latest news, good and late! "Dick" K'burg disagrees with this, though. He maintains that it has the news before it happens, and now we don't know which to believe. Leo Paley thinks the advertisements are good, and Fearnside lauds its excellent qualities, as paper for wrapping bundles. "Johnny" Bramble informs us that he knows a good way to make use of it. "Stuff it in R. O. T. C. caps,—it makes 'em fit good!", he advises. "Too good to be appreciated", is Gilmore's bright thought, though perhaps he may be slightly prejudiced.

"A POTENTIAL ALPHABET" is how "Bill" Musser designates the band, and "Leo" Paley thinks they play the best music, in the worst way! "Sousa's Junior Varsity", says "Johnny" Denise, with a smirk, but we think he is jealous because he doesn't play in it. "Al" Harris tries to be complimentary, "Seriously, they are good", says he, but "Al", when are they ever serious? "It's every man for himself now", murmurs "Jack" Kosminsky every time the band starts to play, and Ralph Ellis says that "it's the big noise around here, all right." The general opinion is that they are good, and that they helped to make the past football season a little less unsuccessful than would otherwise have been the case. Oh yes, we feel very proud of our band, we do!

"BREAD NEEDED"

"to make Mustard and Cheese complete", says Barnhard, but we fear he has failed to take something even more important into consideration. How about the beer? "Boys will be girls", pipes "Joe" Olden in a cracked falsetto, while Kise says that it gives some of the boys a chance to be themselves. A very dirty remark, say we. "Herli" Hobbs thinks it's red hot, and Frank Willis concurs, but wants to know who the Frosh was who tried to date up the leading lady. Comments pour in from every side as to the figures, shapes, etc., of the various temporary chorines, but all in all everyone seems to like the shows, so why worry?

"HAPPY DAZE"

says "Nat" Hill, referring to House Parties. You may be right, "Nat", but why limit yourself to House Party time? "Wes" Mueller likens them to a giraffe, "Just one long neck," he whispers in ecstatic glee. "Merry" Welch wants to find the guy who said, "it's the woman who pays!", and we judge "Merry" won't be handing out any medals when they do meet. Plummer cryptically tells us to "Ask Dad, he knows", and no doubt many of our fathers could furnish us with choice remarks in this matter. Still and all, House Party times were always good times, and how!

yells "Pete" Paschall, in his effort to make himself heard above the uproar, when we call for comments on the Bethlehem Police and Firemen. "Dick" Ullery fully supports this statement by telling us in private that they are trying to make Bethlehem dry. "drinking it that way". The fat cops receive "Jack" Horner's full endorsement, but he advises keeping a wary eye on the others. Experience, "Jack"? "Dutch" Speicher is all for the fireman, though. "They are good sports," he says with enthusiasm, "don't they always give the fire an even break?" "Charley" Brady thinks their motto is "Better late than never", while "Gil" Miller dismisses them with a curt, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp!" Anyway, we've known them for a long time now, so let's get together and give them a long cheer, a Bronx cheer!

"BUSINESS AND B. A. LABS" may be well applied to the movie houses of Bethlehem. "All the best pictures, - three years late", is "Jack" Zerle's contribution. From all sides we hear the little hammers pounding away. "Johnny" Bramble maintains that when better pictures are shown, Bethlehem houses won't. Still, we must do something with our evenings, and it's better to spend a half-a-hook at the "Savvy" than a couple of bucks at well, anyway, somewhere else. So now fill up your pockets with pennies and peanuts and go up to the Globe for a rousing good time, boys! And whatever you do, don't forget Earl Tobias at the Wonder Wurlitzer at the "Savvy"!

"WHO CARES ABOUT THAT?"

queries Frank McCarthy, when asked what he thinks about the Eighteenth Amendment. Many ask, "Is there one?", which is a foolish question, for look at all the bootleggers around! "Don" Wilson affirms that it has achieved its purpose, but, when cornered, admits he does not know what that purpose is. A puzzled frown creases "Al" Gee's youthful forehead, - "It doesn't seem to work in Bethlehem, somehow, I wonder why?" Look at the Police and Firemen, "Al", and note the size of their girths. "Jack" Horner says he believes it has something to do with stimulants at dances, and he may not be so very far out, at that. Many were the caustic comments on this tender subject, but the general opinion was quite in keeping with the above title.

"A HOWLING SUCCESS"

typifies the Glee Club, according to "Al" Hang, while "Steve" Becker comes out with, "They need some kind of a club!" "Len" Horton wants to know how they ever got that word "Glee" in the name, and "Don" Hoaster so far forgets his Lehigh training as to turn to Biblical sources for his utterance, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do!" "Mal" Robinson blushes tenderly when asked for his opinion, and says, "Don't embarrass me. I'm the President of it", thus confessing his guilt without a quail. Hisses, catcalls, and other forms of innocuous enjoyment pour in from all sides, but it's all in fun, and so are horsefeathers!

"LARGER BOTTLES"

is the crying need of the Dispensary, in the opinion of "Dan" Mitchell, which we think is a most unnecessary remark, for most of us, anyway. "Eddie" McGovern confesses he will not forget the c. c. pills, which, according to Mittendorf "are good for what ails you!" Romig thinks it should be called "Bull Hall", and Remaley suggests listing it under the Physics Department. "Jack" Betterly rises in protest against "such evident propaganda by Bayer." We're all with you "Jack!" Who among us will ever forget the old routine—"Undress; right eye; left eye; bottle (?), come again."

"INCUBATORS"

are what B'thorpe and Fem. Sem. remind Shenton of. Rather hard on the poor chickens, what?" "Kuch" Kuchinski calls them "Bethlehem's Bastiles for Women", but Diener offers to take the job of night-watchman at either one for nothing. "Duffy" Aitken passes over them with a "Not so hot", and "Dick" K'Burg falls in line by adding "not so beautiful, but dumb just the same." We fear "Dick" has suffered unfortunate reverses, judging from the remark. Someone else suggests that they make excellent tea dance wholesale supply houses, but one and all join in the chorus, "Let's go!"

"RAT—RACES"

is the popular opinion of the Collie, Mealey's, and the Colonial, and there remains little else to be said on the subject. "Freddie" Schmid backs the Collie against all comers, and "Fred" Whaley says, "What a whale of a difference a few scents make!" "Joe" Bent admits they are nice places to go,—if you know what for, while "Bill" Scarlett says, "Go ask Horner, I have to study too hard!" Fearnside doesn't think they are anything to write home about, and we must perforce agree with that sage remark. Very educational,—for freshmen,—is the general opinion.

"ROTTEN PICKINGS" says Frank Clayton, in disgust, when asked his opinion of Allentown. "Art" Searing remarks that "it is a good place to be from", but we aren't so sure about that, for according to "Les" Grady it's the place where men are men and women are single all day. "One good building, surrounded by farms," offers "Al" Clinger, and anyone who has seen Allentown from a distance will agree with him. "Jack" Swinton becomes vulgar and offers to tell us the story of the man on the monument, while Ward Wiegand, the eternal optimist, admits that he is still waiting for the statue to bow. Incidentally the cars run the loop all night, now, so there's no need of leaving early to catch the 12:05. Nuff said!

"I WISH I WERE A BUSINESS MAN"

sings "Ed" Watkins as he dashes thither and yon on his appointed tasks, and thinks of the sleep he is missing. "Max" Goepf says his course is a good one for "Comical" Engineers, while Robinson avers that his is free from any suspicion of practical use. "Jimmy" Beauchamp looks askance at his course and says, "I have it—now what'll I do with it?", and "Jack" Bolton suggests Civile Engineering as a training for future Groccerymen. "Jack" Castle gets real enthused about his course, "A good one for plumbers," says he, "It's full of pipes!"

"OUR FRIENDS DOWN THE RIVER"

is the appellation given by "Ed" Barnitz to those annoying persons over in Easton. "Jack" Knight calls it a foot ball team with a college background to lend it color, and Harry Palm wonders how come C. C. Pyle ever missed it. Why Harry, there are NO professional athletes there! Hartman believes Lafayette would rise from the dead in wrath if he could see what was being done to his name. Crows from all sides. "To hell with Lafayette!", and "Bill" Billmeyer utters a cry of anguish. "How long, Oh lord! how long!" So now let us rise and give the old shout once more, and yell like hell is the designation given to our Kampus Kop by Harry Palm, and a right neat sentiment, too, we think. "Ed" Watkins thinks the horse and the uniform are nice, but Manny Sall comes back with the time-honored wisecrack. "Which is the horse?" "Too damn good", growls "Ray" Sweitzer, gnashing his teeth, from which remark we judge that "Ray" has been up at the Lookout recently. Fred Schmid thinks the cop is useful tho'. "Like a slide rule in an English quiz!", while Horowitz comes forth with a most untimely jeer. "O'Malley of the Mounted." So it goes!

"Beat Lafayette!"

"McCONN'S FUSILIER"

"SOUSED BEDLAM"

fits our college town very well, according to "Herb" Hobbs, tho' Talbert wants to know "Where is it?". "It's O. K. if your battin' average is high", says "Hellsire" Moyer, while "Bill" Scarlett thinks it's the best place NOT to have a college. "Al" Smith warns us not to be deceived by the name. "A 'Steal' city", remarks "Hank" Hansen, and is immediately buried beneath a deluge of old shoes, and everything else that can be thrown. Plummer advises all and sundry to, "try and find one like it" - but the consensus of opinion is that it might be worse, and since we will all hope to see it often in years to come, let's give it a hand!

"44 100 PURE" is the statistic quoted by "Johnny" Denise on Athletic scholarships at Lehigh. "Jack" Castle, however, suggests that we get another, and make it an even once. There is no doubt that they are conspicuous by their non-existence, but then always remember we are pure. "Don" Hooster adds a dirty "Heh! Heh!", which was quite uncalled for. Oh well, as Gilmore says, we must have something for Okey to orate about. "Al" Clinger murmurs significantly "Eest we forget!"

"FOR THE MAN WHO CARES"

pipes Warren Wilson, in reference to our "quaint" Library. The term "quaint" is volunteered by Charley Brady, not by us. Bob Eckhouse sets up a howl for more and softer benches, but Goodie Goodale defends it. "At least it's quiet", says Goodie. Bauman avers that it is the last word in confusion, and Carl Christman admits it is a mystery to him. Hoffman is guilty of a wise-crack for which he deserves instant execution. "It's the highest building on the campus - so many stories in it!" Got the forty four? - Fire!

"THANK GOD FOR THE NAVY" is "Hank" French's heartfelt prayer, when he thinks of the R. O. T. C. Being "comically" inclined "Ed" Barnitz defines it as "a substance which reacts violently with the Y. M. C. A. evolving much heat." According to "Walt" Pitman, it is the reason the freshmen pray for rain. "Gene" Kelly says he thinks along the same lines as Gen. Sherman, and refers us to the latter for further enlightenment. Hoffman calls it the "Big Parade", while "Bill" Scarlett says it's funny unless you happen to be an officer, which has all the earmarks of a dirty dig.

"ICEMAN"

is "Jimmy" Murray's ambition in life, and a very worthy ambition it is for a fine, handsome, upstanding lad like "Jimmy". He should go far, as far as his customers will allow. "Angie" Roberts wants to build automobiles that run on air, which is why he studied under the Business profs. Frank Willis wants to be a scene-shifter in the Follies, having had some experience in that capacity with Mustard and Cheese. Craig Wright looks with longing eyes on the Chief of Police's office, in Bethlehem, so evidently he has some inside dope. Several men confess to a rather dark, or poor ambition, but all join in the universal shout "Beat Lafayette".

"WATCH THAT COP"

advises Craig Wright to all eager Lookout visitors. Carl Carlson is of the opinion that it is too public to be of any use, and we wonder what tragedy lies behind this remark. Fearnside agrees with Carl, but adds "Such popularity must be deserved." It is a mystery to us, but after all it's not what one sees but what one does. Remaley advocates the placing of a sign bearing the admonition, "If you don't see what you want, ask for it." Through it all, however, a general murmur rises "What it was, it ain't no more!" Shed a tear, classmates, and we'll all mourn for the dear departed days, now gone forever.

"ATHLETICS"

seems to be the thing around college most in need of reformation, judging from the howl of the angry mob. Other needed reforms were suggested, of course. "Angie" Roberts would begin with the Dean's office, and "Freddie" Schmid names three—the Brown and White, the English Department, and Alpha Kappa Psi. The fence, registration system, and Crammer's lumber camp all come in for due criticism. One bright wit suggests that we start with anything, it doesn't matter what. "Bob" McClarin offers a sage remark "We don't need a reformation, we need a Renaissance!"

"SLEEP"

"is beneficial, so don't abolish Chapel and College Lectures," is the consensus of opinion on this tender topic. "All right—in your senior year," is Ward Wiegand's noble thought. "Jack" Horner sighs "Just two of life's little problems!" Ye editor could say much, having received five F's in Chapel in succession, but policy demands silence. Damiani thinks he could make some extra money in his spare time by selling Saturday Evening Posts at the door. However, such cries as "Terrible nuisance," "Terrible bores," and so forth, resound until our eardrums ring. Thumbs down!

"GETTING THIS FAR"

is almost everyone's greatest achievement in college, according to most of the replies. Romig says, "Passing Calculus," and we do hope he doesn't think he is original in that. Engineers, how about it? The Electricals, as one man rise and shout, "Passing Annie Mack." Some boast of pulling fast ones on their dear professors, and "Jack" Knight modestly admits that he got to a class on time one day. We asked him what class it was, but "Jack" informed us the professor dropped dead from the shock, and so we pursued the matter no further. One and all, however, wish to withhold their judgement till June, when we can all safely shout our truly greatest achievement "Graduation!"

"BE NONCHALANT, LIGHT A MURAD"

was what "Bill" Connor considered the most important thing he learned in college, but refused to discuss the situation which impressed this sterling advice on him. "Jack" Bolton gives us one "A penny saved is one-tenth of a beer." Fearnside says it doesn't pay to work, which may be more truth than poetry. "Bags are not only receptacles for potatoes," is "Kuch" Kuchinski's offering, while "Al" Clinger comes out with, "A kick in the pants gathereth no hay." Simes says he learned the famous Wendell touch system— "Tag, you're it!" Frank Clayton contributes "Will you? NO!" and we'll leave the rest to your imagination. Let your conscience be your guide!

"TOLD AND HARD"

"just like the town bells," is how "Charlie" Leader describes our town belles, tho' it may be barely possible that he is unduly prejudiced. "Let 'em ring," says "Chick" Schickedanz, to which toul statement "Art" Searing adds. "And how they (w)ring!" "Bill" Billmever doesn't think they are so bad, however. "They peal for the boys," is his sage remark. "Al" Harris informs all and sundry that they are wringing wet, and "Art" Swallow sighs heavily. "My one weakness," he explains ruefully, turning his empty pockets out. All agree, though, that Bethlehem's Belles are one reason why home-town girls look so wonderful.

"ASK ME ANOTHER"

parries "Len" Horton when asked what was the worst thing he did while in college. Strange to say our classmates were very silent on this most interesting topic, and our expectations of learning their deep dark secrets were not realized. "Eddie" McGovern says "Freddie Ashbaugh," but refuses details. "Woodsy" Walker admits a "Moose Smoker," and "Freddie" Schmid confesses to gambling on the nickel machines. Alas! that our sheik-like "Freddie" should descend to such depths of iniquity. "Ed" Watkins pales with horror at the memory of missing a meal once, and judging from the weight that Ed has put on during his four years here, it must have been a ghastly ordeal.

"TAMMANY HALL"

cries "Jim" Morrison, as he gives College Politics the once-over. "Johnny" Denise says it's merely a matter of dog eat dog, but "Irv" Finn thinks you might as well be optimistic. "It's good training for future Congressmen, anyhow," volunteers "Walt" Miller, even tho we didn't ask him. Frank Clayton puts on a dignified expression and says, "I do not choose to run!" And he a track man, too! What is the world coming to?

"ON HER BACK PORCH"

says "Dick" Stauffer, when asked where he first kissed a girl. We are now trying to find out where that is and any information pertaining to the same will be gratefully received. "Phil" Damiani says he couldn't help himself. It seems that he fell asleep under the mistletoe and the girl snuck up on him. Personally we think she made a mistake, but let it pass. Max Goepp insists that he is waiting until he gets married. "It won't be long now, boys!" "In a bed," says "Joe" Bent, but adds hastily, "of flowers, of course!" We have our suspicions! "Bob" McClarin informed us that it was none of our adjective business, while "Chet" Martz isn't sure whether it was the girl or her pet "pcke" he kissed—the lights were out. "Eddie" McGovern says that upon the receipt of a stamped and self-addressed envelope he will bare the stirring tale of his first kiss. "Shorty" Vaughan caps them all, however, with the following masterpiece:

"She asked me if I loved her true,
I answered, 'You just bet I do!'
Our lips then met in fond caress—
I lost a button off my vest!"

"FILLING STATIONS"

is the general opinion of Chat-a-While, "Bob's," Mannerchor, and so on, and a right good one it is too. "Some of the reasons our class is so small," offers "Gard" Simes, while "Don" Wilson soars to poetical heights, and prates of "ambrosial nectar of the Gods," and so on. "Kuch" Kuchinski grows plebian and says, "Booze Dumps," which, tho' quite correct, is very vulgar "langwidge." "Johnny" Kelly refers us to any cop for information while "Charley" Thaler believes them to be honorary societies for Chemicals. Everyone agrees that they are extra wet spots in the middle of a swamp,—or rather were. Ah,—these raiders!

"INDOOR SPORTS" are "Dick" Sickler's favorite recreation, and now that he has jumped into the sea of matrimony well, he says he'll be staying home all the time now. "Bill" Heilman says, "Lifting them up and putting them down" a very appropriate remark, for a wrestler. "Inspecting the springs in divans" is "Johnny" Denise's contribution, while Fearnside confesses a guilty passion for nickel machines. "Hank" Hansen thinks there is nothing better than "hoisting a couple," and he's not far wrong at that.

"DOING NOTHING"

remarks Hayward, sagely, and he is confirmed in his belief by fully fifty per cent of our energetic classmates, as their idea of a "favorite occupation." "Gene" Smith volunteers, "Eating soup with a fork." Do you bend the tines down "Gene," or do you just bite 'em off as you go? "Sitting down" is suggested by "Ray" Sweitzer, as a variation of doing nothing. "Gard" Simes likes M. S. and T. "There's nothing I like better than parading thru the mud on a nice, rainy day, with the water running down my neck," says he. What a man! "Studying" is volunteered by several, but again we must suspect our classmates of unseemly levity. What? '28 study? Heh! Heh!

"HARD LIKKER AND SOFT WOMEN"

mourns "Ad" Covert, referring to "why boys leave college," and alas! there is much meat in his statement. "The Dean," chant many voices in chorus, and it is all too true, we fear. "Joe" Rubino pulls a fast one. "Because they are not equipped to do college work, or they do not balance their social activities properly with their studies." Figure it out for yourself,—maybe he means it! "Charley" Thaeler thinks perhaps it is because they study too hard, and so don't get enough exercise—but fails to mention what sort of exercise. "Billy" Heilman says cryptically, "Wine, women, and no money!" Maybe the boys leave to get a head start on the rest of us,—who knows? So the reasons come in,—but regardless of this and that, the lamentable fact remains that they leave. Let us rise and sing, "Good-bye, forever!"

"HALITOSIS"

sobs "Bill" Billmeyer, when asked why he is a stag at dances,—“Not even my best friend will tell me!” Have you ever tried Listerine, "Bill?" From personal experience we recommend it. Frank McCarthy says it's because he hasn't the doc, thereby perpetrating a ghastly pun. "To save my sole," is "Radio" Rexach's reason, while "Fred" Whaley maintains it isn't his fault. Cries of "I am not!" are heard issuing from all parts of the campus, but there have to be stags so—. "Bill" Palm waxes poetical. "A Stag at eve had drunk his fill—is beautiful poetry," says "Bill," "and I appreciate poetry!"

"A SHELLAC-ED STOMACH" is the benefit "Woody" Walker has derived from his college education. Well, it's almost a necessity in these days of A. P. (ante prohibition) moonshine. Ward Wiegand is rather perplexed about it now, but hopes to find out by June. "A 'broad' outlook," whispers "Jack" Horner, gazing across the bridge with fond eyes. A surprising number admit that they have derived considerable benefit from their studies, but we fear that they are merely trying to be sarcastic. Gee murmurs plaintively, "Wish I knew!" but "Bill" Palm solves the problem quite satisfactorily for himself—"Experience, son, experience!"

"EIGHT O'CLOCK CLASSES"

is the bane of all good (and bad?) Engineers. "Oh for the life of a Business Man,—" Ray Sweitzer gives, "these damn questionnaires," as his pet detestation, which, under the circumstances we regard as an altogether irrelevant remark. "Chapel," sobs "Al" Smith, "and oh! how ye editor's heart bleeds for him!" "Charley" Brady just says, "Work" in a tone of disgust. "Moral victories," ranks next to "eight o'clock classes," and we feel that there is some basis for it. "Money," says "Walt" Miller—or rather the lack of it,—but perhaps "Walt" is happier without it,—oh yes!

"RED TAPE"

is the universal shout that goes up when the registration system is mentioned, and after writing our entire history over again each term, we join in the shout. "Len" Horton thinks it makes good training for future Income Tax experts, while "Try" Finn calls it, "a warning to Business men." According to "Ad" Covert it is a semi-annual mad - house and "Johnny" Beck wants to give the man who figured it out a medal, a rubber one. Still and all, it's an improvement over what it used to be, and they'll probably have an even trickier one a few years from now, so bear with it, boys, bear with it.

"ETHEREAL"

remarks Ralph Ellis, as he gazes fondly upon a foaming stein of Bethlehem's "lock." We fear he may be right, too. "Herb" Hobbs contributes a four-year's observation, "It varies from top to bottom." "Jack" Bolton attributes to it his sole motive for remaining here four years, and it must really be good, too, for just look what it has done to our Policemen and Firemen! "Jack" Castle, however, who speaks as one having authority, says it "ain't what it used to be." There is no doubt that it is well known, perhaps too well known, as witness the recent era of sudden descents on our fair town by "John Law's" accredited agents. "Let's have a li'l shong. 'Bring out th' old shilver gobl't - ." Oh, well, it's good beer, anyhow, although it does have its ups and downs.

"THE GRIM REAPER"

sighs "Don" Wilson, as he allows himself to meditate on the new Probation rules. "Darwin was right," insists "Dave" Clarke, "it's the survival of the fittest." "Hokee is a little more encouraging - very little." "They help one out," is his offering. George Beckman voices a curt and caustic comment, "F'n-couth!" What a word! "Just another of those such-and-such University of Illinois, ideas" barks "Bill" Campbell, indignantly, while from many source, more or less reliable, rise whispers of "SO good for our athletes!" and so on. Yes, we can all join in the heartfelt prayer, "Gawd help the Class of 1938!"

FINALE

The song is ended, but may the memory ever linger on! All too soon the day will arrive when we shall say farewell to the familiar scenes and friendly faces of these our college days. Yet let us hope that it will not be "farewell," but only "good-bye for a little while," and that in years to come our great and glorious class will meet and live again the happy days so recently passed. In the preceding pages we have endeavoured to paint a true and lasting picture of these same days. The task of compiling this monumental work has been a most enjoyable one for us, and if it but call forth the laughter which we fervently hope it will, our gratification will be supreme, and our recompense complete.

It is our sincere hope that no one will feel offended at seeing his deepest-hidden secrets and opinions bared for the delectation of the vulgar mob. Such has certainly not been our intent. The frank expressions which appear herein are the cream of the jest, and as such must be taken in the spirit in which they were written. A rigid censorship would have eliminated practically the entire amount of material contributed, and so, if forgiveness is necessary, we feel sure that it will be forthcoming.

We wish also, to acknowledge our gratitude to our Junior associates, in whose colossal work our Class Book appears, for their unfailing and ever-ready assistance and cooperation. In closing we tender our thanks to you, our classmates, for your willing support of the work. May our poor effort serve to bring back remembrances of the happy, care-free days (and nights) which we have known! Lastly, may we ever live to sing:

"Hail, all hail, Lehigh!"

History

LEONARD CARTER CREWE
President

JUST as a climb up our beautiful campus leads one to the "Lookout" where he can gaze back over the greater part of college, and forward to the summit of Old South Mountain, so did we, the class of '29, start our climb in the fall of 1925; some very energetically and others stopping by the wayside, forever, or to resume their climb, to the greatest advantage of Old South Mountain's Institution. Senior year and graduation. After this point is reached, they pass over and out of sight of the college, but retain memories, fellowship and goods from "Nature's Storehouse".

Now we have reached the "Lookout" where we can look back over three pleasant years of our college life and forward to the last year and graduation. That parting will be sad, but our three years were ones of happiest times spent industrially, socially, and athletically.

It is difficult to mention Freshmen, but green as we were, we organized sufficiently to tie the Sophomores in our first Founder's Day meeting. This inspired our class to the extent that the entire year was very successful with smokers and dances; and especially with the first class banquet, where we entertained the Sophomore president.

To the Sophomores was quite different. We lost to the Frosh on Founder's Day but retained friendly relations with them for the most part. The Cotillion exemplified our social ability. Athletically, we were well represented in every major and minor letter sport. Scholastic honors were for a great part received by varsity letter men, or by those active in extra-curricular work. Spirit ran high and was at its height when the "banquet season" excited the Freshmen. They were very troublesome to our class but, on the whole, an unusual majority of Sophomores were glad to greet the frosh president who was a visitor at the banquet in Drown Hall.

The Junior year has proven a financial success, so that the class was freed from debt for the first time since it was assembled. Dances, plays and elections to honorary societies and clubs were of great interest. Another year of athletic representation was evident. The purpose of the Cyanide Club was changed and it became the duty of the members to entertain visiting teams to Lehigh.

Now we look to the summit, the height of our college career, and are inspired by our past success to apply that same unselfish and determined spirit so that we may "live to make our lives add luster to her glorious fame".

History

“NOTHING, if not original” might well be applied to the class of '30. While still freshmen, we instituted a movement entirely different from anything accomplished before in this country. The suggestion of Stanley B. Adams, a special student enrolled with our class, of forming a fund to foster graduate chemical research by popular subscription of the refunds from the chemical laboratory fees, was eagerly adopted by the class. The proposition was put on a sound financial basis by the generosity of the members of our class, and after meeting with the unqualified approval of the University Trustees, went into effect in 1927 when two graduate students were awarded the scholarships. This movement, which it is hoped will be self-perpetuating because of similar action on the part of future classes, has received widespread attention throughout the country, and other institutions are preparing to follow the lead of Lehigh '30.

The traditional banquet season found us very much in evidence and the Sophs, after selecting Drown Hall as the scene of a proposed banquet, found no little difficulty in getting to the affair. But not so with the members of our class, who congregated 450 strong in the Hotel Bethlehem for one of the most successful freshman banquets in years.

And then came the day when being a member of the class of '30 no longer meant being the possessor of a black tie and dink - Moving Up Day passed and we no longer found ourselves garbed in the accoutrements of the “lowly Frosh”.

A review of the activities of our classmates during that year of “being seen and not heard” reveals that we were well represented in all activities to which we had access; and that, in so far as athletics were concerned, our representatives on the varsity teams promised to be of a goodly number. That such a promise was not in vain was proven by the events of the new school year as the football, soccer, basketball, swimming, and wrestling teams went into action with many Sophomores upholding the honor of the Brown and White.

Still the “largest class ever to enter Lehigh”, our numbers have nevertheless begun to dwindle as classmates drop by the wayside. As time goes on the Fates and the Faculty will doubtless cause a further lessening of our numbers, but a faithful few will always remain to carry on “for Lehigh and '30”.

RUFUS LLEWELLYN SAVAGE
President

History

CONTRARY to the history of the recent beginning classes at Lehigh the present Freshman Class is smaller than that of last year, numbering 500 hundred men. Most of us saw the Campus for the first time when we arrived ahead of the rest of the College for "Freshmen Week". During that week we were busy learning the regulations and acclimating ourselves to Lehigh.

We were met at the doors of the Chapel by the Sophomores on the opening day of school and received our first taste of college customs and traditions.

Then with Savage as temporary president we organized for Founder's Day. After a spirited contest the "Sophs" barely nosed us out in number of events won. Soon a permanent class organization was affected and a cabinet elected.

The high light of our few months in college was our undefeated football team which was the first "Frosh" team to defeat the Lafayette yearlings in that sport. At the close of the season a successful smoker was held in honor of this team. Just prior to the Christmas holidays, a tea dance was sponsored by the class. We are represented creditably on publications and in the Mustard and Cheese. Our successful football, basketball, swimming, and wrestling teams promise a wealth of material for the varsity teams.

TAYLOR HALL

Taylor Hall, the gift of Mr. Andrew Carnegie, accommodates 137 students. The building was named Taylor Hall by Mr. Carnegie in honor of Mr. Charles L. Taylor, his former partner in business, a graduate of the University in the Class of 1876 and a Trustee of the University.

PRICE HALL

Price Hall furnishes dormitory accommodation for thirty-four students. It was named in honor of Dr. Henry R. Price, an alumnus of the University of the Class of 1870, late President of the Board of Trustees.

A BIT OF ACTION AGAINST ST. JOHN'S

Review of the 1927 Season

WENDELL'S third and final year as guide of Lehigh's destinies on the gridiron was a repetition of his first two seasons. The great Harvard back, thrice Walter Camp's selection for the All-American eleven, could not repeat the phenomenal success he experienced at Williams. Consequently, 1927 will go down in Lehigh football annals as one of the most disastrous seasons. At the conclusion of the Fall campaign Lehigh ranked just above Upsala and Alfred at the very bottom of the group of Eastern colleges with seven defeats to attest to the position. True, the season's record shows one victory and one tie game, better than the 1926 showing, but three of the reverses were administered by major rivals, Lafayette, Rutgers and Muhlenberg. To add to the chagrin, the Muhlenberg triumph marked the third in as many years, the Rutgers victory was the first over a Brown and White eleven in eight years and the Eastonian win extended the string of consecutive annual conquests to nine.

The seasons' inaugural against St. John's College, which returned to Brooklyn victorious by 7-0 in 1926, gave Lehigh fans an opportunity to appraise their team, and a scoreless tie stimulated optimism. The Brown and White machine consisted of a heavy line, averaging 187 pounds, and a light backfield. What was to characterize following games revealed itself in the first encounter. The forward wall smeared the opponent's incipient formations, but the inexperienced Brown backs could not maintain a sustained offense. Johnston figured in the only real thrill of the day. By overtaking and tackling Blei, who had intercepted one of the many attempted forward passes, he prevented a touch-down and defeat.

The lone victory resulted from the second game. After a stubborn first half, in which most of the action was in midfield, Ursinus yielded to the straight football tactics adopted by Quarterback Davidowitz, whose consistent gains on off-tackle smashes put Lehigh in a scoring position in the last few minutes. On two plays in which he covered 13 yards, "Bob" Van Blarcom registered the first touchdown of the year. "Porky" Flynn, Kirkpatrick and Burke, acting captain, were also outstanding.

The crushing defeat administered by one of the greatest Princeton elevens since the War marked the beginning of the end for Lehigh. Clearly outplayed before 10,000 spectators in Palmer Stadium, Wendell's proteges could not stop the savage thrusts of backs such as Baruch and Wittmer, or the well-executed aerial attack of the Orange and Black. Lehigh's offense netted three first downs, all the result of passes in which "Davidow" figured.

Southmore met a Lehigh team on Taylor Field the following Saturday that outfought and outplayed its visitors. Lehigh, led by Davidowitz, who scored all the points and dominated the play, surprised with a strong offensive.

With four regulars on the sidelines nursing injuries, Lehigh sustained the most decisive reverse at the hands of Villanova on Franklin Field before 15,000. Coach Stuhldreher, one of Notre Dame's Four Horsemen, used five strong teams in rolling up the largest total against Steel City collegians in recent years. The first quarter was scoreless, but perplexing double and triple passes resulted in eight touchdowns in the following three periods.

The geographical rivals, Muhlenberg and Lehigh, engaged in a thrilling battle in Taylor Stadium on Fall House Party Saturday, and the visitors won mainly through the efforts of the veteran Nick Borrelli. The home team scored first when "Davidow," who rivalled Borrelli in brilliance, sent a place kick through the uprights from the 15 yard line in the first half.

A quagmire and a strong Lehigh line prevented Bucknell, which had lost only to Army, one of the best in the East, from scoring more than three touchdowns in Taylor Stadium. Captain Diehl went over twice, and Woodring got off on a 65-yard scoring run. Miller prevented a shut-out when he scooped up the slippery pig-skin on the 20-yard line and converted it into a touchdown late in the game.

Rutgers relegated Lehigh to the cellar position in the "Middle Three" competition by taking a close, sea-saw battle in which aerial play was the deciding factor.

The 43-0 drubbing administered to a fighting but unquestionably outclassed Lehigh team marks the highest score rolled up by the Maroon against its old rivals since 1905.

McCracken's powerful machine, one of the five highest scoring teams in the country, composed of a veteran line and an all star backfield, functioned smoothly and scored almost at will. It registered 24 first downs and pushed the ball over the goal in every period except the third when Lehigh's offensive netted six first downs and had the Leopards at bay. O'Reilly and Guest performed brilliantly for the victors, and Hanlon, Chimenti and Burnett were important factors. Davidowitz was the backbone of the Brown and White team while he remained in the game. Trantum, Bennett, Burke, Blackmar and Waldman figured in the plays that acclaimed their cohorts.

1928 should find football at the South Mountain institution on the upswing of the sporting cycle. A host of lettermen augmented by promising members of an undefeated yearling squad provide the all-Lehigh coaching staff with adequate first-class raw material with which to mold a smooth-working machine whose pilot will be an outstanding all around leader.

Review of 1928 Season

FURTHER evidence that the word "Lehigh" is synonymous with success on the mats was produced as the 1928 wrestling season, the best in Lehigh annals, advanced week by week. A clean-cut victory in the Inter-collegiates confirmed the supremacy of Billy Sheridan's proteges after they had vanquished seven of the eight opponents which comprised the most attractive and formidable schedule ever arranged for a Bethlehem grappling squad, in an unusually successful dual meet campaign. Nineteen-hundred twenty-eight saw the Brown and White flag reach the peak after flying high with the leaders over a four-year span.

The first meet, at Syracuse, was indicative of what Lehigh fans were to witness all season. Syracuse's two intercollegiate champions, Okun and Patterson, were upset by McGovern and Miller, and Heilman and Lehr won decisively by falls. The heavyweight battle decided the outcome, and in extra periods Miller assumed the role of aggressor and acquired a 3:35 time advantage.

Again against Princeton the result hinged on the final bout, and the wary Miller made good, winning in the overtime. The Tigers afforded more opposition than anticipated and scored the only fall, which was offset by four decisions. Heilman wrestled more than the regulation ten minutes to win, and Lehr and Denise, in his debut, triumphed.

Performing on a Saturday at the Naval Academy and on the following Monday in New York, as the attraction of Columbia's Alumni Day, the Lehigh grapplers extended their consecutive wins to four despite the two week interim occasioned by exams. All the bouts with the Middies were exceptionally hard fought, Denise and Voorhees splitting points after a no-decision affair that went into extra periods. McGovern returned to the lineup and won from the service captain easily as did Lehr and Miller, who opposed Wilson, star Navy tackle. Heilman was extended to win but got a fall with less than a minute remaining.

The Columbia score was overwhelming, but the meet, granted as an extra contest on a heavy schedule at the request of the Lions, was interesting. Palm, Heilman and Lehr threw their men, and McGovern and Miller won by time advantages, although both Miller and Lehr wrestled overtime. The match between the undefeated captains, Heilman and Hendriquez, was fast and thrilling, the former pinning his rival 36 seconds from the end.

After two undefeated teams had clashed before a capacity crowd in Taylor Gym that rivalled that of the Princeton counter, one remained undefeated; it was Cornell, which later afforded the strongest opposition in the Inter-collegiates. There were no falls but the visitors won four bouts. Two Sheridan entries, McGovern and Lehr, suffered their first defeats of the season. Miller and Heilman kept their slates clean, the latter despite the risky but thrilling tactics to which he resorted. Dick Lewis, in his first collegiate competition in two years, delighted the audience with his skillful exhibition in the fastest bout on the card.

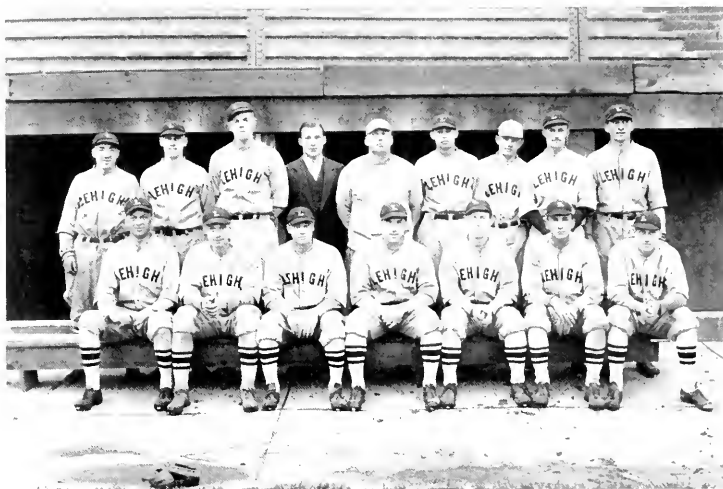

Yale, co-holders with Lehigh of the 1927 title, unleashed surprising strength in the middle-weight divisions, and Lewis and Heilman met their first defeats at the hands of Sargent and Dodd. The Blue captain, Miller, undefeated in eight years, threw Landis. McGovern and Lehr secured falls, and Al Lewis a decision in the best exhibition of the day. Miller clinched the victory for the third time by throwing his man.

For the third successive year since the adoption of wrestling at Lafayette, the Maroon squad returned down the river defeated and whitewashed. Resumption of grappling relations with Penn concluded the Brown and White dual meet campaign in a most satisfactory manner. Six of the seven bouts in the Palestra went to visitors.

Lehigh assumed the lead the very first day of the Inter-collegiates on which all but Landis qualified for the semi-finals as Heilman, Miller and Lehr picked up single points by obtaining falls in the preliminaries. The captain, conceded at least second place, was eliminated by Roess, a different Cornellian than he had opposed before, by less than a minute. Two firsts and three seconds on Saturday assured Lehigh of undisputed possession of the title. Lewis ended a brilliant three-year career in championship competition by defeating Sargent, his only conqueror. While Lehr, captain-elect, profited by Stafford's last minute change to the heavyweight group, Miller's titular aspirations were eclipsed, for the Cornell star's speed and great strength deprived the undefeated Brown and White entry of the most coveted honor. Josefson again beat McGovern easily, and both outclassed Okun, defending featherweight champion. Two unheralded grapplers met in the 125-pound final, and Wilson, substituting for Captain Liggett of Penn State, took advantage of a peculiar position to throw Palm, whose brilliant wrestling throughout the meet surprised even his most enthusiastic followers, of which there were legion. Not only the Lehigh team, but a loyal student body was in the Tiger's lair; numerically Lehigh was also supreme.

Review of the 1927 Season

A DIFFICULT schedule embracing 18 games—and including matchups with strong teams such as Lafayette, Muhlenberg, Villanova and Army—had been arranged for this season. Princeton was the first scheduled opponent, but rain on April 2 set back the opening of the season a week. “Haps” Benfer brought his Muhlenberg outfit over from Allentown and went back with his fourth straight victory in three years. Both teams hit freely and made many misplays, but Muhlenberg’s ability to bunch their hits together with Lehigh’s loose playing at crucial times decided the issue.

The annual Southern trip during the Easter holidays was disastrous. The Swarthmore contest was a thrilling extra-inning affair. A sensational five-run rally in the seventh canto tied the score after which excellent relief hurling by Hesse and another rally in the eleventh frame clinched the struggle.

JOHN B. HAYES
Captain

The Villanova game was a slugfest, the home team outhitting Lehigh 14 to 10 and scoring 14 runs to the visitors' 9. The Navy game developed into a pitchers' duel between Wilson, big Annapolis tackle, who fanned 11 men, and Hesse, who struck out eight. Maryland won her fourth straight game at the expense of Johnson's men by touching Brady, a southpaw, for 15 hits. Hayes accounted for half his team's eight hits, of which Nevins made two. Seventeen blows, including six two-baggers and a triple, were not enough to stop the sluggers of Drexel who connected with one more hit and won 18-15. The final game of the trip was played at West Point, where the Cadets' veteran twirler, Timberlake, allowed only four hits. Four glaring misplays by Lehigh infielders aided the Generals in their 11-3 triumph.

Rutgers extended Lehigh's losing streak to six by eking out a close victory in a garrison finish on April 23 in Taylor Stadium. After overcoming a four-run lead, the home team led until the ninth inning, when two Rutgers runs decided the issue. Effective pitching by Brady coupled with perfect support and timely slugging accounted for the 11-4 victory over F. and M. during House Party week-end. Hayes, O'Callaghan and Talbert, a newcomer, led the assault.

The team continued to play good ball when it met Penn on Franklin Field the following Wednesday afternoon. Johnson's sluggers garnered twice as many hits as the Red and Blue, but failure to bunch them together with three errors meant defeat. Hesse, who pitched commendably, deserved a better fate; Stanford, in the role of relief hurler, was credited with his sixth successive victory.

Heavy hitting, abetted by homers off the bats of Hayes and Nevins, and good fielding gave Brady an easy victory over Dickinson on the home lot.

Lafayette came to Bethlehem the following Saturday and went back "down the river" with a well-merited victory in the first series game, which was called in the eighth because of rain. "Hack" Yeisley, veteran Maroon southpaw, who allowed only two hits and two passes besides fanning nine men, registered the only shut-out of the season against Lehigh. Hesse did well on the mound, but four infield errors nullified his good work. Rutgers made it two straight at New Brunswick on the 18th in a game featured by the consistent hitting of Hayes and Talbert, who made three singles and a double apiece.

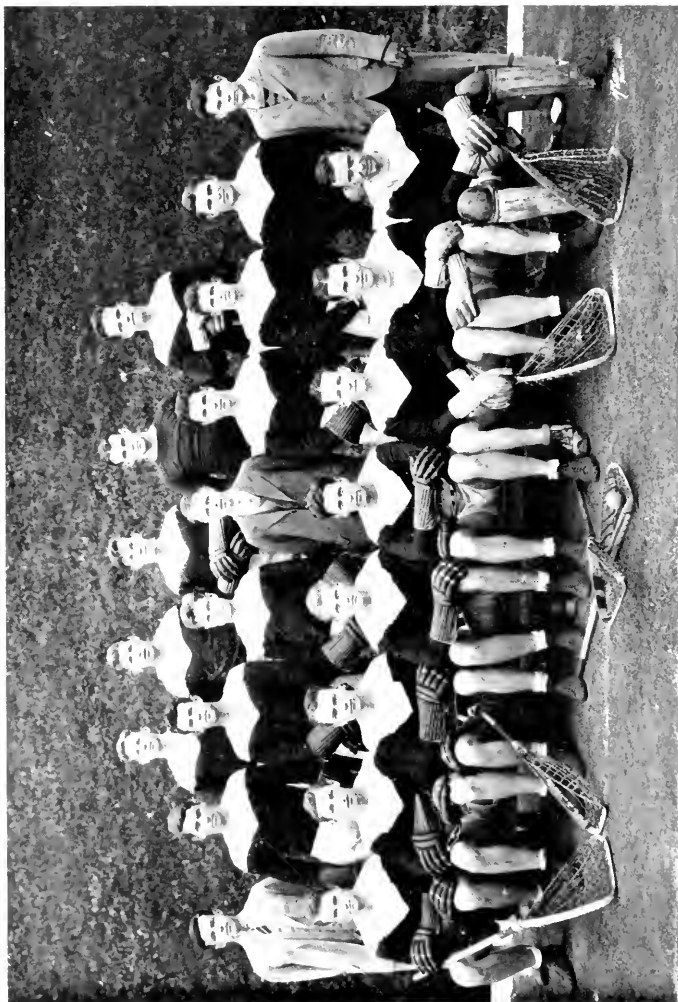

Lafayette clinched the championship by swamping their visitors on March Field, 12-1, on May 21. Yeisley this time held the Brown and White batters to seven scattered hits and struck out twice as many batters; only Hayes, who connected three times, liked his offerings. Hesse and Brady yielded 13 hits.

Captain Hayes and his men concluded their season, however, by defeating Lafayette before an Alumni Day crowd on March Field, 4-2. The contest had all the elements of a good ball game, including that of uncertainty. With the score deadlocked at 2-2 in the seventh, Roberts hit in the winning runs. Brady, on the mound for Lehigh, was almost invincible until he was hit in the stomach in the sixth inning. He continued hurling, however, until the bases were loaded with one out in the first frame. Hesse relieved him, and a double play retired the side.

At the conclusion of the season the team elected Art Rosenson, a junior and a member of the dependable outfield trio, captain. The Nannie Lamberton Wilbur Cup, presented annually by Mrs. Rollin H. Wilbur, to the best all-around member of the squad, was awarded to "Red" Nevins, brilliant catcher and heavy hitter for four years.

Review of the 1927 Season

THE team's record reveals only two victories in eight starts, the worst showing in recent years. But the two wins were gratifying. One was scored over Lafayette and the other over Stevens Tech. It was only the Leopards second year in the sport but nevertheless marked their second defeat at the hands of a Lehigh twelve. Winning decisively from Stevens meant sweet revenge for the close 2-1 setback which the Engineers administered to "Robbie's" men the year before. Rutgers was represented by the greatest team in its history, one that dethroned the undefeated Syracuse club. Navy and Penn State fielded powerful outfits, and Princeton and N. Y. U. were above the average.

Lafayette, met at Easton, played a purely defensive game. Maroon players bunched around the net to keep the score under the 9-0 mark of the 1926 fray. Bush of the home team scored first on a shot which was protested, and Bieth, whose play was always very aggressive, equalized. Captain Kittinger, Enscoe and Zahnow clinched the game.

Three successive defeats followed the Easter interim. N. Y. U. took a loosely-played game in which Lehigh scored two goals early as a result of fine passing, but ragged defensive work in the second half was costly. Three days later on Brokaw Field Princeton triumphed over Lattig's proteges. As in the contest with the Violet, Lehigh was weak at goal, because of the inability of the injured Ottey to participate. Rutgers earned a victory in one of the House Party week-end attractions. The Scarlet stickmen capitalized their chances to score at close quarters and took advantage of the loose guarding of the home defensive men in the first half. Lehigh improved and outscored its opponents by one goal in the final period but could not overcome the Rutgers lead.

The Brown and White representatives started the second half of their schedule as auspiciously as the first half. Against Stevens, which had conquered N. Y. U. and tied Rutgers, Lehigh was at its best. For the only time during the season, the Bethlehem collegians successfully exploited Lattig's system, which mainly embodies a fast, systematic, short-passing attack. The guarding also was good. The indefatigable Zahnow was brilliant and netted three goals, and Buck scored twice.

There followed three more defeats, all decisive. Playing in a mire at Annapolis without mud cleats, which the Middlies wore, Lehigh was literally and actually swamped by the Navy 18-1. With ordinary lacrosse sneakers, Lattig's players could not run or dodge successfully and consequently were on the defensive most of the time. State clearly outplayed Lehigh on the Upper Field in a one-sided fray on the following Saturday. The game was hard and clean, and the visitors' superior stamina, speed and all-around play were instrumental in their victory. Stauffer accounted for all the Lehigh scoring, and Belfield was the ace of the Blue and White. After a three-week layoff, during which final exams occupied the athletes' attention, the Varsity terminated the season with a weak exhibition on Alumni Day. The heat was not conducive to snappy action, and the greater experience and ability of the undefeated Baltimore clubmen was evident.

Two Bethlehem boys shared in the honors bestowed at the conclusion of the season. The Ernesta Drinker Cup, awarded annually to the best all-around member of the lacrosse squad team was won by "Walt" Buck, who for the second year covered the third defense assignment capably. To "Dick" Stauffer, stellar attackman, was given the responsibility of captaining the 1928 twelve.

Review of the Season

WINNING two-thirds of its games and losing only to four teams which ranked just below Pittsburgh, Fordham, C. C. N. Y. and Penn as the best collegiate outfits in this section of the country, the varsity basketball team maintained Lehigh's prestige in the popular indoor sport and established a record surpassed only by the wrestlers for the present school year. Coach Roy Geary's five again won the championship of the Middle Atlantic States Basketball Conference, organized last year, by recording four decisive victories over Muhlenberg, P. M. C., Gettysburg and F. and M. Triumphs over C. C. N. Y., Rutgers and Army constituted the outstanding achievements. Had Lafayette not won the annual series for the first time in three years the season would have been an unqualified success.

As Hahnemann provided weak opposition in the curtain raiser, Geary used the opportunity to work his reserves for one full quarter. Most noticeable in the home team's play was the fast, accurate passing.

After being outplayed in the first half by Nat Holman's Violet outfit on a metropolitan court, close guarding and deadly shooting from long range after the intermission enabled the Brown and White to knot the count five minutes from the end. A mid-court flip by Bennett decided the hectic struggle.

CRAIG I. WRIGHT

Former college stars representing the Crescent A. C. of Brooklyn, undefeated champions in the Eastern Athletic Club Basketball League, inflicted the first defeat of the season. In avenging their setback of the previous year, the Hali Mooners clearly outplayed the home team. Only Many's consistent foul shooting kept the margin narrow.

The spell which Al Nies, Princeton court mentor, holds over Lehigh teams manifested itself again after the Christmas holidays in Jungletown. The Tigers, runners-up for the Eastern Inter-collegiate League title, administered to Billmeyer and his mates the worst drubbing they experienced.

Two successive victories over Haverford and Army put Lehigh on the right side of the ledger again. A shakeup in the lineup, which was necessitated by Berman's injury and which gave Levin and Levine a chance to impress favorably, proved a strategic move. The Main Liners were no match for the home team which passed and scored with enthusiasm and carefree abandon.

After losing six successive games in two years to their Steel City rivals, Lafayette, conqueror of Princeton and Navy, turned the tables in a close, fast, thrilling contest which attracted a capacity crowd to Taylor Gym. Sherwood's four baskets, Captain McGuire's deciding free throw and the Leopards' determined play accounted for the one point victory.

Performing brilliantly individually and collectively Lehigh annexed its fourth win over Muhlenberg in as many years on the Raub Junior High School court upon resuming the 1927-1928 campaign following the interim occasioned by mid-year exams. Many was at his best and alone accounted for ten points more than the entire opposition, the result of a dozen great shots from the floor and three from the 15-foot mark.

The Navy-Lehigh game developed into a shooting contest in which the Middies' accuracy was more marked than that of the visitors. With four men, Billmeyer, Many, Hesse and Levine, scoring ten or more points, Geary's club had little difficulty in subduing their second Middle States League opponent, P. M. C.

Playing listless ball in the first half, during which Lehigh was held scoreless from the field, another game was dropped to Lafayette, whose representatives were alert and deserving in victory. In an inspirational rally in the last ten minutes Many registered eight double-deckers.

Four straight wins climaxed the season, and the first brought out the best basketball seen on the local floor all year. Rutgers' highly-touted team was the attraction on Winter Homecoming Day, and an interesting struggle between two strong fives playing at the top of their game ensued. A strong offense in the second canto overcame a half-time one-point lead and put the homesters in the van. The game was unique in that neither coach made a substitution. Bennett's play was conspicuous, but the scoring was evenly distributed. Many vied with McMillian of Gettysburg as Lehigh won its third league game in a fast interesting encounter. The sophomore forward tallied 25 points.

Led by Captain Billmeyer, the South Mountaineers clinched the Conference championship at Lancaster by swamping F. and M. The second performance of Geary's charges on the large floor in the Memorial Gymnasium at Easton was more impressive than the first, and the Brown and White quintet culminated its season with a triumph over the arch rivals. The visitors were aggressive from the start. Many's unerring shooting was a marvel to the gallery. His six baskets coupled with three clean tosses by Billmeyer, who concluded his career in a fitting manner, established a lead which Lafayette's comeback could not quite overcome.

Many's play established him among the greatest that ever have represented Lehigh in basketball and enabled him to shatter two all-time scoring records. His average of 15 points per game is without precedent. With only Billmeyer lost by graduation and both Many and Hesse, veteran captain-elect, among the five lettermen available, prospects for next year are exceedingly bright at the present writing.

Review of the 1927 Season

AFTER an inauspicious start, the Varsity soccer team under the direction of Harry Carpenter, successful coach and at one time Bethlehem Steel goalie, wound up the 1927 season with two important victories over Navy and Lafayette, which placed the 1927 eleven on a par with its two immediate predecessors. The victories over Syracuse and the Middies, opponents in the Intercollegiate Soccer Football Association of America, kept the Brown and White out of the cellar position, occupied in 1926, which year marked the entrance of Lehigh into the select circle of Eastern colleges sponsoring the Scotch game.

At the conclusion of the 1926 campaign prospects were bright, but unforeseen contingencies limited the number of available toe artists to five. Nine lettermen, including Captain "Red" Nevins, one of Lehigh's greatest booters of all time and an all-State and all-Eastern selection, were lost by graduation, and Beck, high-scorer, Collins and Fernandez, strongest cogs in the 1926 machine, were declared ineligible because of scholastic deficiencies. And "Bill" Heilman forsook soccer to try his luck on the gridiron. Only Captain "Phil" Damiani, "Mux" Robinson, Norm Wagner and Henry Kramer remained and with Maginniss, a letterman back in 1921, constituted the nucleus for the team. So inexperienced sophomores mainly comprised the eleven.

ALDEN W. GEE

The Bethlehem Wanderers, Lehigh Valley semi-pro champions, afforded the opposition in the inaugural contest, a practice game, and as in the past years won easily. Coach Carpenter availed himself the opportunity of giving all the promising candidates a tryout. Besides Damiani, Strass, ineligible because of the transfer rule, and "Mike" Palm, a senior, who had never played the game at Lehigh, impressed. Temple, the first inter-collegiate opponent, was met on Lehigh Field the following Saturday and reversed the decision of the previous year. The home club was clearly outplayed, Temple being the aggressor at all times.

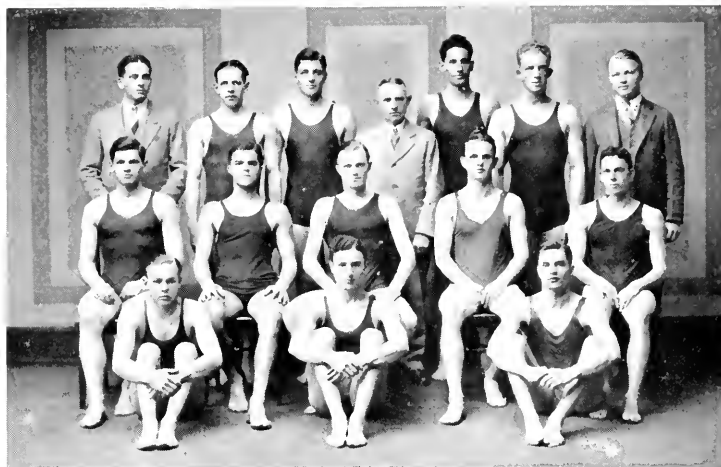

Manager "Ollie" Gee took his men on the road the next four weeks. The six games played away were disappointing in all but one case. First, Princeton, which won the inter-collegiate title for the third successive year, triumphed conclusively on Poe Field. A week-end trip into New York State brought forth some good soccer and commendable results against league opponents. The first victory of the year was scored over Syracuse, an undefeated eleven. Lehigh's offensive was productive, Palm making the opening goal and the veteran Wagner tallying twice. The fullbacks were very dependable. Carpenter's boys displayed their best brand of ball at Cornell the following afternoon. The game was airtight until the last five minutes when two hard shots, one a rebound, found the net. Wagner's work again was brilliant, and the efforts of Damiani, Datwyler and Bullard were praiseworthy.

Montclair A. C. emerged victors in a loose encounter that ended 4-3. Wagner scored early, but the Jersey ex collegians evened matters and clinched the game with three more goals, although Bullard shifted to the forward line in the final period, directed the ball between the uprights on two occasions. Lehigh was off form against the Army and lost. Palm's play was best for the visitors. Kramer, who cracked an elbow in practice, the only serious injury all fall, was missed. Haverford, runner-up to Princeton, repeated its easy victory of 1926 on a muddy field and a cold windy afternoon. Although scored upon, the loser's defense was good. Damiani's saves, Stoneback's booting and Palm's game were outstanding for the Bethlehem aggregation.

Then came the home stand. Swarthmore, a league outfit, came to Lehigh Field on a typical spring day in mid-November. Forcing throughout, the Garnet forwards located the net twice. Only the fine work of Lehigh's goalie and Thomas nullified the constant scoring sallies. The morning of the Lafayette-Lehigh grid game witnessed the snapping of one long series of defeats. Navy honored Lehigh by playing its only game away from the Academy in Bethlehem, and the Brown and White countered by winning for the first time in seven years from the Midshipmen. Damiani and his men were supreme for three quarters and successfully defended in the pinches. Besides the goalie, Bullard, Palm, Maginniss and Wagner played well. Wagner took advantage of the wind to score twice.

Lehigh's supremacy over Lafayette in soccer was maintained in a close and bitterly waged contest on Lehigh Field. Not once since Carpenter assumed the coaching task in 1921, the first year that the arch rivals met in the sport, has the Maroon triumphed. The 1927 College Hill eleven was dangerous and flashed a better all-around game than the South Mountaineers. Captain Damiani terminated his collegiate career with a magnificent display of goal tending and alone saved his team from defeat, and Wagner notched the winning goal on a long shot. Palm and Bullard were steady as usual.

"Dex" Bullard, dependable center halfback, received the unusual distinction of being chosen to captain a Varsity team in his junior year. He was furthered honored with a position on the mythical third all-star team of the league. Wagner, high-scorer and regular for three seasons, was selected for the center forward berth on the third eleven.

Review of the Season

THE Brown and White amphibians did not make much of a splash in the collegiate athletic world, and consequently swimming was the only winter sport in which Lehigh's name did not rank high. Although the natators failed to win a single dual meet, three of the six defeats were not overwhelming and the season was concluded with a creditable showing in the annual intercollegiate. Pete Morrissey, Middle Atlantic States A. A. U. commissioner, assumed the coaching responsibility for the first time.

The freshman strength was indicated in the interclass meet before Christmas. The yearlings, led by Hal Cushman, metropolitan junior champion in the 150-yard backstroke and former schoolboy star at Flushing, (N. Y.) High, won the team championship and half of the eight first places. They led in the relay, and Hal Jenkins, Liberty High School product, took the century. Cushman finished first in the backstroke and the 50-yard dash; he lowered the pool record to 25 seconds in the latter, but as he did not wear a suit his time was not allowed. Charlie Webbe, college record-holder in the 410, won the distance grind. Coxie led Captain Leader in the breast stroke. Hobbs was pressed by Frank Lane, Maryland interscholastic champion while at Baltimore Polytech, and L. E. Smith won the furlong.

The most one-sided meet of the season was the first. Army outclassed its visitors, but Lehigh shared in the two records that were shattered. In his debut, McCarthy duplicated his interclass meet time in the 50-yard dash and set a new West Point pool record. Gene Pelizzoni, who showed marked improvement from 1927, pushed Dwyer in a fast breast stroke race in which a new Academy record of 2:35 2/5 was set. VanNort took the only other second place for Lehigh by his diving.

Lafayette, represented by a much stronger tank team than in recent years, defeated its ancient foe for the first time since 1925 in a close meet decided by the result of the final event, the 100-yard dash. Holt, sensational Maroon freshman, broke Lafayette pool records in both sprints. McCarthy pushed him in the fifty. Leader was high-scorer for Lehigh with eight points, and Pelizzoni and Webbe triumphed.

Fresh from a victory over the Eastonians the day before, Delaware, led by Nobis, victor in both the backstroke and century and member of the winning relay quartet, nosed out Morrissey's charges by a single point in an evenly contested meet just before midyear. Hobbs and Coxie made their first appearance and took a first and a second respectively in their specialties. Leader won the breast stroke from the latter. Davis, diver, Riker, sprinter, and Webbe scored seconds.

Against Rutgers, which has lost only four dual meets in four years, Lehigh showed surprising strength. In touching off before Daly, Jelenko, Scarlet mermen, negotiated the fifty in 25 flat, a new Lehigh pool record. Levis, veteran Jersey collegian, lowered the local tank mark and the E. C. S. A. record in the 150-yard back stroke to 1:55 2/5. Hobbs figured in the other outstanding performance by exhibiting brilliant form in the dive. Leader and Pelizzoni dominated the breast stroke. Webbe annexed another three points.

Cornell's natators returned to Ithaca victorious by a decisive margin. The local's two firsts were the result of Hobb's third consecutive win and Captain Leader's speedy display on his back. A final spurt enabled Quick of Cornell to take the measure of Webbe, and Pelizzoni suffered a similar fate in his favorite race. Larco, visiting captain, was individual high scorer.

A trip to New York was unproductive, for the sixth and final defeat resulted in competition with C. C. N. Y. Hobbs concluded his dual meet campaign undefeated, but his understudy, M. Davis, diving in rare form, forced him to the limit. Webbe and Greene outdistanced the metropolitan distance men. Riker took second in the century, and Leader lost by a touch to Karachelski, a consistent winner.

In winning the E. S. C. A. title for the eighth consecutive year, Jim Reilly's Rutgers mermen as in 1927 tallied more points than the combined opposition. Morrissey's charges acquitted themselves well and neutralized some of the sting of the season's reverses by defeating both Lafayette and Delaware. Furthermore, Lehigh's leader was the only individual champion crowned who was not a student of the Raritan college. He won back the breast stroke title that he first won when a sophomore. The Bethlehem entries monopolized this event, for Coxie and Pelizzoni also placed. Hobbs, E. C. S. A. champion in 1926, suffered his first defeat of the season. Webbe scored in fourth position, and the relay team, which did not win once all winter, was credited with one point for fourth.

Hobbs was the only member of the team to represent Lehigh at the National Collegiate Swimming Association championships in Penn's Hutchinson Pool. He was not at his best and placed only ninth.

Review of the 1927 Season

THE results of the annual interclass meet a two-day affair staged before the Easter holidays, justified a feeling of optimism in the track season on the Campus, for the Sophomore and Freshman classes revealed unexpected strength. The Class of 1928 maintained its prestige on the cinderpath by triumphing for the third successive year, but the Seniors, minus the services of three star athletes, finished last.

Before a large and enthusiastic Sub Freshman Day crowd, Coach Bernie Wetters' Rutgers squad Middle Three champs, defeated Lehigh in a meet in which the home team won eight of 14 events but only four seconds and three and one-half thirds. Aitken and Chickering provided the big thrills when they exemplified the traditional Lehigh fight in coming from behind to win the two-mile run and the half respectively. Aitken later took a second in the mile and tied for high-scoring honors with Captain "Cal" Gisriel and Frank Clayton.

Kanally's squad performed creditably although losing for the third successive time to Swarthmore, 1926 M. A. S. C. A. A. champion, by only 10 points. The home team won seven events, and Clayton, highscorer, ran a dead heat with Dutton, in the century. Third places were evenly divided, but Swarthmore athletes took nine seconds, which decided the issue. Lehigh made a clean sweep in the high jump. Despite the rain, three records were displaced. "Art" Baker, leading discus thrower of the East eclipsed his best previous record with a heave of 143 feet 8½ inches. Captain Gisriel broke the University shot put record by an inch, and Hand lowered the dual meet low hurdle figures by one-fifth of a second. Aitken and Billmeyer again won by stirring finishes, and Straub took the broad jump.

Lehigh lost its second meet within four days to N. Y. U. at Ohio Field in New York. It was the most decisive defeat of the season and resulted from lack of team balance and weakness of substitute material. The Violet won all three places in the javelin, discus and mile and scored eight points in the pole vault. Clayton was the only double-winner. Billmeyer defeated Captain White in the quarter and "Chick" took the half in last time. Hand and Wagner monopolized the hurdles.

Lack of team strength forced Lehigh to bow to her Easton rivals on March Field the following Saturday. Brown and White athletes took half the firsts and thirds but only four of 14 seconds. Gisriel and Clayton repeated their double triumphs of 1926. Billmeyer and Aitken figured in the outstanding performances, the former smashing the 10-year old standard for the 440 in defeating Captain Brown in 51 6-10 seconds. "Duffy" disregarded his opposition and ran against time, shaving one-tenth of a second from McGrath's mark of 10-07 6-10. "Chick" won the other Lehigh victory by a characteristic fight in the homestretch. Hand and Straub met their first reverses of the season. Purscell and Phillips, both Sophs, scored most heavily for the Maroon.

The value of a few individual stars in titular competition was forcefully illustrated in the fifteenth annual championships of the M. A. S. C. A. A. Five stellar athletes in part compensated for the disastrous dual meet season by garnering enough points to place Lehigh fourth and to retaliate for the defeats by Lafayette, Rutgers and Swarthmore.

Review of the 1927 Season

WITH an all-star veteran team, Lehigh's proponents anticipated a highly successful cross country season. Although their optimism was justified, it was not affirmed by the course of succeeding events. For the team, admittedly a good one and one of the two best in the history of the University, did not equal the record which practically the same group had made the year before when the two major opponents, Lafayette and Rutgers, were defeated and the team placed third in the Middle States Intercollegiates.

The annual Intra-mural run attracted 12 distance men, and four lettermen Captain Chickering, "Dully" Aitken, 1926 leader, Harry Sames and George Lange crossed the finish line together. Two sophs, Gadd and Laird, surprised by defeating Fiscus and Roberts of the 1926 team, the latter a letterman.

The following Saturday the seven best men went to Ithaca where they competed against twice as many Cornellians. Seven of each team counted in the scoring and the course was short, which handicapped Lehigh to a great degree. Although three of Coach Moakley's men won the race, Aitken was right on their heels and Sames was close behind his teammate.

Contrasted to the Cornell meet was that with Dickinson at Carlisle which Kanaly's men won handily over the long seven and one-half mile Bonny Brook Farm course. The Brown and White aces, Aitken and Sames, ran together all the way, defeating Sherk of the home quintet by a close margin. Four Lehigh harriers came in fourth, clinching the victory, the second over the Cherry and White in two years. Over the difficult Cold's Creek course in Fairmount Park, Lehigh dropped a close decision to Lawson Robertson's Penn team.

The season's high spot was the retention of the Middle Three title by outclassing Lafayette and Rutgers by an even more decisive score than in 1926. Kanaly's five scoring men finished in the first eight places, an indication of team strength, and Rutgers' representatives trailed. Despite the heavy rains of the night before, Aitken and Sames lowered the former's record for the difficult Woodland Farm course by more than half a minute, and Captain Chickering also got well under the old standard.

Followed the M. A. S. C. A. A. titular run over the six-mile Van Cortlandt Park course in New York City in which Lehigh entries did not live up to expectations, placing only fourth as a team. Union's veteran five wrested the team title from Alfred. Extremely warm weather affected the runners, and Sames, who was seventh the year before, scored in ninth position. Aitken dropped from fifth to tenth in a record-breaking run won by Totten of Union. Lehigh's captain was with the first five for a mile until affected by a cramp; he finished eighteenth. Lange was twenty-second, and Gadd, competing in his first "big" race, twenty third, a good showing.

Review of the 1927 Season

LEHIGH'S hopes for a successful tennis campaign in 1927 went awry. A technicality prevented the University from being represented by a potentially very strong combination, for a freshman, Julius Seligson, twice national junior indoor champion and fifteenth ranking American player, came under the ban of the one-year residence rule.

Included in the squad that reported to Coach Carothers were three lettermen from 1926, Sullivan, "Al" Trumbull and George Doty, the latter a veteran of two seasons. "Jim" Malloy, a transfer, former captain at Delaware, qualified as second man, and a soph, "Wally" Usher, once Number 1 man at Princeton Prep, played in the fourth position. "Herk" Frey, a senior, completed the sextet.

Sullivan, was the mainstay of the team and won the majority of his matches, although he did not equal his record of 1926 when he lost but two of his 11 to opponents in singles. He defeated such players as Hofkin of Penn, Howard, Navy, Cassell, W. and L., Captain Moore, Lafayette, and Snow of N. Y. U. in straight sets, McCowatt of State in three easy sets and Captain Whitbeck of Harvard in a close match. Three of the East's foremost racket wielders overcame Neil in hard fought contests, and Hammill of Swarthmore scored an upset with a 2-6, 6-3, 6-2 victory. Partridge won for Dartmouth in the only two-set defeat suffered by Sullivan in dual meets, 6-4, 7-5. Van Ryn, Princeton's ace who has lost but once in two seasons of dual meet competition and one of the foremost younger aspirants for the Davis Cup team, reversed the decision of the previous spring in three stirring sets, 2-6, 6-1, 6-1, and Yale's captain, Watson, scored a 6-2, 3-6, 6-4 win.

Lehigh was weak in doubles play. Sullivan and Malloy paired, but not successfully. Doty and Trumbull did the best work as a team. Usher and Frey constituted the regular third combination, but the coach endeavored to give Sweitzer and Hayward as much experience as possible by frequent substitution.

Lehigh was represented at the first invitation indoor tournament sponsored by Cornell early in February. Sullivan and Trumbull carried the Brown and White to sixth place among the 12 universities which sent representatives, and Tilden's understudy was a semi-finalist. Neil disposed of Stephens, Michigan, Lenhart, Harvard, and Hofkin, Penn. in successive matches before being eliminated by Whitbeck, winner of the championship. Trumbull lost to the other finalist, Marsh, Williams star and New England intercollegiate champion, in the first round. Together they were defeated by the Penn combination of Lingelbach and Hofkin in their only doubles match.

Although the season was unsuccessful, figured on a percentage basis, there were some redeeming features. Two of the four victories were scored at the expense of the traditional rival, Lafayette, the third successive spring that such an accomplishment has been achieved. Washington and Lee and Penn State were easy victims. State losing to the Brown and White netmen for the second successive year. Princeton's undefeated team gave Carothers' men their worst beating, and Yale won 6-0 in a meet interrupted by rain. Trumbull saved his Alma Mater from a shutout against Dartmouth as did Sullivan at Harvard. Navy, Swarthmore and N. Y. U. also won easily. The final trip, the longest, on which N. Y. U., Harvard and Yale were met in order, proved disastrous. Rain prevented Rutgers and Lehigh from meeting on the courts and forced the postponement of the first dual meet with the Leopards.

Mustard and Cheese

MUSTARD and Cheese was founded in 1885, by Richard Harding Davis, at that time an undergraduate at Lehigh. The club has been responsible for the undergraduate dramatic productions at the University from that time until the present, presenting in its checkered history of forty-three years legitimate drama, vaudeville, and musical comedies. A presentation has been given every year since 1885, with the exception of 1918 during the World War, each successive offering apparently bettering its predecessor. Prior to this year, musical comedies were presented, the last five being "Her Knight Out", "Panchita", "Russian Around", "Coll-Egypt", and "Mercy Sakes". Three one-act plays were presented last fall with much success, with the result that this year's annual spring offering was a three-act mystery melodrama, "The Creaking Chair".

ENSEMBLE

Hear Ye—Hear Ye. The grand Ensemble is about to begin. Slowly the people take their seats, the ushers cease their cries of "Don't forget to buy a box of our assorted candies—an article of value in each and every package." The trumpets are muted, the music softens, and slowly the curtain rises—the EPITOME is passing in review.

The first view shows a beautiful scene on the Lehigh campus. Majestic trees proudly wave their limbs in the cool night breeze, while rising in the foreground is the new Packard Laboratory, showing the simple lines of its structure. Joyous students can be seen in the distance, slowly wending their ways toward their beloved classrooms.

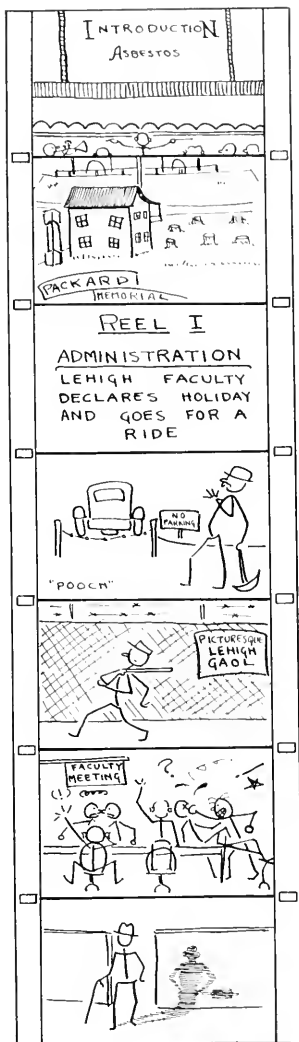

The scenes shift, and this time the mellow glow of the spotlight brings into bold relief those denizens of our young lives, who guide and instruct us in all our undertakings. To the discordant notes of "Old Black Joe", as played on the bass viol by the baldheaded man in the far corner of the pit, the Faculty slowly wend their way on the stage.

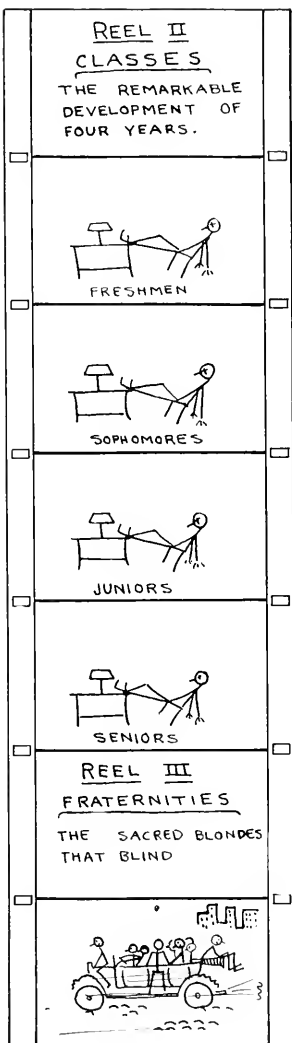

Behold the spirit of co-operation which is prevalent among members of the faculty body and undergraduates. Traffic rules on the campus are enforced among all Lehigh sons, whether instructing or being instructed. Parking restrictions apply alike to rulers and subjects. We can't imagine how the forester with his pick got on the corner of this picture.

The freedom of modern undergraduate days is herein depicted. The college meetings around the flag-pole—held so frequently these days—is symbolical of the regard with which the faculty consider the welfare of student co-operation. The absence of all fences around the campus makes the scene much more appealing and touching.

But most important of all is the feeling of friendliness and co-operation prevalent among the faculty members themselves. In meetings assembled, or during the time of registrations, all members of this body have carried on their business in a thoroughly gentlemanly way. The orderliness of such meetings is depicted in the accompanying view.

But with it all, the faculty preserve a strict hand of strenuous, albeit benevolent, discipline. Their ideas are their own, and once having decided on a definite path, they follow their course as fixed and immovable as the stars. No shifting of policies, no dominations from outside control, they rise majestic in their righteousness.

And once again the scenes shift. While the stage hands are shifting the properties, and the lowering new drops, we can engage in a prelude. The four, five, or six years of college life are joyous years, filled with a steady advancement, and a gradual acquisition of golden knowledge. How remarkable is the development of four years.

The freshman year, that glorious time of all times. Here are shown a few of the many activities of that first year. The hard concentration on the books, the vainless attempt to dispel that green look and atmosphere, the joyful, although few, hours of relaxation, are all clearly distinguishable in this typical view.

But the second year, free from the turmoils and tasks which were previously experienced—that is the time of freedom. Note the interest displayed by the second-year men, the paddling of freshmen, the rushes at banquet season even the stack of books and papers shown on the desk attest to the sophomore's interest in his work.

Juniors, that care-free class. Theirs it is to participate in the social functions, to assume the privilege of walking on the grass. But already the strain of the years is beginning to affect them. This picturization of the numerous and varied activities of the third-year class clearly shows the worries which are descending upon the members.

But after working for three years to stay in college, it falls to the lot of the Seniors to work to get out. The strain becomes heavier and heavier, correspondence and business accumulate—never scholastic work—and a typical picture shows the wisest of all wise men slaving diligently at their allotted tasks, sturdily carrying their burdens.

But now another scene comes on the stage. The more serious side of college days has been disposed of, and now the fraternal side is considered. The friendliness existing among the brothers, and among the various fraternities themselves, is emblematic of all absence from election combinations or political groupings.

Just an intimate glimpse of fraternal hospitality. The invitation was extended by the owner of the wreck shown here, for one man to accompany him to class. The two brothers are depicted driving slowly through the streets on their way to the campus on old South Mountain (or maybe it's a fire).

The typical backyard of an up-to-date fraternity house. When such a scene as this is encountered, all fraternities thank their lucky stars for having a cook or a house-keeper on the premises. The handkerchiefs and tablecloths waving from the tree boughs attest to an attempt to reduce the laundry bill.

But nothing is so impressive as a beautiful entrance, surrounded by potted flowers. The geraniums and roses on the steps leading to the porch, as well as the vines trailing around the house add a distinct charm to what might otherwise be a barren sight. What an entrancing view for a visitor!

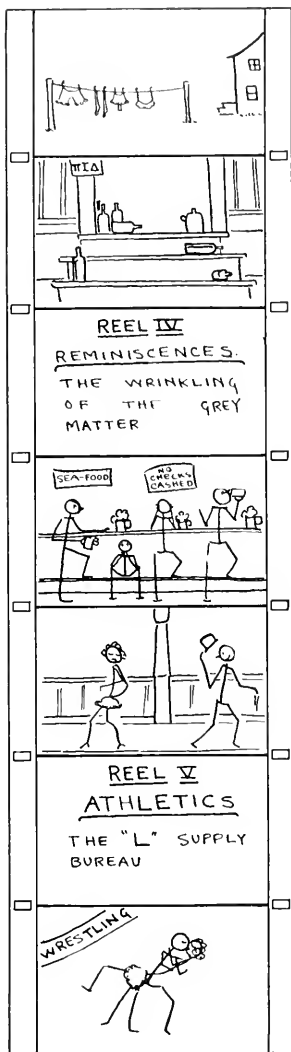

During a brief interlude, while the orchestra in the pit is awakening and attempting to render a novel version of "Remember", the stage hands once more change the scenes, in an inspirational effort to arouse a feeling of long-lost dreams, of visions of the past, and to draw tears from even the most callow spectator.

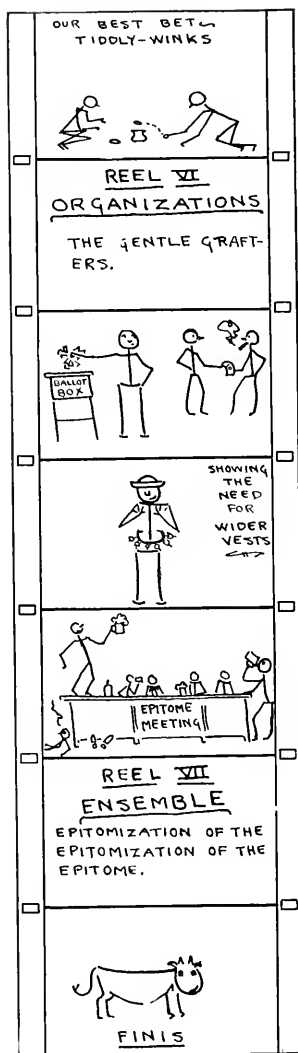

Remember the olden days, when a group would gather together for an evening for a quiet song session, or for a brief discussion of many common philosophical topics? All gathered around a table with nothing but books around them, these few men shown present a typical picture of those ancient days when culture was sought as such.

Or, with another hasty glance, a view at once arises of long walks in the settling twilight, and a last stroll over the New Bridge in order to notice its structural features. Ah, those walks in the days of innocence and happiness, with never a thought of the morrow, or of some unfinished work to do.

A roar arises as from many throats, as the curtain descends again for another shifting of scenery and props. The sound of whistles is heard, then cheers echoing and reechoing; and always a victorious team to carry off the field when the day was over, and the contest won. Cheering supporters, winning teams, victory.

But after winter comes, the indoor sports reign supreme; and it is here that Lehigh shines. The intercollegiate champion here shown in his favorite position, has just been stopped for using a hold barred by the rules, while his opponent called for time out. Careful training makes Lehigh men regularly successful at this game.

Another team takes the field, and once more the crowds do cheer. The field, however, is none other than the gymnasium, while the crowd is composed largely of opponents from Cedar Crest. The tenseness of the encounter, the contortions of the ever active cheerleaders, the sportmanship of the spectators, are clearly discernible.

So rapid is the review, and so complete is it in its scope, that the stage hands are growing weary of their task. So are we; but bear with us a moment while we present the chivalrous knights who do so cleanly just on the fields of honor for positions of trust. Graciously do the winners take their victories, and mildly the losers their defeats.

Behold the scene of honesty personified. Such a view would strike a companionate note in the heart of Honest Abe Lincoln, could he but witness it. The long line of students, all with unbiased opinions, who collect at the polls to vote for the just and honest, is truly representative of the wholesome election system now used.

No, children, not a monster from the seas, nor again a cannibal with his booty of human teeth strung around him, but a senior relaxing in his glory. Such men as these have set the styles for leading clothiers in the country. But modesty, that most becoming of all virtues, is still apparent in the lack of display.

Here we are, the somber realists of the present. The activities of the circle, with clicking typewriters and serious counsels, speaks for itself. The worried look on the face of the Business Manager, who is driving around the corner in his new car, and the harried expression of ye Editor, just entering the door in his new coat, attest to their burdens.

Bear with us just a moment, the end is now in sight. We have reached the beginning of the end, and now we offer a review of the review of the review of the year. Serious have been our declamations and it is with none but the most serious of thoughts that we have given our presentation.

The grand climax now appears, and we bespeak with dewy eyes your forgiveness for our omissions and errors. The many plans, the few realizations, are plainly evident in this, our offering. Sadly do we fold our hands and gaze at the work completed, at the same time looking toward that splendid characteristic view which so well represents our work.

To the 1929 Epitome Advertisers whose loyal support has made possible this edition. Although the demands on our advertisers were greater this year than ever before, they responded nobly, and due to their unselfish generosity, the staff has been able to present the 1929 EPITOME in an edition that surpasses all of those heretofore published.

In order to show our appreciation of the generous support given us by the merchants whose advertisements appear on the following pages, let us, in turn give them our patronage and support.

Bronze Tablet in the Lobby of the Packard Factory

HOW fitting it is that James Ward Packard should have such undying memorials! One, in the product known by his name the world over as a hallmark of mechanical excellence. The other, in his generous gift to his Alma Mater, so that his chosen profession might be advanced. It is a privilege to share with Lehigh University just pride in the name Packard.

Veeder

Products: CYCLOMETERS FOR BICYCLES AND MOTORCYCLES, TO RECORD DISTANCE TRAVELED; ODOMETERS FOR MOTOR TRUCKS, TO REGISTER MILEAGE; COUNTERS FOR RECORDING THE PRODUCTION OF MACHINES; SPEED COUNTERS FOR COUNTING REVOLUTIONS OF SHAFTS OR FLYWHEELS; TACHOMETERS FOR INDICATING IN REVOLUTIONS-PER-MINUTE THE SPEED OF MOTORS, PRIME MOVERS, GENERATORS OR ANY REVOLVING PART. ALSO FINE DIE CASTINGS REQUIRING ACCURACY AND UNIFORMITY.

Tachometers

Indicating speed in revolutions-per-minute of any revolving part; readings to within 1/10 of one per cent accurate; U.S. Government Standard.

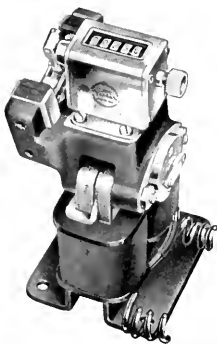

Magnetic Counters

Remote indicating. Report machine output from factory to office. Mechanical contacts on machine make and break the electrical circuit which operates counter, wherever located. The electro-magnetic drive can get its current from the regular lighting circuit, alternating current, either 55, 110 or 220 Volts as ordered. Also made to run on direct current, 110 Volts or on storage battery.

Speed Counters

To count the revolutions of a shaft, flywheel or any revolving part; to maintain efficient speeds of motors, generators, prime movers and machines. Spring clutch controls recording mechanism; no stop watch required.

The "Form US" Magnetic Counter below counts machine operations or units of output, electrically communicated.

There's a VEEDER to fit every machine - and every need in development work. Mechanical and Magnetic Counters - the Veeder Booklet shows them all. Sent gratis; write -
